At Village Hall here, it's all in the family

by LYNN ASINOF

It's all in the family at Wheeling village hall, a survey of village personnel reveals.

There are at least 12 family relationships tying at least 23 village employees, commissioners and present or former board members to someone else in village government, according to a survey by The Herald.

In some cases, the family ties are distant. Trustee Ron Bruhn, for example, is a distant cousin of Vern Nystrom, chairman of the police and fire commission. "It's an uncle of an uncle of an uncle of an uncle," Nystrom said.

Other relationships, however, are much closer. Nystrom's wife, Donna, for example, is the secretary to Fire Chief Bernhard Koeppen, whose department's firefighting personnel are governed by Nystrom's Commission.

ALL VILLAGE DEPARTMENTS can boast of at least one employee who has a relative in another section of village operations. The highest concentration is in the fire and police departments, with each having five employees related to someone else in Wheeling government.

Among the list of relatives is George Raupp, public works employee, who is both the brother-in-law and distant cousin of Administrative Asst. M. O. Horcher. The wives of Raupp and Horcher are sisters.

August Lockfefer, head of the water department, is the uncle of Desere Smet, member of the village plan commission. Don Allison, another public works employee, is the son of Marge Allison, who was recently hired as a records clerk in the police department. Mrs. Allison is also active in the Wheeling Township Democratic Party.

A second records clerk, Lynnette Valenza, is the daughter of former trustee Michael Valenza. Valenza was still serving as a trustee when his daughter applied for the position. He was later appointed chairman of the environmental commission, but resigned after pleading guilty to federal charges of conspiring to extort $1,700 of furniture from Wickes, Inc. He is scheduled to be sentenced Friday.

ALSO IN THE POLICE department is Patrolman Roger Stricker, former trustee and director of public safety, who is the brother-in-law of Bob Kaminski of the building department. Kaminski was recently named acting building director, assuming the responsibilities of William Bleber who is on leave of absence awaiting trial for extortion, conspiracy, perjury and filing a false income tax return.

Although police and fire department positions are determined through a civil service-type exam procedure, two sets of brothers have passed the exams given by the police and fire commissions—Clarence Trausch and Bill Hoos are members of the police department, while their brothers Bob Trausch and Bob Hoos are firemen.

Likewise, Jerry Koeppen, nephew of Chief Koeppen, is a member of the fire department.

In the clerk's office, Judy Kulpins is the wife of Ray Kulpins, member of the electrical commission. Village Clerk Evelyn Diens' husband, Walter, serves on the police pension board.

TWO PUBLIC WORKS employees are related to James Stavros, former Wheeling Township Democratic committeeman who has pleaded guilty to federal charges of extorting $92,000 from three Wheeling developers.

Stavros, a behind-the-scenes influence in village government, admitted when he pleaded guilty that he had the power to prevent the developers from building through his control over village officials.

Dennis Mikosz, who is responsible for municipal and building maintenance, is married to Stavros' niece, Tony Stavros, a public works employee, is Stavros' nephew.

Village Mgr. George Passolt said he had been aware of many of the family relationships but acknowledged that some of the ones disclosed in The Herald survey were new to him.

HE SAID THE VILLAGE has no policy against nepotism except for a rule prohibiting the hiring of village trustees' relatives. The large number of relatives is not unusual "when you are talking about a village and people who have

Businessmen complain about pub

Storekeepers from Lynn Plaza brought their complaints about a member business, the MacArthur Park Pub, to Wheeling Liquor Comr. Ted C. Scanlon Saturday.

Scanlon, who is also village president, apparently told the storeowners the pub owners have promised to "straighten everything out."

Although Scanlon would not discuss the meeting as late as Monday afternoon, one storeowner said the storeowners were mainly concerned about the image the pub gave the center, the dirty parking lot and noise from the pub. "Mainly the merchants are concerned that this retain itself as the major family shopping center in the village," said Hugh Sommerfeld, owner of Katz Shoes.

"This is a family shopping center, and you've got a bar that has an image for young people, and there has been so rowdiness," Sommerfeld said.

THE "ROWDINESS" Sommerfeld referred to includes more than a half dozen fights which police have been called to quell in the last half year. Two of the fights occurred within the past three weeks.

The complaints about the parking lot include vomit, broken beer bottles and cans, Sommerfeld said. And the store, Whims 'n' Words has been having noise problems because the pub's jukebox is against their common wall, he added.

The shopkeepers are to continue reporting their problems with the pub to Scanlon, Sommerfeld said.

Scanlon also has met recently with the pub's two listed owners, Geraldine Amoroso and Marilyn Esposito. Last fall, Scanlon threatened to revoke the tavern's liquor license if the disturbances continue.

Charge youth belted another with belt

An 18-year-old Wheeling youth was arrested Friday by police after he allegedly used his belt to attack another youth.

Wheeling police said Richard Garcia, 350 W. Dundee Rd., allegedly attacked a 14-year-old Wheeling boy in the parking lot at 843 Colonial Dr. Garcia was charged with battery and will appear May 28 in the Arlington Heights branch of Cook County Circuit Court.

School board, teacher groups reach pay accord

Bargaining teams for the Dist. 21 school board and Wheeling Faculty Council Monday reached agreement on the 1974-75 contract for local teachers. Dist. 21 Assoc. Supt. John Berger, representing the school board in the talks, refused to comment on the terms of the contract. Berger said only that the two negotiating teams had agreed on a general package.

The associate superintendent said details on the contract would be released after the package is presented to the school board and to the faculty council. The teacher's group is reportedly scheduled to meet to discuss the agreement and vote on whether to accept it Thursday.

Monday's settlement came exactly one week after the faculty council declared an impasse in the talks, refusing a 12 per cent pay increase offered by the school board. The teachers had requested a 12.2 per cent pay hike, plus a $50 increase in the annual salaries paid to local instructors for supervising extra-curricular activities.

At the encouragement of Dist. 21 superintendent Kenneth Gill, the teachers agreed to return to the bargaining table last Wednesday, where new proposals were exchanged.

Expansion of services ahead?

Omni-House planning for '75 program needs

by JILL BETTNER

Omni-House: Youth Services Bureau, Wheeling, is in the process of planning and budgeting for next year, with an eye on expanding the services of the local counseling agency.

Although Omni-House receives most of its local support from Wheeling and Buffalo Grove, the bureau also serves Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect and Prospect Heights.

"Our emphasis will continue to be on programs to benefit youth and the rest of the community," said Peter Digre, Omni-House executive director. He projects a 1974-75 budget of about $187,000, up $14,000 from the current $173,000.

By increasing next year's budget, Digre said the agency hopes to expand several programs and add some new services.

ONE OF THE PROGRAMS that will probably be expanded is the outreach group activities. Omni-House organized 22 outreach groups at London, Cooper and Holmes junior high schools in Dist. 21, MacArthur Junior High School, Prospect Heights, Dist. 23 and at Wheeling and Hersey high schools this year. The groups, under the supervision of Omni-House counselors, plan and participate in a variety of recreational activities.

Several of the outreach groups will stay together this summer and plan camping trips around the Midwest and to Canada. Because of the great response to the outreach groups program, Digre said Omni-House will attempt to establish more groups at area schools next fall.

Family counseling programs will be expanded next year, Digre said, and the agency may provide crisis intervention training for area police departments.

Watch commanders and sergeants in the Buffalo Grove Police Department recently completed a 30-hour training program conducted by Omni-House and the Northwest Center for Human Resources. Digre said the agency will respond to requests from other police departments for similar training.

A community services program for area high school students also will probably be expanded, Digre said.

Since January, Wheeling High School students have been working in local Dist. 21 elementary schools, at the Wheeling village hall, Addolorata Villa and various small businesses for about an hour each day. The students receive credit for the work which is intended to give them opportunities to learn about various careers.

NEXT YEAR, Digre said Buffalo Grove High School students will also be able to take advantage of the program.

"The purpose of the program is to tie education into concrete experiences," he commented. "It's also an opportunity to integrate kids into productive roles in the community."

The counseling center is also considering operating a youth employment agency to help local teens find summer jobs and a new program to provide recreation for youngsters in local apartment complexes.

Digre said financially, the agency is finishing its second year of operation in good shape.

"We worked out head off to raise over $100,000 to make it this year," Digre said. "It hasn't been easy, but it looks as though we're going to survive."

THE LARGE AMOUNT of local fund raising has been necessary and will be even more important next year because the Illinois Law Enforcement Commi-

Abandoned shop carts worry village officials

Wheeling officials are considering a variety of methods to control the large number of shopping carts taken from local stores.

The trustees said the shopping carts are a nuisance because they are abandoned in vacant lots or dumped in the creek.

"We've got to do something to get rid of them because it is irritating to see them lying around," Trustee Al Lang said.

The proposals under study range from installing posts or a fence at the entrance of the stores to initiating a $25 fine for persons caught with the carts.

Trustee Don Jackson suggested that the local stores begin a raffle, with youngsters returning the carts being eligible for the drawing. He said this way the stores could use the youngsters to retrieve the carts by providing an incentive.

ESTHER DAVIS, chairman of the beautification committee, said the village could bring pressure to bear on the local stores by reporting them to their insurance companies. She said the insurance firms might raise their rates if the local stores are found negligent in watching the carts.

Trustee Al Lang suggested the village might begin licensing the carts for $2 each, which would provide the village with some control over the carts.

The trustees, however, seemed most favorable to the idea of installing a barrier around the store entrances to prevent shoppers from taking the carts with them. "They have a lot of those in the city, and they work," said Trustee Ed Berger.

Village Mgr. George Passolt said the carts are a periodic problem. "It kind of runs in spurts," he said. "I follow it, and every now and then when we get some problems I meet with the storeowners."

The manager said he will investigate the various methods proposed by the trustees, and will submit a report to the board.

Officials weigh unit-school study

School officials reacted skeptically Monday to the feasibility study for unit school districts in Schaumburg and Palatine townships. The study, unveiled Friday by a team of Northern Illinois University professors, is now being reviewed by the school organization division of the state superintendent of public instruction's office. "There is nothing in the study that tells me education will be improved for any unit district," said Gordon Thoren, board president of Schaumburg Township Dist. 54. "I don't understand the need for or benefit for community identification. School identity is the greatest thing going. We'll have that whatever the organization."

Meanwhile, a committee seeking to form a unit district for the portions of Dist. 54 in Schaumburg, Elk Grove Village, Rolling Meadows and Hanover Park, "does not want to railroad this thing through," said James Blankenship, committee chairman. "We want everyone informed about what we intend to do," he said.

Invention firm probed

Investigators for Illinois Sec. of State Michael Howlett have launched a probe into the operation of a company incorporated as a front for the scandal-riddled Imperial Inventors International, Inc., of Des Plaines. The probe, sparked by Herald disclosures last month, centers on Midwest Innovations, a front for Imperial. Investigators will attempt to determine the legitimacy of the firm's articles of incorporation.

'All in Family' in Wheeling

It's all in the family at Wheeling village hall, a survey of village personnel reveals. There are at least 12 family relationships tying at least 23 village employees, commissioners, and present or former board members to someone else in village government, according to a survey by The Herald. One trustee is a cousin of the police and fire commission chairman, whose wife is the fire chief's secretary. The water department head has a nephew on the plan commission. The mother of one public works employee is a police records clerk and another public works man is both the brother-in-law and a distant cousin of the village manager's assistant. The acting building director's brother-in-law is a policeman and former trustee. The fire chief's nephew is a fireman. Two policemen have brothers who are firemen and the village clerk's husband is on the police pension board. James Stavros, local political strongman who has pleaded guilty to extorting $92,000 from developers, has two relatives in public works. Village Mgr. George Passolt said he has never asked prospective employees if they have relatives in village government. "It's not because I didn't want to find out," he said. "I didn't think of it."

Obscenity charges dropped

Obscenity charges against three remaining women defendants in a case involving nude dancing at a motel lounge near Niles were ordered dropped Monday. The women, all exotic dancers at the Upstairs Lounge of the Dolphin Motel, 8550 Gold Rd., faced a total of five counts charging them with performing obscene dances. Asst. State's Atty. John B. Adams said guilty verdicts returned last month against the husband of the lounge owner and two other dancers "accomplished what we wanted to in the case." Julius Echeles, attorney for the lounge, objected to the dismissal. "The girls will keep on dancing and the police will just have to keep arresting them until we get a jury trial," Echeles said Monday.

Honeywell blaze probed

The Illinois Dept. of Labor is investigating the May 2 chemical accident at Honeywell Inc., 1500 W. Dundee Rd., Arlington Heights, that sent 26 persons to Northwest Community Hospital for emergency treatment. A spokesman for the labor department's industrial hygiene unit said Monday he did not know whether the company would be cited for negligence in the incident. Six hundred employees were evacuated from Honeywell, but no one was seriously injured by the toxic fumes which filled the plant area.

Park boards meet on land

Board members from the Elk Grove and Schaumburg park districts plan to meet Thursday to talk about 170 acres of land in the Schaumburg district which is being sought by the Elk Grove district. Schaumburg stands to lose the property because of a state law allowing the owner to annex to another district. The property, located in Elk Grove Village and owned by Centex Corp., which is expected to favor the Elk Grove Park District.

MIKE HENDRICKS, bicycle racer at Fremd High School in Palatine, gets ready for the bike-a-thon Sunday to raise money for the Cancer Crusade.

Cyclists to roll over cancer

Northwest suburban cyclists will ride to raise money to fight cancer Sunday at the bike-a-thon sponsored by the Northwest Suburban Unit of the American Cancer Society.

Cancer bike-a-thons are being conducted throughout the Chicago area Sunday in hopes of raising $54,000 for the Cancer Crusade. Last year 1,000 cyclists raised $27,000 for cancer research and education.

In the Northwest suburbs, riders will assemble at 10 a.m. at four starting points: Fremd High School in Palatine, Elk Grove Community Center in Elk Grove Village, Hinckley Field in Park Ridge and Rand Park in Des Plaines.

Sponsor sheets have been available throughout the area and riders this week are busy getting sponsors. Each sponsor pledges a certain amount of money for each mile the rider completes.

The Cancer Society has asked that all sponsor money be turned in within 30 days after the ride. Only those who comply with this request will be eligible for prizes of $100, $50 and $25 savings bonds or the grand prize of a Seeburg jukebox. The jukebox will be given to the rider who turns in the largest amount of money.

Members of high school and community bike clubs and the Kiwanis Club have helped set up the Northwest bike-a-thon, including mapping out bike routes. Maps of the routes will be handed out at each starting point.

The rain date is May 26.

State legislators to tackle RTA?

by BOB LAHEY

The Illinois General Assembly, still preoccupied with metropolitan mass transit in what was supposed to be a purely budgetary session, will again attack the question when it convenes at noon today — maybe.

Legislators contacted Monday said they expected House Speaker W. Robert Blair, R-Park Forest, to call his proposals on a Regional Transportation Authority for proposed amendments.

Some legislators who have supported Blair's changes in the RTA, however, indicated that the speaker might avoid calling his bills for "second reading" if he is not yet sure that some of the proposals will succeed.

SINCE THE MARCH 19 referendum, in which voters from Blair's Will County district and other suburban areas voted strongly against the current RTA plan, Blair has introduced amendments which would significantly revise the mass transit authority, and probably lead to its demise.

Chief among his proposals is one which would allow county boards in the five counties bordering Cook County to "opt out" of RTA. He has since indicated that he would accept an amendment to that plan presented by Rep. Giddy Dyer, R-Hinsdale, to leave the "opt-out" decision to countywide referendums rather than to the county boards.

There are, however, a baker's dozen of other pending amendments, several of which Blair does not want attached to his bill.

AMONG THEM IS one by Rep. Eugene F. Schlickman, (R-Arlington Heights), which would eliminate the "opt out" provision. Although Schlickman opposed the RTA package approved by the voters of the entire six-county region, he favors the regional transit concept and argues now that allowing individual counties — or suburban Cook County — to withdraw from RTA would scuttle the program for "years, if not decades."

While Blair's bill contains other provisions which he says would strengthen the RTA plan and perhaps persuade the outlying counties to remain in the program, most observers expect that the "collar counties" would promptly withdraw.

Blair is seen by many as fearing retribution by the voters in his district in November unless he succeeds in dismantling the RTA plan which he helped to draft.

Probe 2-gun RFK assassination theory

Los Angeles County Coroner Thomas Noguchi and two ballistic experts yesterday raised doubts over matching bullets that killed Sen. Robert F. Kennedy to the gun wielded by Sirhan B. Sirhan, his convicted killer. Noguchi, at a hearing called to look into the controversial two-gun theory concerning the assassination, said the fatal shots were fired at point-blank range and not from where witnesses placed Sirhan. The ballistics experts said a bullet taken from Kennedy's back did not match one which hit a bystander.

New York bank probes $14 million loss

Franklin National Bank in New York and its parent firm, Franklin New York Corp., yesterday fired the bank's president and accepted the resignation of its executive vice chairman as officials attempted to cope with the loss of at least $14 million through unauthorized transactions in foreign currencies. The shakeup came during a directors' meeting considering the bank's tangled financial problems.

5 extremely dangerous men at large

Authorities at Michigan's main institution for the criminally insane in Ypsilanti, Mich., tightened security yesterday after two weekend escapes that left five "extremely dangerous" men at large. Police captured seven other escaped prisoners as they hitchhiked near the Ohio border. They issued a warning that no motorists should stop for hitchhikers in the area.

Senate votes on school busing tomorrow

The Senate this week observes the 20th anniversary of the historic U.S. Supreme Court school desegregation decision by coming to grips with a measure to severely restrict busing for racial balance. The vote tomorrow is expected to be so close that Vice President Ford may have to cast the tie-breaking ballot. The Nixon administration favors the antibusing portion of the bill.

Urge $11 billion defense budget cut

A group of former defense and foreign policy officials charged yesterday the administration had deliberately inflated the 1975 defense budget to cope with an expected recession. They advocated cutting the budget by $11 billion. The group, led by former Assistant Defense Secretary Paul Warnke, said it identified $14.9 billion of "feasible reductions" items that could be cut without weakening U.S. defenses.

Replacement for welfare discussed

President Nixon is "most anxious" to come up with a replacement for the present welfare system, HEW Secretary Caspar Weinberger said yesterday. Weinberger discussed welfare and other government domestic activities — including a national health insurance proposal and Senate action on an education bill — at a meeting with Nixon in the White House Oval Office. It is hoped welfare alternatives can be presented to Nixon by the end of summer.

Carey would not comment on the grand jury's action.

Court: Mitchell wiretaps illegal

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court ruled unanimously Monday that the Justice Department repeatedly violated federal wiretap laws when John N. Mitchell was attorney general. The action probably means acquittal for hundreds of narcotics and gambling defendants.

The 9-0 decision came in one of two challenges to wiretapping procedures carried out in 1969 and 1970 when Mitchell headed the Justice Department. In the second case, the Court ruled 5 to 4 that another aspect of the procedures was not illegal.

The decisions hinged on interpretation of the Omnibus Crime Control Act of 1968, which requires authorization by the U.S. attorney general or a "specially designated" assistant attorney general before a wiretap. Many of Mitchell's authorizations were issued by his executive assistant, Sol Lindenbaum.

Justice Byron R. White, writing the unanimous opinion in the first case involving a narcotics prosecution in Baltimore, said "plainly enough, the executive assistant is neither the attorney general nor a specially designated assistant attorney general."

He rejected the government's argument that the law vests all the Justice Department's functions in the attorney general, who then delegates them appropriately. The department argued that at worst it had committed only "harmless error."

The department originally told the Court that about 1,430 persons are involved in a series of cases — primarily involving narcotics and gambling charges — held up for a final decision on the wiretap issue.

White also wrote the opinion in the 5-4 ruling that it was not a violation of the law for the assistant attorney general to issue wiretap authorizations to U.S. attorneys in the field.

Both the challenged practices have been discontinued.

In other actions, the Court:

- Let stand a lower court decision, in a Rhode Island case, that states cannot bypass last year's decisions on abortion simply by declaring a fetus a "person" entitled to constitutional protection.

- Left standing a lower court decision allowing the FBI to maintain secrecy on its files concerning the assassination of President John F. Kennedy. Author Harold Weisberg had sought access to the records under the Freedom of Information Act.

- Blocked, 5 to 4, an order which would have required the Chicago Transit Authority to accept "Impeach Nixon" advertising on buses.

Democrats: 'keep cool' on Nixon

From Herald news services

The furor around President Nixon took on a new tone Monday, as Democratic leaders in Congress urged their colleagues to let up in their pressure for a Nixon resignation and allow the constitutional process of impeachment run its course.

Following a call by several GOP Congressional leaders for Nixon to consider resignation, the Democrats cautioned against statements that would "stampede the President into forced resignation."

"This is a time to keep cool," said Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana, a prime spokesman among several fellow party members speaking out. "Resignation is not the answer."

Mansfield's comments, plus similar statements by House Speaker Carl Albert and Sen. Robert Byrd of West Virginia, No. 2 Democrat in the Senate, stressed the need for fairness, and touched off similar pleas from other senators of both parties.

The formal impeachment process of the House Judiciary Committee — began last Thursday — will resume today with closed hearings. Three days of closed sessions were planned for this week for presentation of evidence gathered by the committee's staff.

The committee was expected to concentrate today on hearing the tape of the June 20, 1972, conversation between Nixon and H. R. Haldeman—the tape that contains the now famous 18½ minute gap.

The final report by experts who studied that gap is expected to be made public in about two weeks. That word came Monday from U. S. Judge John Sirica, who described the report as "pretty voluminous" and said the White House would be free to disclose its own technical report on the gap.

Gap narrows between Israel, Syria

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Heckled by demonstrators shouting for him to go home, Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger met Israeli ministers Monday night and got the latest Israeli terms for a military disengagement with Syria.

A high American official in the Kissinger party said before the meeting that the gap between Israel and Syria on disengagement has "narrowed very significantly."

This assessment underlined reports earlier Monday from the White House that Kissinger was close to a Middle East breakthrough and that agreement might come this week. Kissinger was keeping in close contact with President Nixon. There also were optimistic reports Sunday from Syria.

At issue was where the ceasefire line will be located in the Golan Heights. Kissinger will take the latest Israeli ideas to Damascus Tuesday. He will fly back to Israel Tuesday night. Both Israeli Information Minister Shimon Peres and a high American official with the Kissinger party predicted that Kissinger and Israel will know then whether there can be an agreement on a ceasefire line and a military disengagement.

Meanwhile, Israeli warplanes bombed reported Arab guerrilla positions in southern Lebanon Monday and Beirut claimed civilians including women and children were killed and wounded.

A Lebanese Defense Ministry communique said four civilians were killed in a raid by six U.S.-built Israeli Phantom jets, including a mother and her two children aged six months and eight years. In addition five children between the ages of two and eight were wounded, some seriously, the communique said.

Israeli and Syrian gunners also exchanged fire in the 63rd day in a row of fighting along the Golan Heights front, according to communiques issued by both sides.

In Cairo, Egypt publicly snubbed Libya's Col. Muammar Khadafi in a further deepening of the 10-month-old rift between the two Arab neighbors. An Egyptian government spokesman rejected "in both form and substance" two messages Khadafi addressed Sunday to Egyptian President Anwar Sadat.

5,300 workers strike at GM

DETROIT (UPI) — More than 5,300 General Motors Corp. workers went on strike at plants here and in Hudson, Ohio, Monday as the United Auto Workers stepped up its campaign to gain settlement of local issues at all of the automaker's facilities.

Some 4,000 workers left their jobs at the Fisher Body Fleetwood plant in Detroit, forcing GM to cancel production at the companion Cadillac plant when bodies ran out, and 1,360 workers began a strike at the TEREX Division plant in Hudson.

GM, meanwhile, hiked the price of its 1974 cars and trucks by an average of $84.

Call for truck strike 'coughs, sputters'

From United Press International

The country's independent truck drivers Monday all but ignored a call for a nationwide strike to force a rollback in fuel prices and an increase in the 55-mile-per-hour speed limit.

The strike resulted in some violence in Pennsylvania but had almost no effect on truck traffic in that state, regarded as the focal point in the truckers' protest.

Strike coordinators said truck traffic was "down appreciably" in Utah and about 80% effective in Montana and Colorado, but elsewhere across the country the situation was reported normal.

Utah state police denied the strike had any significant effect in the state.

Illinois state police and leaders of the Independent Midwest Truckers Assn. said Monday that truck traffic was normal throughout the state.

The call for a nationwide truck shutdown, scheduled to have started Sunday midnight, was issued by Overdrive magazine, an independent truckers' publication. Its editor, Michael Parkhurst, had predicted more than 90,000 drivers would take part.

In addition to lower fuel prices and higher speed limits, Parkhurst said, the truckers sought an audit of oil company books and the right for small truckers to haul manufactured goods in competition with the big trucking companies.

In Washington, the Senate Monday rejected an attempt to raise the 55 mph speed limit to 60, with opponents successfully arguing the lower limit saves lives and fuel every day.

Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., said that in four months, at the lower speed limit, "We have saved 4,000 lives already . . . Fuel conservation must also continue to rank high in our priority."

Divorce to stay in Italy

ROME (UPI) — Italian voters Monday rejected a joint Vatican-Christian Democrat attempt to repeal the law permitting divorce despite entreaties from Pope Paul VI and warnings the outcome could help bring Communists into the government.

With 87 per cent of the votes from the two-day national referendum counted, opponents to the repeal of the three-year-old divorce law held a solid 59.1 to 40.9 per cent lead over those favoring abolition of the law.

The results represented the first defeat at the polls for the Christian Democrats in their history of postwar dominance of Italian politics. It also was the worst setback for the Roman Catholic church in Italian political affairs since Italian troops chased Pope Pius IX to the Vatican, ending the church's temporal power in 1870.

Politicians said the defeat of the divorce referendum would likely prompt the resignation of the government of Prime Minister Mariano Rumor. Some politicians predicted the Christian Democrats may turn to the Communists to forge a historic compromise" in forming a new government.

Reveal Mayor Daley suffered 'small stroke'

• A press aide for Chicago's Mayor Richard Daley revealed yesterday the mayor suffered a "small stroke" before he was hospitalized last week and undergo surgery within three to four weeks to prevent a recurrence. Doctors said Daley's stroke involved the left side of the brain. The mayor will be released from the hospital to recuperate at home in preparation for the operation to repair a defective artery in his neck.

• Prospects brightened even more for conservative candidate Valery Giscard d'Estaing, headed for a Sunday runoff against Communist-backed Socialist party leader Francois Mitterand for the presidency of France. A new opinion poll showed Giscard d'Estaing had widened his narrow lead to 51.5 from 48.5 per cent, and Gaullist candidate Jacques Chaban-Delmas — whipped in the initial balloting May 5 — threw him his formal support. Mitterand, who pledged to put Communists in his cabinet, meantime promised a price freeze to counter inflation if he is elected . . . Helmut Schmidt, hand-picked successor to Willy Brandt as West German chancellor, is expected to wind up formation of a new government by sometime today.

Dolly Saxbe

Gov. David Hall

• President Nixon is not the only one facing impeachment troubles. A special committee of the Oklahoma House of Representatives is expected to recommend this week whether to launch an impeachment inquiry against Gov. David Hall, Democrat Hall, seeking this year to become Oklahoma's first two-term governor, has been accused of being the beneficiary of more than $150,000 in alleged kickbacks on state building contracts — touching off five different investigations on the county, state and federal level.

• When John Mitchell was attorney general, all the jokes were about how he couldn't keep wife Martha muzzled. Now, with William Saxbe in the job, it's the other way around, as his wife Dolly Saxbe observed: "It's awfully hard to shut him up." It's a Saxbe hallmark that has gotten him into repeated controversy, but, observed Mrs. Saxbe, President Nixon "knew what he was doing when he got him."

speculation since the former vice president arrived in Athens Sunday, and local business sources are suggesting he's seeking work with a Greek ship owner. Agnew, who will only say it's for business, was described as strictly "on his own" by the American embassy, and mostly went unnoticed as he made his rounds.

• Though often accused of looking into the past, Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., was dead serious as he proposed the nation take "a second look" at the idea of constructing new fleets of dirigibles. He cited little pollution and noise, great mobility, and potential uses such as missile launching platforms and hauling homes and buildings to construction sites.

67% support statewide

Public has faith in schools: study

by United Press International

A survey released Monday shows 67 per cent of the general public in Illinois believe schools in their communities are doing a good or excellent job.

The survey also shows that schools are held in much higher esteem by teachers, school board members and school superintendents than by the general public and students.

The data released by state School Supt. Michael J. Bakalis, was done by the University of Illinois Survey Research Laboratory last October through December.

Bakalis said about 4,000 persons were interviewed in a statistical sampling of the state, but Chicago was not represented because school authorities refused to cooperate.

CHICAGO SCHOOLS, which enroll about 568,000 students, scored very low on recent national reading and mathematics tests. For example, in reading tests Chicago eighth grade students scored on a level with the national average for sixth graders.

The survey showed that of 1,570 persons in the general public interviewed, 67 per cent said local schools were doing a good or excellent job in educating students. Of 1,800 11th and 12th graders interviewed, 66.8 per cent thought schools were doing a good job.

Between 95 per cent and 98 per cent of all school board members, principals and school superintendents, said the schools were doing a good job, and 88.6 per cent of the teachers agreed.

"There is a continual gap shown in the survey between the establishment's view of the system and that of the general public and students," Bakalis said. "The people who hold the power do not perceive that any changes in the system are necessary."

The survey also showed that about 60 per cent of the adults interviewed favor increased state funding for education, but most of them were unwilling to see a rise in the sales tax or state income tax for that purpose.

On the issue of teachers' rights, 67 per cent of the public said teachers should be allowed to bargain collectively, but only 44 per cent said teachers should have the right to strike.

Legislation only cure for growth woes: Udall

Federal land-use legislation is in the wings as the only cure for America's addiction to growth, according to U.S. Rep. Morris K. Udall, D-Arizona.

Udall is the sponsor of the controversial National Land Use Planning and Policy Assistance Act, which would provide states with $800 million for land use planning to control development. Speaking at the opening session of the annual American Society of Planning Officials conference Monday at the Palmer House Hotel, Udall said the bill will come up for reconsideration in the House this week.

Although it has been approved in the Senate, Udall said a concerted campaign has been mounted by home builders' lobbyists to defeat the measure in the House. He said there is also some question of whether President Richard Nixon will sign the bill if it passes.

"Our land is taking a beating," Udall said. He told the planners their hour has come, now that land is becoming more than a commodity, more than a means to earn a quick profit. "The time has come to make some conscious decisions. If we're going to have sprawl, at least decide that's what you want," he said.

UDALL SAID A federal land-use bill won't spell the end of private or local control of land. The government will just ask local communities to establish a specific process before they get the money. He said citizens involvement is an important part of the legislation, to eliminate the "cozy relationship" that has existed between builders and officials in many communities.

He said the government will not try to determine what all land will be used for.

There was no real fire, but this is how one would have been put out.

'Victims' of overturned bus await rescue.

Glad it wasn't real...

Water fights, a simulated bus accident, a fake department store fire and a simulated two-car accident brought Fire Recognition Week to a close Saturday at Mount Prospect's Randhurst Shopping Center.

Some 35 fire departments from the north, northwest and westsuburban areas participated in the fourth annual Outdoor Thrill and Skill Show, which ran for two hours Saturday afternoon.

The Bloomingdale Fire Department won the water fight trophy.

In addition to the skill show, visitors to the shopping center were able to view 40 of the newest pieces of firefighting equipment.

The Mount Prospect volunteer firemen had their annual ball Saturday night in the shopping center mall. Throughout the preceding week various fire safety presentations were given inside the shopping center.

been around a long time." Passolt does not ask prospective employees if they have relatives on the village payroll or on a board or commission. "It's not because I didn't want to find out," he said. "I didn't think of it."

Passolt said he has never had any problems as a result of the large number of family ties in the village operation. "I don't think there is necessarily anything wrong with it as long as they don't have anything to do with each other," he said.

THE MANAGER SAID THERE is only one case, Jerry Koeppen and his fire

Omni-House planning budget

sion (ILEC) financial support is decreasing, according to Digre. The ILEC created the youth services bureau in 1970 with a first year grant of $131,000. This year's backing was in the amount of $65,000 and next year the ILEC will provide only $33,000 of the total projected budget of $187,000.

The agency recently received a matching grant of $12,500 from the Chicago Community Trust and a $7,500 grant from the Field Foundation.

Also, last month the students at London Junior High School raised $1,200 for Omni-House in a "Day of Silence" project. Wheeling High School students sponsored a dance recently and donated $3,000 and the Wheeling Faculty Council raised $225.

Digre said an extensive financial development campaign will be undertaken beginning next month.

All women interested in nursing their babies are invited as are their babies.

ALPHA DELTA PI

Alpha Delta Pis will conclude the year with a potluck dinner at 7 p.m. Wednesday in the home of Mrs. Dan Hajduk, 1817 Cedar, Mount Prospect. Alumnae are asked to call Mrs. Hajduk, 297-4832 or Mrs. Robert Schumann, 358-6964 to coordinate dishes.

In addition to a short Founder's Day program, installation of officers will be held. New officers for 1974-75 are: Mrs. Robert Schumann, Palatine, president; Mrs. Ray Iden, Rolling Meadows, membership vice president; Mrs. Harold Chismore, Des Plaines, program vice president; Mrs. James Morel, Wheeling, secretary; Mrs. Steven Hunter, Buffalo Grove, treasurer.

ALPHA PHI

Alpha Phi will meet at 8 p.m. Wednesday in the Franklin Park home of D. Wojciechowski. The program will be on the care of roses. There will also be election of officers. Further information may be obtained by calling 636-2586.

ALPHA XI DELTA

The final get-together for alumnae of the Chicago Northwest Suburban Alpha Xi Delta will be a catered Hawaiian dinner at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday in the home of Mrs. Robert Haines, 992 Bosworth Field, Barrington.

There will be no business meeting, but a film concerning the national philanthropy, Pittman Hall, will be presented to Mrs. Philip Meyers, (359-8584) in charge of reservations.

AMERICANA HUNTERS

Americana Hunters Chapter of Quarters will meet Thursday in the home of this year's president, Mrs. Glen Colville, 214 S. Gibbons, Arlington Heights.

After the 9:30 business meeting and election of new officers a "social luncheon" will be furnished by the chapter members.

KAPPA ALPHA THETA

A "bring your own sandwich" bridge will close the year for Northwest Suburban Alumnae Chapter of Kappa Alpha Theta. The bridge luncheon, to be held Thursday, will begin at 10:30 a.m. in the home of Mrs. Robert Carstens, 300 N. Dwyer, Arlington Heights.

All area Thetas are invited to come for bridge and lunch, or to drop by at any time during the day.

Reservations may be made by calling the co-hostesses, Mrs. Morey Anderson, 439-3365, Mrs. Gale Lindsay, 392-2044, or Mrs. David Magnusen, 258-7983.

Thetas are reminded of the bridge marathon dinner to be held at Old Orchard Country Club on Monday, June 3, at 6:15 p.m. All Thetas are invited and may make reservations with Mrs. John Leer, 827-2712, until May 20. Proceeds will benefit Kappa Alpha Theta's philanthropic projects.

Mrs. William Hogan heads the Newcomers

Mrs. William Hogan will be installed as president of Hoffman-Schaumburg Newcomers Club at an installation dinner Thursday in Villa Olivia Country Club.

Installed as vice presidents will be Mrs. Charles Hague and Mrs. Robert Marken. Mrs. Charles Byers and Mrs. Raymond Schweitzer will be installed as secretaries; and Mrs. James Jarian, treasurer.

Members recently voted to donate to Mark Lind Foundation, District 54 special service summer program and Shelter, Inc., an organization which aids abused children.

Mildew needs fast treatment

Dear Dorothy: My problem is mildew in a load of colored permanent press clothes. As they are baby clothes, they are extra special to me. Hope you can help. — Freda Tingle

As quickly as possible, brush off the mold outdoors so the mildew spores don't scatter in the house. Then wash with a good detergent, rinse well and dry in the sun. Should there be any stains, moisten with a mixture of lemon juice and salt and spread in the sun to bleach. Then rinse thoroughly.

If this doesn't work, use one of the sodium perborate bleaches in solution. Mix one or two tablespoons with a pint of water and either sponge the stain or soak the stained area in the solution. For a bad stain you can even sprinkle the dry powder on the dampened material and allow it to stay 30 minutes or longer, then rinse thoroughly. The important thing with mildew is to get the mold off as quickly as possible so it will not weaken or rot the material.

Dear Dorothy: I liked your Turkey Delight casserole so much I decided to experiment a little — to see whether it would freeze better baked or unbaked. To my surprise and delight, it didn't make any difference. The only point is the unbaked dish needs to be baked after freezing whereas the baked dish only needs to be heated thoroughly. — Neil Giese

Dear Dorothy: The drawers in a 6-month-old wood dresser smell so strongly of wood everything stored in them retains the odor. I've tried airing them, using sprays and scented shelf paper — with no success at all. Do you know of anything to be done? — Mrs. R. Bang

This isn't unusual. People who've had this trouble say pomanders finally eliminate such odors.

'Little Norway'

Rural Stoughton, Wis., becomes fun tourist stop for a weekend

by KAREN THOMPSON

Velkommen til Stoughton den Syttende Mai.

Each year, on the weekend closest to May 17, a small quiet, rural town in southern Wisconsin is transformed into a bustling, colorful festival city many times its usual size.

Stoughton, located off Interstate 90 about 2½ hours from Chicago, is a town steeped in Norwegian tradition — and residents want to share it with everyone.

Syttende Mai signifies Norwegian Independence Day when the Constitution of Norway was enacted by the National Assembly at Eldevoll on May 17, 1814.

The three-day festival combines Norwegian folklore, native music, authentic costumes, food, arts and crafts in the true spirit of hospitality.

Proof that being an American citizen doesn't necessitate giving up rich European heritage, Stoughton residents, Norwegian or not, work together all year to recognize artistic achievement and offer a weekend with something for everyone.

BEGINNING 20 YEARS ago with the fledgling Norwegian Dancers, Stoughton's good will ambassadors, the scope of folk culture and art has widened to include rosemaling (rose painting) exhibits, an open air arts and crafts fair and a fashion show featuring handcrafted Norse costumes.

The celebration has grown to large proportions and the predominantly Norwegian town of Stoughton has changed also. A Friedman, McAllister or Milewski is as likely to be chairman of Syttende Mai today as a Bjorn, Knutson or Tverdel. The spirit of cooperation assures a successful festival.

The red carpet is rolled out Friday. Events include Norwegian displays in downtown stores and churches, live music on the streets, an old time street dance with polkas at their best, Norse costumes and rosemaling demonstrations.

The Norse Jamboree, featuring gymnasts from Oslo's Norwegian College of Physical Education and Sport and Stoughton's pride and joy, The Norwegian Dancers, will be Friday at 8 p.m. and Saturday at 3, 7 and 9 p.m. at the senior high school.

The Norwegian Dancers, a group of high school students founded by Jeanne Reek, have performed extensively throughout the United States and Norway and are the high point of the holiday goings on. Besides taking part in the programs at the high school, the Norwegian Dancers bring ethnic color to the streets at 6 p.m. Friday and 2 p.m. Saturday, at the corner of Division and Main streets.

THE 7th WISCONSIN State Exhibits of Rosemaling, a harmonious blending of colors, accent areas and brush strokes, will be from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Friday and Saturday and 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday at the First Lutheran Church. Sigmund Aarseth of Valdres, Norway will demonstrate the craft.

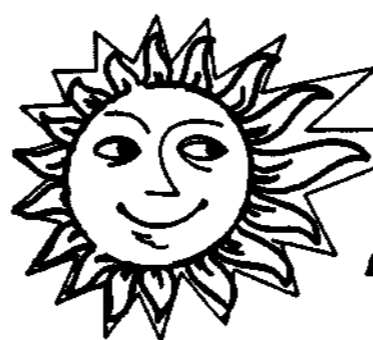

Saturday's events get off to a fast start with the annual Syttende Mai Run, Wisconsin AAU Championship, starting from the statue of Hans Christian Hegg on the Capital Square in Madison to Stoughton, a distance of 20 miles. Expected time of arrival at the finish line is 10:45.

A special youth parade Saturday, at 1:30 p.m., will be loaded with costumed tots, high school bands and added attractions, Felix the Cat and contestants in the "Ugliest Troll" contest.

LUTEFISK, LEFSE and krumkake? These and many other Norsk delicacies will be served at smorgasbords (the Norwegian buffet) by the Sons of Norway. For the less adventurous, the Rotary sells "Kentucky Fried" the Jaycees "Norwegian Brats," and the Lions, pancakes and other Americanized food.

The Historical Museum, 112 S. Page St., has many a yarn to spin. See Luke Stoughton's foot locker or Polly Bassett's 150-year-old wedding gown in the church-turned-museum, built in 1858 to serve people of all faiths.

Accommodations include lodging in private homes for $5 per night per person. Call first for reservations: Stoughton Chamber of Commerce, 608-873-7912, Department C.T., 143 W. Main St., Stoughton, Wis. 53589. The Chamber will also furnish information about hotels, motels and campsites at Lake Kegonsa State Park.

Special rates for youths

How about Iceland's summer skiing?

There are lots of special attractions and tours at bargain prices for youthful visitors to Iceland in 1974.

Activities can range from cool summer skiing on a highland glacier (at special rates for youths) to steaming skinny-dipping in an underground cave pool filled with natural hot-spring mineral water (there are separate caves for the guys and gals, although it is said that Icelanders think nothing unusual about a coed dip).

Discount rates for youths aged 15 to 18 and for those under 15 are offered at the Kerlingarfjall Summer Ski School. The scenic glacier region is famed for its many geysers and hot-springs reached by hiking from the ski area. Several packages will be offered this summer at rates of $150 for those over 18, for one week, including all domestic transportation in Iceland, accommodations in ski huts (bring your own sleeping bag), all meals, ski instruction, use of tow ropes, guides for hiking tours, and informal entertainment in the evening.

OR, HOW ABOUT a few days or a week at a pony farm in Iceland, to "clear one's head" of 20th Century pressures and problems? Rates average about $200 for 7 days at these pleasant farmsteads, including accommodations and all meals.

At most farms, you'll have opportunities for pony trekking and hiking through the unspoiled Icelandic countryside — and good trout streams are usually close by.

The best way to meet and make friends with young Icelanders is camping out. Low-cost trips are offered by the Iceland Travel Assn., which uses its own mountain huts and hostels throughout the countryside. Overseas visitors are welcome to join these tours. However, you'll "rough it," as participants must carry along their own sleeping bags, air mattresses, food and cooking equipment. There will be at least a dozen of these trips this summer, ranging from about 6 to 10 days at attractive rates.

THERE ARE SCORES of more sophisticated tours and "safaris" to Iceland's uninhabited interior regions. Most are seasonably priced and range in duration from three days to two weeks.

The Icelandic Youth Hostels Assn. (Bandalag islenskra Farfugla) offers inexpensive accommodations at hostels (most with kitchens) in Reykjavik and a number of other towns. Overnight rates average about $2.3. Also available are a number of very inexpensive country accommodations (bring your own sleeping bag) for $1 a night. The hostel association offers a series of weekend tours and hikes to famous landmark regions at rates averaging about $10 per day, all inclusive.

Also reasonably priced are the Edda Summer Hotels situated in all regions of Iceland. These hotels are boarding schools (usually quite modern) converted to tourist use during the summer season from late June through August.

OF SPECIAL INTEREST to college students are guided tours for naturalists and geologists. Rates are $430 for organized expeditions of 10 and 12 days.

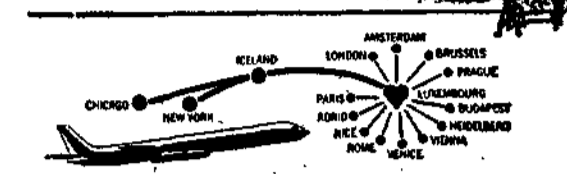

In Reykjavik, Iceland's small but cosmopolitan capital, there's a mod scene at the lively dance halls and coffee shops.

How much does it cost to visit Iceland? Nothing at all, if you stop over there on the way to the rest of Europe on Icelandic Airlines' flights from Chicago.

Further information and folders are available from the Icelandic National Tourist Office, 505 Fifth Ave., New York, N.Y. 10017.

Travel lore

by Clare Wright TRAVEL EDITOR

Book gives airline job tips

A notice crossed my desk this week about a new book titled: "Why Wasn't I Accepted?" — written by a former airline personnel executive.

The book is supposed to contain previously unpublished details on how to apply and qualify for those much sought-after stewardess and steward jobs — and why some applicants are turned down.

Young ladies gung-ho on becoming hostesses in the sky are sometimes hooked on the glamour part of a flying career.

From where I've sat, logging more than a few hundred thousand miles on airlines around the world, it has always seemed that being a "stew" is a lot more hard work than glamour.

THE TRAVEL AND fringe benefits are great, one girl told us recently. Then she added:

"The job can have its share of headaches too... like having to be sweet and smiling to some passengers who are crude or rude — or half-bombed out of their skulls."

Scurrying up and down the narrow aisle trying to race time serving drinks and hot meals to a full cabin on a short flight is no fun either, she added.

I've been on some of those short flights so I can sympathize. On a recent Air Canada trip from O'Hare to Montreal (one hour and 55 minutes), I was highly impressed with the speed and skill of the cabin crew which somehow dispensed potables to those who wanted them, served everyone a delicious hot dinner, picked up trays, poured extra coffee, took care of numerous other passenger needs — and kept on SMILING — even though they never stopped running, it seemed, from take-off to touchdown.

Every time I'm on one of those short hops, I wonder why more airlines don't do as Eastern did on a leg of its Caribbean inaugural last fall and serve a handy box lunch. There was in a clever basket with a straw hat lid and contained fried chicken, cheese, crackers, and a small chilled bottle of wine — plus a few candles for dessert and a moist towel-ette.

SOME AIRLINE hostesses really seem to have a special knack for making passengers comfortable. Like Maurine Anderson, who was serving in our cabin on a recent Pan Am flight coming home from Lisbon.

We dubbed her "the fun and games lady." To brighten the boredom of the long transatlantic crossing she had dreamed up several clever guessing games for the passengers. The winner of one went home with a bottle of good Portuguese wine.

Other hostesses I'll always remember include a gal named Liz on a TWA L-1011 flight to San Francisco a few years ago, who went out of her way to prepare a special diet for a fellow passenger on doctor's orders... Moira, a beautiful Irish lassie on Aer Lingus who gave extra attention to our children on a flight to Dublin... and a lovely American Airlines hostess who charmingly passed out an abundance of tea and sympathy to a group of passengers returning from Mexico last fall suffering from a touch of "Montezuma's Revenge."

Then there are the Air Jamaica girls who serve their passengers refreshing rum drinks and good food and then put on a colorful Jamaican fashion show before the plane lands in Montego Bay. Who can forget that?

A FRIEND OF ours who travels for his living and has probably jetted a million miles or more thinks that "a little mileage on the gals" makes them better "stews." Maybe.

Young or old, I think cabin crews on all airlines do a great job.

After all, can you imagine flying without them???

Incidentally, information on the book about airline stewardess/steward selection may be obtained by writing to the publisher: Remlap & Associates, Department PR, Suite 1320 Rhodes-Haverty Bldg., 134 Peachtree St., N.W., Atlanta, Ga. 30303.

'Gateway to Fun' tours show St. Louis at best "Gateway to Fun," inclusive tour packages to Six Flags Over Mid-America and other St. Louis attractions are now available through Northwest suburban travel agents.

Packages include hotel accommodations and Six Flags tickets, plus discount coupons for Six Flags gift and refreshments and St. Louis attractions such as riverboat rides, shows and restaurants on the St. Louis levee, McDonnell Planetarium, Missouri Botanical Gardens, Arboretum, and St. Louis Zoo.

Tours can be arranged for those who wish to drive to the St. Louis area and to provide savings on airline or Amtrak travel, with rental car or Grayline bus service in the St. Louis environs.

Six Flags is open weekends until May 25, then is open daily 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. through Sept. 2.

CHICAGO-TO-PARIS NONSTOP DAILY

Trans World Airlines begins the only nonstop service between Chicago and the new Charles DeGaulle International Airport in Paris June 1.

Intercontinental Boeing 707s will depart O'Hare Airport every evening at 7:15 p.m. to arrive in Paris at 9:25 a.m. the next morning. Times are local.

The new service continues on from Paris to Rome and Athens.

TWA was the first airline to operate from the new Charles DeGaulle International Airport when a 747 touched down there March 13. All of TWA's International and European operations now utilize the new superjet airport.

Located 15 miles northeast of Paris, the new airport is just off the Paris-Brussels highway providing for convenient car and bus transfers between airport and city. A rail link is expected by 1977 but at present regular bus service will connect the new airport with the city, Orly and LeGourget Airport.

HOTEL BOOM IN MEXICO

A vast building program will bring 33,500 new hotel rooms to Mexico during the next three years, with at least 1,000 new hostels planned for Acapulco, Mexico City, Guadalajara, Puerto Vallarta, Merida, Puebla, and the growing resorts of Baja California, as well as in the brand-new resort areas of Cancun on the Caribbean and Ixtapa on the Pacific Coast.

In 1974 alone, 9,100 new hotel rooms are planned. In 1975, 11,800 new rooms will be built. The figure will rise to 12,800 in 1976.

DIRECT TO SAN JUAN EVERY DAY

American Airlines will begin direct daily flights between Chicago and San Juan June 15. The new service will leave O'Hare at 3 p.m., arriving San Juan at 10:19 p.m. Westbound, the flight will leave San Juan at 1:15 p.m. and arrive at Chicago at 7 p.m.

Pollution lurks beneath surface

Des Plaines River's beauty only skin deep

by STEVE FORSYTH

Second of two articles

Pollution in the Des Plaines River is an unseen hazard. Without scientific testing of the water, the river appears to be a tranquil, though muddy stream, lined with beautiful trees.

What is really in the river becomes almost startling through a microscope. Testing of the water is a regular chore of both the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency and the Metropolitan Sanitary District. The Cook County Forest Preserve District also does sophisticated research on the quality of the water.

The tests show that the river is unsafe for swimming, drinking or as a municipal water supply, and the pollution levels increase downstream.

Water tests show the river is divided into roughly three sections with varying degrees of pollution. The northern stretch, primarily in Lake County, is considered the best. It is the least developed, has the lowest levels of pollution,

'Tests show that the river is unsafe for swimming, drinking or as a municipal water supply, and the pollution levels increase downstream . . .'

'Tests by the EPA and MSD show a well-formed pattern of increasing fecal coliform from Lake County south. It is these tests, however, that show the river may be getting better, or at least isn't getting worse.'

the highest levels of oxygen in the water and the best abundance of wildlife and fish.

FROM THE COOK COUNTY line on the north down to the river's junction with Salt Creek, forest preserves insulate most of the river from the suburbs through which it meanders. In this stretch, the river used to pick up sewage from several private and municipal sources, but that is now gone.

Runoff from the watershed in the middle section is more harmful, however, with more roads, industry and suburban developments. Thus the water gets progressively worse, the tests show.

At Salt Creek the river's condition takes a major turn for the worse. Below that point the fish population gets much lower, and water tests show major pollution increases.

Farther south, the river picks up more and more of the garbage of civilization, although most of it is not in the form of old shoes, tires and refrigerators. It appears as chemical leftovers and sewage.

A basic indicator of water quality is a relatively harmless bacteria known as fecal coliform. It is easily detected and is only present if human or animal waste is in the water. It doesn't necessarily mean the water is dangerous, but more serious pollutants are likely to be in the river if fecal coliform is found.

TESTS BY THE EPA and the MSD show a well-defined pattern of increasing fecal coliform from Lake County south. It is these tests, however, that show the river may be getting better, or at least isn't getting worse.

Results are not conclusive because testing is done an average of once a month and varying factors could change the readings. But test results for the past four years do show some improvement, for whatever reason.

Carl Blomgren, former director of water quality standards for the EPA, says the water in the Des Plaines is getting better, and officials of the MSD and the Forest Preserve District agree. But Blomgren bases his belief on the record of removing pollutants from the stream rather than on the water testing results.

Blomgren said fecal coliform concentrations exceeding 200 parts per milliliter (a standard measurement) are considered hazardous, and the Des Plaines test averages range from 30 to 130,000. Individual tests, particularly by the MSD, show coliform counts in the millions at times.

Natural pollution of the river also occurs, upsetting any conclusions that could be made through water testing. Blomgren said decaying leaves, which are common in the river because of overhanging trees all along its banks, contribute the same pollution as human waste.

Pollutants are harmful, even if not disease-bearing, because they use up oxygen in the water. Algae and organic sludge on the river bottom can use up almost all of the dissolved oxygen, rendering the water uninhabitable for fish and water life.

STUDIES OF THE river bottom in Cook County show life exists, but it is primarily limited to leeches, sludge worms, midge fly larvae, carp, and animals adapted to impure environments. Even the turbidity of the water is harmful to aquatic life. Animals, such as muskies, that strain water through gills to obtain food, cannot live in impure water. Game fish that depend on sight to feed are also eliminated by muddy water, and fish that require a gravel bottom to lay eggs find the mud and sludge of the Des Plaines inhospitable, according to Dave McGinty, fish biologist for the forest preserve.

The tranquil beauty of the Des Plaines River is still enough to stop a passerby for a moment.

A current report by the Illinois Department of Conservation shows fish life in the Lake County portion of the river to be fairly good. A 1967 survey found pirated perch and blackchin shiner in two places, indicating the river is not grossly polluted there. Because of the number of lakes and marshes in the area, many fish species were found, including forage minnows, largemouth bass, northern pike, grass pickerel, various panfish and carp.

Several weir dams on the river are part of a program to increase water depth in some areas and improve the fishing. Up to the early 1960s, the Des Plaines River dried up occasionally, killing thousands of fish and leaving smelly mud flats in the hot sun. Most of the dams were never built in Cook County because of World War II, when men and materials were diverted to the war effort.

Today's fish population is improving, McGinty said, based on his counts in Big Bend Lake, which has a link joining it with the river. Although the lake yields mostly black bullhead and carp, several bluegill, golden shiner, yellow perch and other species were found. A few small northern pike, channel catfish and bass were also counted in 1971.

ONCE THE BALANCE of nature is upset in the river, the entire ecology is disturbed. Animals that feed on the aquatic life go elsewhere or starve, and water birds find other feeding and nesting areas. McGinty and others interested in the river are hoping to turn that trend around.

The river remains in its natural state through much of Lake County. In few places does man encroach on the river, which is often in marshy flatland, and birds and animals abound.

Heron, hundreds of ducks, other water birds, muskrats and river bank dwellers are in obvious abundance in the nondeveloped areas. Wildlife also has managed to retain a niche in Cook County primarily because most of the riverbanks are included in forest preserve property.

If sewage effluent can be stopped completely and the river can be dredged of sludge deposits that lie thick on the bottom in places, the life cycle of the river may slowly return to its former condition.

If the water improves, McGinty says, better species of fish will work their way up from the Illinois River. That might be a slow process, but stocking the river is not feasible. As the fish return, they will draw more than fishermen, and the area may fill with a variety of birds and animals.

ALTHOUGH FISHERMEN have continued to ply the banks of the Des Plaines along much of its path through Cook County, their results are much less rewarding, both in types of fish caught and their sizes.

Swimming used to be popular at some of the dams, but that has been ruled out for years because of poor water quality. Swimmers used to be only part of the scenario of the river, which was an active part of early communities such as Des Plaines.

The river supported Indian communities, a few water mills, and in the early 1800s, settler Hiram Jefferson had a steamboat and a paddleboat that traveled the waters between Des Plaines and Riverside.

A leading advocate of the river's rebirth is Ralph Frese, owner of Chicago and Canoe Base and a member of the Cook County Clean Streams Commission. He doesn't foresee a return to the early days, but he does envision the river as a mecca for canoeists and naturalists.

The slow-flowing river is a natural for canoes, as evidenced by the annual Des Plaines River Canoe Marathon, now in its 17th year. Small dams along the way make a canoe journey exciting at times, but the route is primarily secluded and quiet, surrounded by trees and marshland.

FRESE ALSO HAS PLANS to enhance the river's attractiveness. Cursing developments that have pushed to the water's edge, including one sewage treatment plant near Libertyville, he hopes for changes that could make the river more fun.

One such dream is construction of an artificial whitewater rapids course at Dam No. 1 near Wheeling. He would also like to see a covered footbridge constructed on the abandoned limestone bridge pillars adjoining the Ryerson Conservation Area in southern Lake County.

Sanitary district figures show the Chicago and Calumet rivers with much higher concentrations of harmful pollutants, particularly chemicals that barely register in the Des Plaines. New sewage treatment requirements and banning of phosphate soaps in the Chicago areas have made significant advancements.

One MSD spokesman said the Des Plaines does seem to be the least damaged in the MSD, and the tests indicate that the water quality has tended to stabilize.

Experts seem to agree that if any river in the Chicago area can be saved, the Des Plaines seems to have the best chance.

THERE ARE STILL enough fish in the Des Plaines River to tempt the casual angler. Ronald Hallsten of Deerfield found time on a weekday afternoon to stop at Dam No. 1 in Wheeling to try his luck in the rapids below the dam. Although rough fish are most common in the river, a few bass still lurk in the depths.

Maine West trackmen top Central Suburban feature

by MIKE KLEIN

It hadn't been predicted, not even by Ron Brown who last week said, "I don't see any way Maine East can lose, do you?"

But Saturday, on the rain soaked track at Glenbrook South, Brown's Maine West Warriors gathered points in 12-of-17 events to nudge not only Maine East, but also runner-up Glenbrook North for Central Suburban track honors.

Final team scoring in a three-way race was Maine West 58, Glenbrook North 50 and Maine East 48. New Trier West placed a distant fourth with 28 points. Area school Maine North was 11th with three points.

Bill Klippert collected the sixth and seventh C.S.U. track titles of his fine varsity career to rank as one of three double winners on Saturday. Klippert won the 120 high hurdles (14.9) over Maine East's Bill Rizzo (14.9). He took the 330 low hurdles (30.1) over Highland Park's Chris Cameron (40.1).

Other double winners were Glenbrook

North's Ray Riha in the 100 dash (9.9) and 220 dash (21.6) plus New Trier West's Rod McClendon in the 440 dash (50.8) and long jump (21-9 1/2).

Riha's longer dash win was slightly wind aided but still became recognized as a new meet record, one of two that was set under the less than desirable conditions. Glenbrook North's Steve Chaplin cranked out a 4:23.9 mile for the other new mark. He beat Maine West's Joe Paul by 1.1 seconds.

Aside from Klippert, the winning Warriors had just two more individual winners. They were Dave Braun in the triple jump (41-7 1/4) and Greg Klebe in the half-mile run (1:57.1).

That work by Klippert, Braun and Klebe set the Warriors to an advantage over Maine East which managed only two firsts, those by Mike Smith in high jump (6-4) plus its half-mile relay team (1:31.9) of Mike Kallal, Scott Peota, Brian Nathanson and Sam Rea.

But title contender Glenbrook North had five winning efforts, including the two by Riha and Chaplin's record setting mile. Jon Stoll was a pole vault winner (13-0). The Spartans' Mike Kiepara, Riha, Bob Azzi and Curt Robertson won the 440 relay in 43.6 seconds.

So Maine West had some digging to get done and found points in many places. Head coach Brown was especially pleased with Rich Pawelko's fourth (1:58.3) in the half-mile run, Paul Mademann's fourth (4:28) in the mile and John Whipple's third (39-11 1/4) in the triple jump.

"We did a real good job of picking up some points where they were available," said Brown whose team did not have top sprinters Scott Unger, Steve Jacobson and Mark Siska due to injuries.

Other Warrior points came in the quarter-mile relay as West finished third (44.7), one notch behind Maine East (45.9). West runners were Kevin Skahan, Rudy Martinez, Art Mraz and Whipple. East used Kallal, Peota, Nathanson and Rea.

Skahan added a second (51.1) in the 440 dash, Bill Wadman was fourth (40.5) in 330 hurdles, Braun second in long jump (21-2), Mark Sykora fourth in pole vault (12-0) and Mike Klebe fifth (6-1) in high jump.

The Warriors also found second place mile relay points when Klippert, Greg Klebe, Pawelko and Randy Van Vleck ran 3:30. Jeff Klester (49-3 1/4) and Rich Phucienik (47-10 1/4) were four-five in shot put.

Maine East's top efforts included Bob Racanelli's second (51-4) in shot put behind Glenbrook South's John Mitmoen. Racanelli was beaten by three-quarters of an inch.

The Demons had thirds by Peota in 330 hurdles (40.1), Kallal in the 220 dash (22.2), Mike Haber in pole vault (12-6) and Rocky Reed in high jump (6-3).

Maine North's three points came from Mike Wilson's fourth (15.4) in 120 high hurdles and Bryan Becker's fifth (4:30.6) in the mile.

Gallagher takes 3rd, 4th in Suburban Catholic test

The St. Viator track team finished in a tie for eighth place and got soaked at the same time in the Suburban Catholic Conference meet at Marist High School Saturday.

Despite intermittent showers and thunderstorms, the meet was completed and East division powerhouses Marist and Notre Dame fought down to the wire for the team title. The Marist Redskins were ultimately victorious, spurred by John McCabe, who won both the 880-yard run (1:58.1) and the mile (4:28.9).

Marist totaled 78 points to Notre Dame's 68 and third-place Benet Academy's 35 1/2. Other team scores were Carmel 20, Marmion 16 1/2, Montini 14, Holy Cross 13, St. Viator, Immaculate Conception and St. Edward 7, St. Patrick 3, Marion Central 2, and St. Francis 1.

St. Viator's Tony Gallagher was responsible for five of his team's points. He captured a third spot in the high jump and he took a fourth in the triple jump. Another Lion, Bernie Borschke placed fourth in the 100-yard dash to round out the St. Viator scoring.

Other noteworthy performances in the rain were a 42-10 1/4 triple jump effort by Benet's Jim Havin, a long jump of 21-10 1/4 by Tom Griffin of Notre Dame, and a discus toss of 150-7 by Carmel's John Lecchesi.

SMALL BUT LOYAL. Randhurst's Twin Ice Arena holds just around 3,000 people, but it's a group that's solidly behind the Chicago Cougars. And some of these fans aren't afraid to put their feelings on posters. The Cougars dropped their opening round of the championship series Sunday to the Houston Aeros, 3-2.

Area all-star game set

A showdown between star pitcher Larry Monroe and stand-out hitter George Kaage while speedster Jeff Ironside readies to move on the basepaths?

Or perhaps ace moundman Buddy Hughes throwing bullets to one of the hard-hitting Bucaro boys as fleetfooted Jeff Ironside and Scott Scholten prepare to scamper around the sacks?

The scenario isn't real yet. But it could very well develop into a genuine situation when the area's top senior high school baseball players gather at Prospect Sunday, June 2 at 1 p.m. to face off in the first annual Hal Sprehe Memorial Baseball Game.

Lineups haven't been officially announced yet... they won't be until probably May 29. But the two 15-man units are bound to be the most talent-laden possible, resulting in what promises to be a showcase diamond affair.

The contest, sponsored through the Mount Prospect Park District, has been named for the well-known and well-respected Forest View varsity baseball coach whose untimely death occurred nearly five years ago to the day of this scheduled game.

All proceeds from the outing will go into a memorial fund bearing his name. Ticket sales at the gate will be $1 for adults, 50 cents for students and 25 cents for children.

Each of the two squads will be comprised of four pitchers, two catchers, five infielders and four outfielders and will be coached and managed by wives of local prep baseball mentors. Pitchers will not be allowed to work more than three innings each in the scheduled nine-inning event.

The South group will be made up of players from Conant, Elk Grove, Forest View, Prospect, Schaumburg and St. Viator while the North side will consist of athletes from Arlington, Fremd, Hersey, Palatine, Rolling Meadows and Wheeling.

College level umpires from out of state will be coming in to officiate.

And Mrs. Hal Sprehe will be in attendance to throw out the first ball.

Look for further details on the game in subsequent issues of the Herald.

ACCEPTING THEIR Eastern Division playoff trophy from James Browitt, executive administrator for the World Hockey Association, are Cougar president Walter Kaiser and player Reggie Fleming. The presentation was made Sunday before the Cougars lost their first game of the championship series to Houston, 3-2, at Randhurst's Twin Ice Arena.

Lions capture rain-shortened golf tournament

Golf Editor

One stroke held the fate for the St. Viator golf program yesterday in a rain-shortened version of the Suburban Catholic Conference Golf Meet at White Pines.

The varsity Lions of head coach Ken Peck overcame horrendous playing conditions created by drenching thunders to record a one-stroke victory over St. Edward of Elgin.

In a vote by participating athletic directors, the meet was curtailed after nine holes on both the varsity and frosh-soph levels of competition.

The decision wasn't as advantageous for the frosh-soph Lions who lost the trophy by a stroke to Carmel of Mundelein, 173-174.

"The kids were just soaked to the bone," Peck said of his linksmen. The varsity started out on the front nine on the south course and the frosh-soph on the back nine under ideal playing conditions this morning, but the rains came at about 10:30 and never let up."

The rain never hampered Viator's Kevin Hanigan who frolicked in the water for a sizzling par round of 34 to earn second medalist honors.

"I don't know how he did it," Peck said in admiration. "It got to the point where every club was slippery and you couldn't get a firm grip."

"We watched some of the kids coming in and all they could do was punch at the ball. The rain really limited their backswings, but Kevin played it very nicely."

So did the rest of the Lions who supported Hanigan's miraculous effort with key scores. Larry Peltier and Mike Fitton each carded identical two-over par 36's, Tom McEnerney notched 38, Jim Pavik 40, Greg Kay 41 and Tom Hermanson 41.

Counting the top four scores, the Lions earned the big trophy off a splendid 144 total, nipping St. Edward's 145 by a single shot.

Notre Dame was third with 148, Marian Catholic fourth with 152, Carmel and Immaculate Conception tied for fifth with 157's, St. Patrick seventh with 158, Benet eighth with 164, Driscoll ninth with 165, Montini 10th with 168, St. Francis de Sales 11th with 171 and Marmion 12th with 172.

The frosh-soph Lions didn't fare as well despite 43's by both Bob Cantieri and Bob Bettis. Jim Greisch and Chuck Lynch recorded 44's, Mike Allare and Fritz Schuler 45's and Tom McDonald 46.

In the frosh-soph standings, Carmel's winning 173 and Viator's runnerup 174 was followed by Marmion's 175, Benet's 176, Notre Dame's 184, St. Edward's 185, Driscoll's 192 and St. Francis' 221.

St. Edward's Brian Brey captured varsity medalist honors with a 33 while Carmel's Steve Castellani carded the frosh-soph gold medal with a 42.

SENDING THE BALL toward Arlington's doubles team is Fremd's Chris Laffey during play Saturday at Arlington's district tennis tourney. Laffey and Rich Courtney lost in the semifinals to Craig VanGorp and John Yee-zel, but the Viking twosome helped their school to second place behind the Cardinals, Fremd's best tourney finish.

... on district tourney play

Raindrops keep falling . . .

It would be nice to report that a full slate of district baseball tournament games was played yesterday under sunny skies.

It would be nice but . . .

Unfortunately, the weatherman stepped in once again and leveled another blow at the tourney schedule.

It's a day-by-day proposition right now. Weather — as usual — permitting, Forest View district will continue Tuesday with a doubleheader. Rolling Meadows will meet Forest View at the Falcon field and St. Viator and Hersey will tangle at the Hersey diamond. The Huskies already have beaten Arlington, 1-0, on Friday.

Barrington athletic director Bob Madding has decided to let the weather play out its string at his district.

"I called the coaches involved in our district and told them I wasn't going to schedule anything until one o'clock on the next sunny day," the Broncos' top sports man told the Herald.

Rain on Monday washed out the Conant-Schaumburg contest and affected the plans for the remainder of the tourney. "We had hoped to play a doubleheader Monday," Madding continued. "I'm sick and tired of calling people and cancelling games, so now the only calls I'm going to make are to the weather bureau."

Madding suggested that if Tuesday's predictions for all-day showers are accurate, no games will be played on Barrington's field until Thursday at the earliest. One game has already been played — Fremd lost to Barrington, 7-1, Friday.

At the Lake Park district tourney, the schedule has been pushed back another day. No games have been played as yet at Lake Park. Elk Grove's game against the winner of the Glenbard North vs. Driscoll contest will be put off until at least Wednesday.

Prospect's date with Maine North in the Maine West district was cancelled a third time. Originally slated for last Thursday, it was also washed out on Saturday.

No games have been played in that tournament. North and Prospect are scheduled for this afternoon. On Wednesday, it'll be their winner against Notre Dame plus Maine East against Maine West. One game will probably occur on Maine East's diamond.

At Wheeling's district, the host school will play Deerfield this afternoon at 4:00 with Stevenson and Highland Park playing at the latter's field. The championship game is scheduled for Wednesday at Wheeling.

Don't bet on any of this happening, and don't rely on those evening weather reports.

They said Sunday evening that Monday would be sunny and warmer.

Pros, amateurs to play in golf tournament

A number of well known Chicago area professional football players headed by Palatine's Jim Grabowski will play golf for charity Thursday at Inverness Golf Club.

The occasion is the second annual Sellstrom Invitational Golf Tourney, sponsored by Sellstrom Manufacturing Co., Palatine, manufacturers of safety glasses and other eye, ear, face and head protective equipment.

The 18-hole outing brings together a large contingent of safety equipment distributors from across the country who will join present and former grid stars in mixed foursomes.

Among the players rounded up by former Packers and Bears' great Grabowski, now Sellstrom's director of quality control, are Zeke Bratkowski, Bobby Douglass, Doug Buffone, Dave Hale, Greg Schumacher, Bob Jeter, Glen Holloway, Jim Seymour, Bob Parsons, Wally Chambers and Bob Asher.

Tee-off time is 9:30 a.m. for the four-somes. Prizes will be awarded at a victory dinner that evening at the club. Proceeds from the event will go to the National Society For the Prevention of Blindness.

It's us. Or rust.

Bring your new car to us soon after you buy it, and we'll really rustproof it. Inside the boxed-in areas of the body as well as underneath. (It takes nine patented spray tools to do a job like that.)

When we're done, we'll give you a 5-year/50,000-mile money-back guarantee against rust-through.

Or don't bring your new car to us. And expect to have the body start rusting to pieces from the inside out in a couple of years. Because no car is really rustproofed at the factory. Real rustproofing has to be done after a car is welded and bolted together. It just can't be done on the assembly line.

Delay seen for Mill Creek park site gift

by JOE FRANZ

It may be several weeks before Buffalo Grove officials learn whether they will get a six-acre park site donation from Miller Builders Inc., for Mill Creek.

"The request, unfortunately, is still in a status quo situation and will be until the end of the month," said Chester Moskal of the firm Monday. "At that time we will have a definite answer for the village."

Moskal said Miller officials are reviewing various ways of financing the final phase of the development and should decide on one soon. After that is decided, he said, the firm will reevaluate the project and determine whether it would be financially feasible to grant the village's request.

Residents in the Mill Creek area asked for additional park land about 16 months ago, but so far the request has not gotten past the talking stage. Moskal said in January that his firm would have a decision on the park in February.

MOSKAL WOULD not speculate Monday on whether his firm is likely to donate additional park land to the village. "I wish I had a crystal ball and could tell you what the decision will be," he said. Although Moskal has been noncommittal about the donation from the start, he said earlier there was a good possibility it would be granted.

Trustee Edward Osmon, chairman of a special committee which has met with Miller Builders, recently said he plans to reopen talks to consider the park donation.

Under the plan already approved by the village, Miller Builders is not required to provide any park land in the final phase of the development. The only park in Mill Creek is a 5.5-acre site adjacent to Irving School.

Residents have asked for additional park land, however, because the Irving site has poor drainage and is flooded much of the time.

LAST JULY, AFTER numerous meetings, Miller Builders offered the village a 3.5-acre park. The village board, however, turned down the offer. It was turned down, because Miller, in exchange for the park, wanted permission to change its plan to include four-story buildings and a two acre convenience shopping center.

Board members told Miller to go ahead with its plan for two-story apartments. Although no park land is provided in that plan, the board said the two-story buildings would be less objectionable than four-story buildings and a shopping center.

After the village board's rejection of the proposal, the park district and a number of homeowners asked Miller Builders to consider the current proposal for a six-acre park. Moskal said his firm agreed to consider it because it is interested in satisfying the homeowners.

Moskal said the park will be granted providing his firm will still be able to receive an adequate profit on the development. The size of the park can be increased, he said, providing an acceptable density can be achieved. A larger park may necessitate four-story buildings, he added.

Many residents have asked for a larger park because they believe the 3.5-acre site would be too small to be of much benefit.

Apartment burglary nets thief $800

Two envelopes containing $800 cash were stolen last week from a bedroom dresser in Betty Venturini's residence, 213 Lincoln Ter., Buffalo Grove police said.

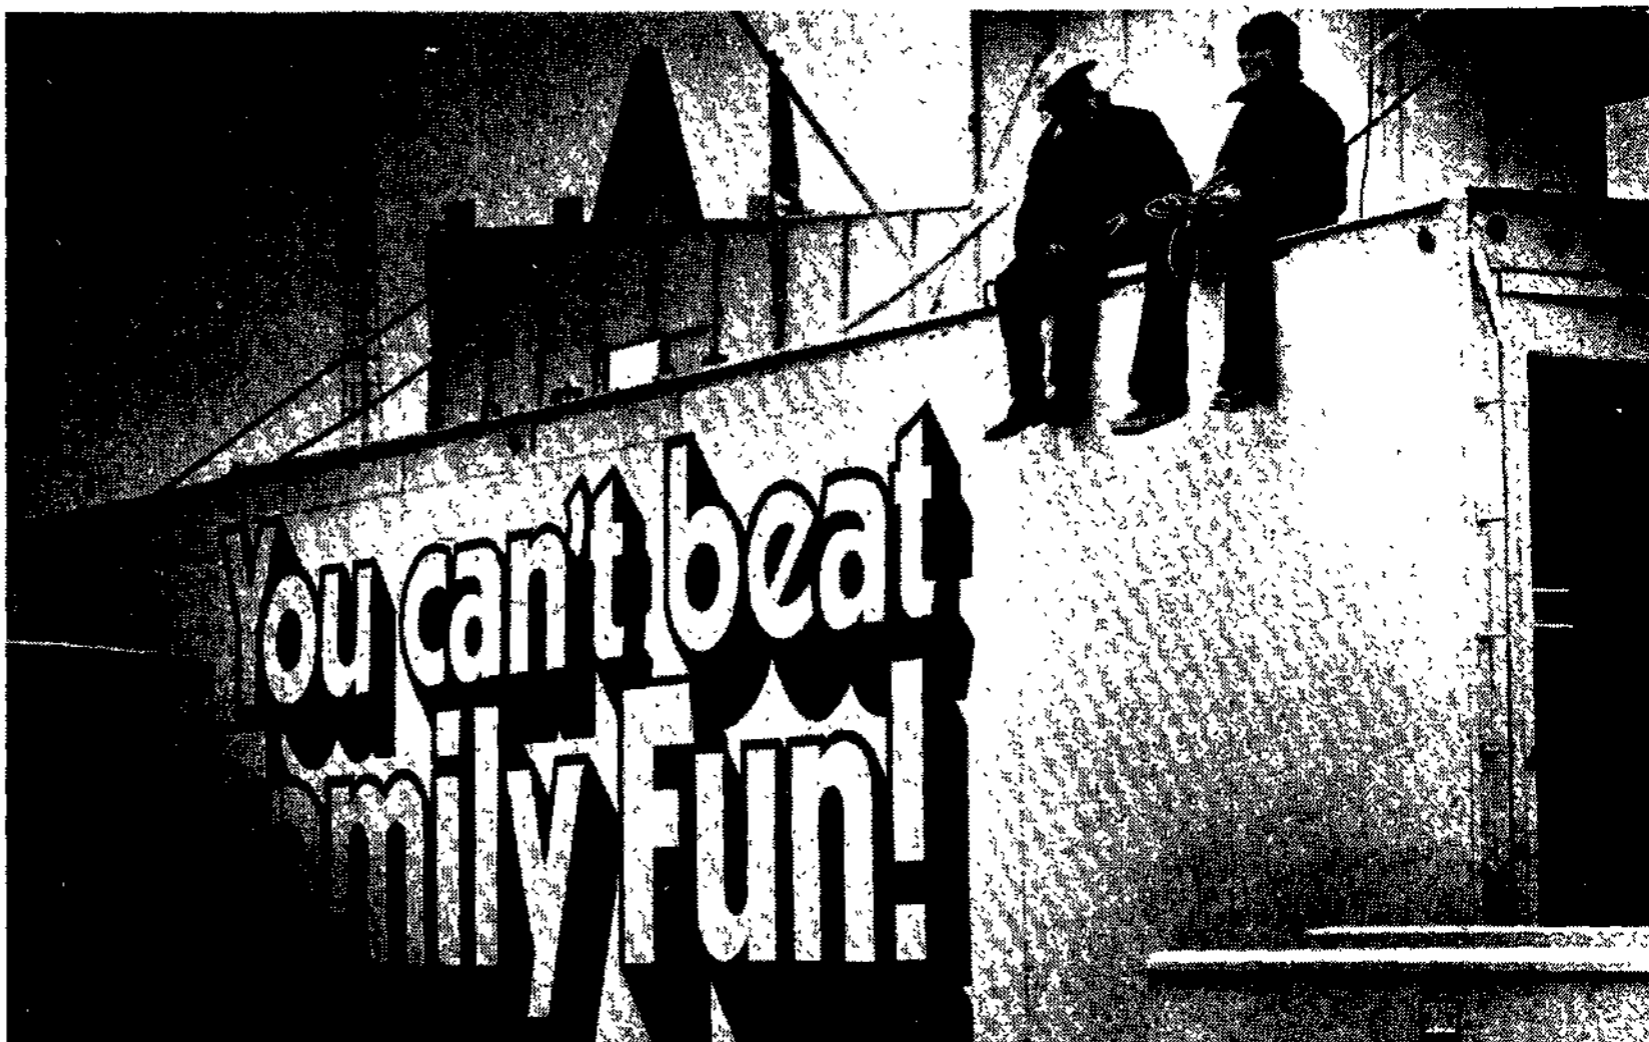

Police said the burglary occurred between 6 p.m. Wednesday and 10 p.m. Friday, but was reported Sunday. The dresser appeared the only thing disturbed, police said, adding they could find no sign of forced entry.

Junior Woman's Club gives parks $200

The Buffalo Grove Junior Woman's Club has donated $200 to the park district for the purpose of landscaping the entrance to the Kilmer Park play area.

Rita Guttman, president of the group, and Judy Wicher presented the money to the park board last week. Last fall the Junior Woman's Club donated $200 to the park district for landscaping at Willow Stream Park.

The club conducts fund-raising campaigns throughout the year and donates all proceeds to community projects.

Expansion of services ahead?

Omni-House planning for 1974-75

by JILL BETTNER

Omni-House: Youth Services Bureau, Wheeling, is in the process of planning and budgeting for next year, with an eye on expanding the services of the local counseling agency.

Although Omni-House receives most of its local support from Wheeling and Buffalo Grove, the bureau also serves Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect and Prospect Heights.

"Our emphasis will continue to be on programs to benefit youth and the rest of the community," said Peter Digre, Omni-House executive director. He projects a 1974-75 budget of about $187,000, up $14,000 from the current $173,000.

By increasing next year's budget, Digre said the agency hopes to expand several programs and add some new services.

ONE OF THE PROGRAMS that will probably be expanded is the outreach group activities. Omni-House organized 22 outreach groups at London, Cooper and Holmes junior high schools in Dist. 21, MacArthur Junior High School, Prospect Heights, Dist. 23 and at Wheeling and Hersey high schools this year. The groups, under the supervision of Omni-House counselors, plan and participate in a variety of recreational activities.

Several of the outreach groups will stay together this summer and plan camping trips around the Midwest and to Canada. Because of the great response to the outreach groups program, Digre said Omni-House will attempt to establish more groups at area schools next fall.

Family counseling programs will be expanded next year, Digre said, and the agency may provide crisis intervention training for area police departments.

Watch commanders and sergeants in the Buffalo Grove Police Department recently completed a 30-hour training program conducted by Omni-House and the Northwest Center for Human Resources. Digre said the agency will respond to requests from other police departments for similar training.

A community services program for area high school students also will probably be expanded, Digre said.

Since January, Wheeling High School students have been working in local Dist. 21 elementary schools, at the Wheeling village hall, Addolorata Villa and various small businesses for about an hour each day. The students receive credit for the work which is intended to give them opportunities to learn about various careers.

NEXT YEAR, Digre said Buffalo Grove High School students will also be able to take advantage of the program.

"The purpose of the program is to tie education into concrete experiences," he commented. "It's also an opportunity to integrate kids into productive roles in the community."

The counseling center is also considering operating a youth employment agency to help local teens find summer jobs and a new program to provide recreation for youngsters in local apartment complexes.

Digre said financially, the agency is finishing its second year of operation in good shape.

"We worked out head off to raise over $100,000 to make it this year," Digre said. "It hasn't been easy, but it looks as though we're going to survive."

THE LARGE AMOUNT of local fund raising has been necessary and will be even more important next year because the Illinois Law Enforcement Commission (ILEC) financial support is decreasing, according to Digre.

1,600 get their bikes checked

More than 1,600 adults and youngsters turned out Saturday at locations throughout Buffalo Grove to have their bikes inspected. The inspections were part of the village's bicycle safety program.

Police Chief Harry Walsh, who along with the Buffalo Grove Junior Woman's Club and several other local organizations was instrumental in getting the program off the ground, said he was "very pleased" with the turnout. "In some parts of the village, the response was just fantastic, while in other parts it was not as good. But overall I think it was a good turnout."

In addition to the bike inspections, Walsh said about 950 residents were given licenses for their bikes. This brings the total number of licensed bikes in the village to about 5,000, he said.

THE VILLAGE BOARD recently passed an ordinance that requires licensing of all bikes by June 1. Licenses are available at the police station, 50 Raupp Blvd. They are free and should be affixed to the frame under the bike seat.

Besides licenses, the new bike ordinance provides for warning tickets for children and tickets that carry fines for adults (17 and older) who are found in violation of traffic laws.

Under the ordinance, adults could be fined no less than $5 and no more than $500 for each violation. Walsh has suggested the fines be set at $5. Police will send letters to the parents of children who receive warning tickets.

Following the safety inspections, all bike owners received a list of all points checked and notations on corrective action that should be taken. The cyclists also were given pamphlets on bike safety and maintenance.

Organizers of the program have said they hope to hold the bike inspections every year as the highlight of village Bicycle Safety Week.

School board, teacher groups reach pay accord

Bargaining teams for the Dist. 21 school board and Wheeling Faculty Council Monday reached agreement on the 1974-75 contract for local teachers. Dist. 21 Assoc. Supt. John Berger, representing the school board in the talks, refused to comment on the terms of the contract. Berger said only that the two negotiating teams had agreed on a general package.

The associate superintendent said details on the contract would be released after the package is presented to the school board and to the faculty council. The teacher's group is reportedly scheduled to meet to discuss the agreement and vote on whether to accept it Thursday.

Monday's settlement came exactly one week after the faculty council declared an impasse in the talks, refusing a 12 per cent pay increase offered by the school board. The teachers had requested a 12.2 per cent pay hike, plus a $50 increase in the annual salaries paid to local instructors for supervising extra-curricular activities.

At the encouragement of Dist. 21 superintendent Kenneth Gill, the teachers agreed to return to the bargaining table last Wednesday, where new proposals were exchanged.

There was no real fire, but this is how one would have been put out.

Many park programs offered

niques for persons at least 10 years of age will begin June 24 at Emmerich Park. The eight-week course will be taught by Deborah Harrington and the fee is $8.

Belly dancing will also be offered at Emmerich Park, to be taught by instructor Doris Val. The fee is $16 and the class size is limited to 25.

FOR SPORTS enthusiasts, the park district offers a variety of activities.

A baseball clinic will be open to boys in grades two through six, beginning the week of June 24 and continuing through the week of Aug. 12. At the end of the fourth week, boys will be grouped into teams for informal competition.

Basic skills and fundamentals in 12-inch slow-pitch softball with mits will be available to girls in grades five through seven beginning June 25. The class is limited to 20.

Both boys' and girls' gymnastics will be offered for preschool through high school-age students. Preschool and kindergarten classes will be taught at Emmerich Park. Other classes will be at Buffalo Grove High School.

Boys' basketball will be offered at the Buffalo Grove High School fieldhouse and include development of skills and informal scrimmage. The class is open to boys in grades five through eight and begins June 17 through Aug. 1. Paul Grady, varsity basketball coach at Buffalo Grove High School, will be the instructor.

BOB TIPSWORD, wrestling coach at Cooper Junior High School, will conduct a four-week class for boys that begins July 16 at Cooper. The fee is $4 and the class is limited to 30.

Two three-week sessions of golf instruction for boys and girls ages 10 through 14 and adults ages 15 or older will be available.

Golf for youngsters begins June 25 and adult classes start July 16. The adult classes will be taught by professionals Al Griffith and Carmen Molinaro.

Tennis for beginners and intermediates in grades four through eight will begin June 24 at Willow Stream Park and Kilmor School Park. Beginning instruction for adults will also be offered on the courts at Buffalo Grove High School. The fee for tennis classes is $4.

Self-defense will be taught in judo classes open to children age 10 or older in classes scheduled at Emmerich Park. Susumu Higa is the instructor and the fee is $7.50.

Individuals or couples may enroll in bridge classes for both beginners and intermediates. The course will cover the most popular conventions such as Stayman, Blackwood and Gerber and include instruction in bidding, declare play and defense.

IN ADDITION to classes, the park district will operate summer playground programs at several local schools, including Alcott, Kilmor, Longfellow, Tarlington, Willow Grove and Irving.

The playground programs are open to children in grades one through six and the fee is $12.

A day-camp program will be available to boys and girls in grades three through six. Groups will meet from 10 a.m. to 3:45 p.m. and activities will be conducted at Willow Grove School Park, Raupp Memorial Farm Park and Willow Stream Park. The emphasis will be on vigorous activity and outdoor education.

Day-camp sessions are scheduled Monday through Friday beginning July 1 through July 19 and July 22 through Aug. 8. The fee is $18 per session.

A complete schedule of park district summer activities may be obtained at the park district office.

Water fights, a simulated bus accident, a fake department store fire and a simulated two-car accident brought Fire Recognition Week to a close Saturday at Mount Prospect's Randhurst Shopping Center.

Some 35 fire departments from the north, northwest and west suburban areas participated in the fourth annual Outdoor Thrill and Skill Show, which ran for two hours Saturday afternoon.

The Bloomington Fire Department won the water fight trophy.

In addition to the skill show, visitors to the shopping center were able to view 40 of the newest pieces of firefighting equipment.

The Mount Prospect volunteer firemen had their annual ball Saturday night in the shopping center mall. Throughout the preceding week various fire safety presentations were given inside the shopping center.

New methods must be considered

Garbage disposal posing a problem for city's future

by STEVE BROWN

Des Plaines officials will probably be looking for another place to dump their trash in the next five years unless alternative means of garbage disposal are found.

The problem of finding new methods for the disposal of waste material was cited as a high priority matter for study by Des Plaines Mayor Herbert Behrel in his 1973 annual report, released Monday.

Behrel noted that John Sexton Co. landfill, currently used by the city, will probably be closed within four or five years.

HE CALLED FOR renewed discussion with Sexton and a study to determine other means of disposing of garbage in the future.

Behrel's call for a study of garbage disposal methods was echoed Monday by Richard Tabatt of the city's environmental commission.

"Unless the city does something about this in the near future it could cause problems," Tabatt said.

Behrel, who is vacationing in Arizona, was not available to elaborate on the comments he made in his annual report.

Tabatt suggested the city might explore the possibility of attacking the garbage disposal problem on a regional basis with surrounding communities.

HE SAID THAT Des Plaines and other towns might look at constructing an incinerator which would meet state and federal environmental regulations. Rolling Meadows officials are currently considering the construction of an incinerator which has an estimated price tag of $1.2 million.

"A number of the North Shore communities already have a cooperative program like this," he said.

However, he noted that operation of the incinerator might be uneconomical for just one town to operate.

"Usually those types of operations must be run 24-hours per day to justify the initial cost of the incinerator," he said.

Tabatt also said there are a number of other alternatives available to the city. He indicated that a possible agreement might be reached with Commonwealth Edison Co. to purchase the refuse so that it could be burned to generate power.

EDISON IS CURRENTLY building a plant in conjunction with Chicago to burn refuse to generate electricity.

The city council agreed last week to have a 4½-month study of the current recycling program in order to determine how much money could be derived.

Nab two youths for booze, pot; clerk charged

Two youths and a man were arrested after police said one of the youths purchased liquor at a Des Plaines liquor store illegally and marijuana was found later in his auto.

Police said Jerry Hutchinson, 18, of 816 Nebel Ln., was taken into custody outside Packy's Liquor Store, 1440 Oakton St., after the alleged illegal purchase.

He was charged with possession of alcohol and possession of marijuana, after police later discovered the substance in his auto.

Also arrested on similar charges was Wayne Richardson, 18, reportedly with Hutchinson at the time.

A store clerk, George Corcoran, 23, 1419 Cora St., Des Plaines was charged with selling liquor to a minor.

Hutchinson and Richardson were taken into custody Sunday evening after a Des Plaines patrolman became suspicious of Hutchinson as he was leaving the store with a package.

The three were released on bond and will appear June 27 in the Des Plaines branch of Cook County Circuit Court.

Secretary of State starts probe of Imperial

Investigators for Illinois Secretary of State Michael Howlett have begun a probe into the operation of a company incorporated as a possible front for the scandal-ridden Imperial Investors International Inc. of Des Plaines.

The probe, which was sparked by Herald disclosures last month, centers around the incorporation of Midwest Innovations, which contends it does business at 912 W. Touhy Ave., Park Ridge.

In April, The Herald disclosed that the Touhy Avenue address contained a pet shop and an answering service. Employees at the answering service indicated that Midwest Innovations did not maintain offices there and that all mail and telephone calls for the company were forwarded to the offices of Imperial at 2250 E. Devon Ave., Des Plaines.

Imperial, M.I. and another apparent front company, Product Development Services, have been the topics of a continuing Herald investigation since late 1972. All three companies claim to offer marketing and development advice to inventors. Five present and former Imperial officials have been indicted on federal mail fraud charges and charged by Illinois Atty. Gen. William J. Scott with violation of the state consumer fraud act.

INVESTIGATORS ARE NOW attempting to determine the legitimacy of MI's articles of incorporation. The state requires that the company name a registered agent as its representative and that the articles of incorporation include the agent's name and address.

Documents filed by MI with the secretary of state indicate that "J. Jones" is the registered agent for the company and the Park Ridge address as its office.

Repeated calls by the Herald to the answering service and pet shop at the address revealed there was no "J. Jones" there.

Imperial officials have repeatedly refused to comment on the relationship between Imperial, MI and PDS. Sources close to the operation of the company indicated that employees work simultaneously for all three companies.

Under state law, if a corporation fails to correctly report the name and address of its registered agent, the secretary of state can request the Illinois attorney general to involuntarily dissolve the corporation.

Motel lounge nude dancing case

Obscenity charges ordered dropped

Obscenity charges against three remaining defendants in a case involving nude dancing at a motel lounge in unincorporated Maine Township were ordered dropped Monday.

The women, all exotic dancers at the Upstairs Lounge of the Dolphin Hotel, 9550 W. Golf Rd., had been charged on a total of five counts of performing obscene dances.

Associate Judge John Gannon ordered the counts stricken with leave to restate in the Des Plaines branch of Cook County Circuit Court against Sharon Magee, Melinda Zollicoffer and Debbie Schroeder.

Assistant State's Atty. John B. Adams said yesterday he asked the charges be dropped because the guilty verdicts returned last month against the husband of the lounge owner and two other dancers "accomplished what we wanted to in the case."

"WE WERE INTERESTED in stopping the situation as it was and we obtained that with the conviction," he added.

The women were not present for the court session but their attorney, Julius Echeles asked for a jury trial in the matter and objected to the state's motion to drop the charges.

"I accused the state of violating the right of the defendant to a trial by jury," he said Monday.

"But the girls will keep on dancing and the police will just have to keep arresting until we get a jury trial," he said.

Cook County Sheriff's Police vice unit investigators raided the lounge on three occasions last March arresting five dancers and John Cardamon, 42, of Des Plaines, husband of the lounge owner.

THE RAIDS PROMPTED Echeles to ask a Cook County Circuit Court judge for a restraining order stopping the arrests until the matter was decided in court, on the grounds that repeated arrests were hurting the lounge's business. The request was denied April 11.

Cardamon was later convicted of two charges of presenting obscene performances and was fined a total of $400.

Two other dancers, Linda Better, 25, and Cora Stalle, 31, were also found guilty of obscene dances and ordered to pay $300 in fines last week in Niles court.

Echeles said, however, he is in the process of appealing the guilty verdict and will take it to the Supreme Court if necessary.

City, Mount Prospect back in court over boundaries

It's back to court again for Mount Prospect and Des Plaines in the latest episode in their ongoing boundary dispute.

This time, Mount Prospect is seeking to sue Des Plaines over control of a 10-acre undeveloped parcel southwest of Elmhurst and Algonquin roads, plus the Waterfall restaurant property on the west side of Elmhurst just north of Algonquin.

The legal action is the latest move in the tug-of-war over property near Elmhurst and Algonquin roads that has characterized relations between Mount Prospect and Des Plaines.

Pending before Cook County Circuit Court Judge Arthur L. Dunne is a Des Plaines effort to use Mount Prospect over a 37-acre parcel in the same general area, on the east side of Elmhurst Road. Arguments in that case are scheduled to be heard June 4.

The 10-acre piece of property, in unincorporated Elk Grove Township, was annexed to Des Plaines last Nov. 19, and subsequently to Mount Prospect, Nov. 30.

IN ASKING THE court to rule favorably on its quo warranto petition, Mount Prospect is seeking the court's permission to sue Des Plaines, contending its annexation of the property was legally improper.

Des Plaines had been enjoined from annexing the two-acre Wilkin Insulation Co. property adjacent to the 10-acre lot because Wilkin had filed a petition for voluntary annexation to Mount Prospect. The Wilkin property had not been officially annexed to Mount Prospect, however, so Mount Prospect officials contend that Des Plaines' annexation of the 10-acre parcel was improper. The land can be involuntarily annexed only when it is surrounded by property in a municipality.

Efforts by Mount Prospect and Des Plaines officials to reach an out-of-court compromise over the 37-acre dispute fell through few weeks ago, and no out-of-court settlement is likely on the latest suit.

Local youth to face theft charges

A Des Plaines youth was arrested Monday and charged with the theft of nearly $100 in toys owned by Playskool Co., 30 E. Oakton St., Des Plaines.

According to Des Plaines Police Sgt. Robert Sturini, the youth, John Meyers, 17, was arrested at his home at 1418 Danbury Ln. He was charged with theft.

According to reports, Meyers is one of two youths seen Sunday taking the boxes, later found to contain Playskool toys. The boxes were found in a garage in back of Meyers' home.

The toys were allegedly taken from a railroad boxcar near the building.

Police also said yesterday a stove and a refrigerator valued at $500 were stolen from a mobile home at 140 River Rd.

The owner, James Marlowe, 6662 Scott Ln., in Hanover Park told police the theft probably occurred last week.

County board officials skip meeting with homeowners

A meeting between area homeowners and representatives of the Cook County Board was called off when the commissioners failed to appear.

Officials of the Cook County Congress of Homeowners Assn., an organization that represents homeowners' groups from unincorporated areas all over the county, were to discuss zoning matters and a number of other problems affecting homeowners Saturday.

Albert Sompolski, an official of the group, said he asked county board members Floyd Fulle, Joseph Woods, Charles F. Chaplin and Carl Hansen to attend.

Sompolski said Fulle's office notified him a few days ago that Fulle would be unable to attend because he would be in the hospital for tests.

HOMEOWNERS in the unincorporated areas of Maine Township are concerned with zoning matters in the area and want more control to be exercised over what several groups' members consider too much commercial development.

They also contend that unchecked development and building is causing police and fire departments serving the area to be overworked.

Jack Gilligan, president of the Congress, said he doubts the meeting between homeowners and county officials would be rescheduled.

"I'm sorry they didn't come, but I think they made a mistake," he said.

The local scene

Film on Pony Express set

An adventurous and romantic aspect of Americana will be presented by MONA-CEP when Roy Coy narrates his color motion picture "The Pony Express Trail" at Maine West High School, Oakton and Wolf Road, Des Plaines, at 8 p.m. Thursday.

From Missouri to California, Roy Coy has filmed the West that the Pony Express riders saw — and much they didn't see. History, wildlife and beautiful scenery are interspersed with covered wagon trains, pioneers, riders, stations, and monuments all along one of the greatest of American trails.

Born in St. Joseph, Mo., the "jumping off" place of the Pony Express, Coy has had a lifelong interest in this subject. For many years, he was director of the St. Joseph and Pony Express Museums and the Denver Museum.

Armchair travelers may purchase tickets for the lecture on the evening of the performance. Single admissions are $1.20. Senior citizens of Maine and Niles Townships who are 60 years of age or over may purchase single admissions for 60 cents.

Journalism students feted

The Northern Illinois School Press Assn. honored three Maine North High School students for excellence in the field of journalism. Members of the Polaris staff receiving awards were Connie Theodore, Mark Pullinger and Scott Jensen.

Connie Theodore, a junior and editor of the Polaris, was honored with an award for outstanding excellence in the field of editorial writing for her editorial, "U.S. Energy Barrel Runs Low."

Also honored was Mark Pullinger, a junior and photography editor of the Polaris, for his candid photos of the winter carnival.

Polaris' cartoonist Scott Jensen received an award for outstanding achievement in the field of original cartoons for his cartoon dealing with the energy crisis.

Free bingo for seniors

Senior citizens of Maine Township are invited to a bingo game June 1 at Maine East High School, Park Ridge.

Doors will open at 12:30 p.m. and games will begin at 1 p.m. The games sponsored by the Maine Township Regular Democratic Organization will give senior citizens an opportunity to have an afternoon of relaxation and fun at no cost to them.

Speech team holds dinner

Maine West High School's individual events speech team entertained parents and friends at a recent potluck dinner in the school cafeteria.

The speech team entertained with a skit and individual dramatic interpretations, an original comedy speech and a readers' theater presentation of "The World of Carl Sandburg." Special recognition was given to Mariann Sullivan and Bruce Nelson, team coaches.

How to communicate topic

Elam Nunnally, assistant professor at the School of Social Welfare, University of Wisconsin, Milwaukee, will present an introductory lesson in the development of communication skills used to enrich a marriage at the final program of the Psychological Challenges series at Maine South High School, 1111 S. Dee Rd., Park Ridge, on Tuesday at 8 p.m.

The title of his presentation is "The You . . . The Me . . . The Us." He asserts that communication is an important part of every marriage, yet every couple has not mastered the skill.

Single admission to the program is $1.50. Senior citizens who are 60 years of age and over and are residents of Maine and Niles Townships may purchase tickets for half price. Tickets may be purchased on the evening of the performance.

Summer school sessions signup closes May 30

Special interest courses ranging from cooking to Spanish enrichment will highlight Dist. 62's 12th annual summer school session.

Registration closes May 30 for the five-week session which begins June 20. Tuition fees for most courses is $30 per program with a $35 fee for personalized instruction programs and $20 for instrumental music.

In addition to individualized programs in reading and math, the district will offer a post-kindergarten program for youngsters who need additional help with learning skills.

Dist. 62 will also provide small group instruction for band students as well as full band rehearsals to provide experience playing in large groups. The lessons will be scheduled around the other summer school classes. The orchestra program will also offer student group lessons and rehearsals.

ALSO SCHEDULED for the summer school program is a cooking course for boys and girls. Students will take part in baking, menu planning, outdoor cooking and other related activities.

Students will also get a chance to learn the basics of macrame, knitting, crocheting and needlepoint in a creative handicrafts course.

A Spanish-enrichment program will be open to students in fourth through sixth grade. It will include activities such as singing, dancing, crafts and cooking. No previous exposure to Spanish is necessary.

Students will also get a chance to study foreign lands in the "Follow the Sun" program. Participants in the course will select a foreign land for independent study activities, including map, math, vocabulary, written communications, art and research skills.

The "Exploring Inner Space" course will offer students a chance to read a wide variety of material including science fiction, tall tales, mysteries, fairy tales, animal stories, historical fiction, adventures and poetry.

THE "LEARNING by Doing" program provides students a variety of experiences including work with wood and electrical projects, small engine care, bicycle repair, terrarium building, ceramic tile projects and common hand tools. The course is open to both boys and girls.

The district also will offer students a course to develop career awareness and exploration. Entitled "Come Work With Us," the program will acquaint youngsters with different career opportunities and options.

For further information on the summer school program, contact the Dist. 62 administration at 824-1136.

Citizens' panel to review building report

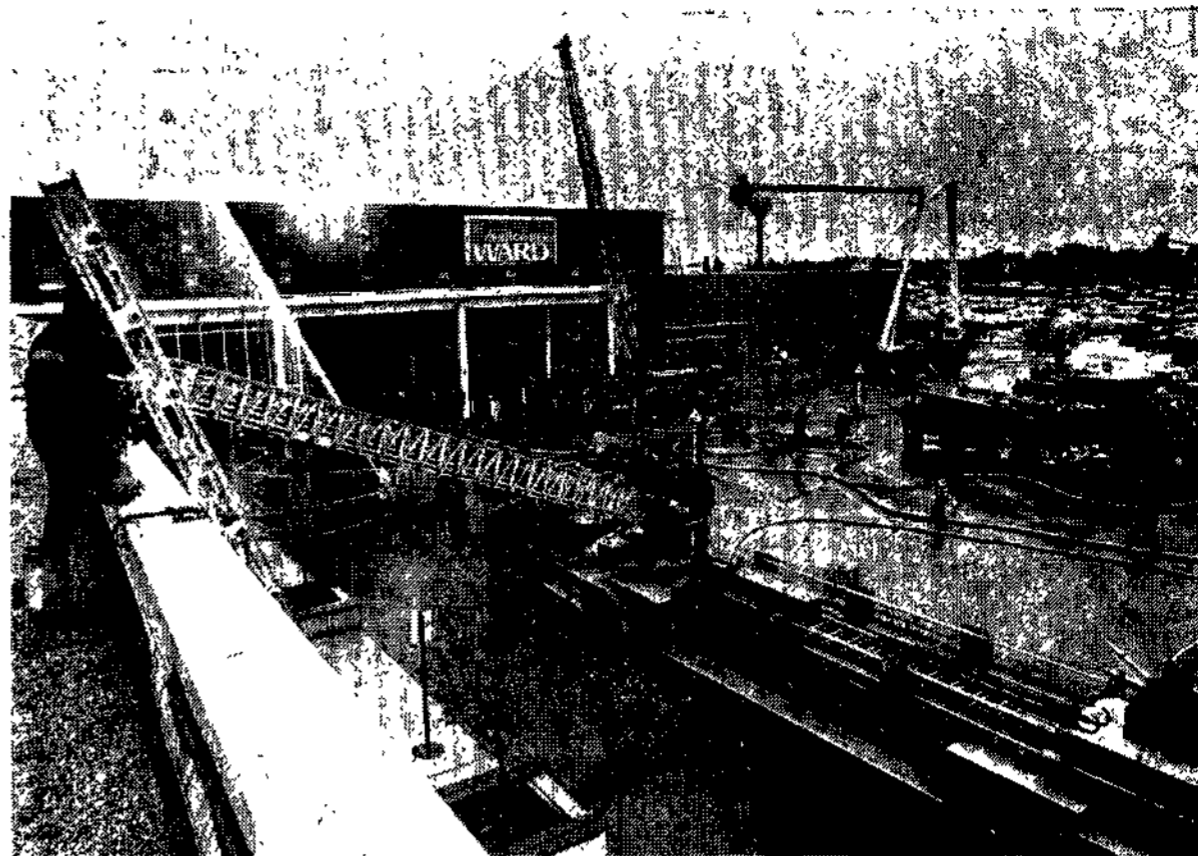

A citizens' committee has been organized in Dist. 26 to review Supt. John Fridlund's report on building facilities and make further recommendations to the school board.

In his report, issued in March, Fridlund said current facilities at many district schools have not been able to keep up with expanded programs.

"As the programs of the district have expanded, the need for housing such programs or functions has taken, for lack of a better description, a 'jerry-built' approach," Fridlund said in his report.

A 13-member committee has been invited to discuss the report and ways of improving current space usage to better accommodate school programs.

The committee will meet next Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. at the administration office, 1900 E. Kensington, Mount Prospect.

More services, no tax hike: officials

$6.8 million village budget goes before board today

Elk Grove Village officials are expected to give approval to the 1974 budget tonight which gives residents new services without a tax boost.

Preliminary figures reveal a $100,000 surplus for the village this year. The surplus is the prime reason behind the likelihood of no tax increase for the 1974-75 fiscal year.

Board members tonight will act on approval of a proposed $6.8 million budget. The figure represents anticipated expenditures in the general fund, water and sewer operating budget, Civil Defense and expenditures of federal revenue sharing funds.

The village expects to receive approximately $6.9 million in revenue from taxes and federal revenue sharing funds.

TONIGHT'S ACTION on the budget ends weeks of budget committee meetings headed by committee chairman George Spees.

Department heads reviewed their budget requests with the committee and in almost all but one incident the committee gave little indication of approval or disapproval of requests.

The committee and other officials attending the fire department budget review were critical of a request of $80,000 for a new engine for an unbuild station.

Most departments had asked for 15 per cent cost of living wage increases with the village manager recommending a 10 per cent cost of living wage increase.

Specialized civilian personnel for police work and preventive programs for police and fire departments are some of the programs requested by department heads.

The proposed budget shows a 22 per cent increase over last year's budget with nearly 80 per cent of the budget dealing with salaries and contractual services.

IN ADDITION TO salary increases for village personnel the village manager, department heads and key professional staffers will be considered for raises.

During committee meetings, the village manager recommended in addition to the 10 per cent salary increase, adding 14 persons to the police department, 13 to the fire department, two to the utilities departments and four part-time positions in the corporate budget.

Park boards to meet on 170-acre purchase

Board members from the Elk Grove and Schaumburg park districts plan to meet Thursday to discuss about 170 acres of primarily undeveloped land now in the Schaumburg district. The land is being sought by the Elk Grove Park District.

Schaumburg Park District officials aren't happy about the prospects of losing the tract located in Elk Grove Village, but under recently passed state law, there may not be much they can do to stop the Elk Grove district from taking the tract.

Under the law, land in one district can be put in another park district's jurisdiction if the land is within that village's boundaries and owners of the land petition to enter the district.

The tract in question is in Elk Grove Village. Its owner, Centex Corp., is almost certain to petition to enter the Elk Grove Park District.

THE LAND BEING sought by the Elk Grove Park District is between Plum Grove and Meacham roads about one half mile south of Schaumburg Road.

Jack Claes, director of parks and recreation for the Elk Grove Park District, said one of the reasons his district is seeking the land is to make park district and village boundaries the same.

Claes added the switch would also help lessen the confusion in the area. Although residents of Elk Grove Village, persons living in the area attend Dist. 54 schools and High School Dist. 211 instead of Dist. 59 and 214 as others in Elk Grove Village.

Those in the area are served by the Schaumburg Township Library and the Schaumburg Park District.

"People should get services such as the park district's within their village's boundaries," said Claes.

PAUL DERDA, Schaumburg Park District director, said his district would prefer to keep the land because it is close to Schaumburg facilities and could easily be served.

He added that the land is adjacent to land for which the park district is negotiating for inclusion in the proposed Spring Valley Nature center.

Designated park land in the area in question is mainly around lakes and creeks.

THE GIFT OF LIFE

ELK GROVE VILLAGE COMMUNITY
4% BLOOD ASSURANCE PROGRAM

Annual Goal: 900 units
Already donated: 311
Still needed: 589

Five units of blood were donated by Elk Grove residents last week to credit the village's 4 per cent blood replacement program.

Persons who wish to donate blood may do so now by contacting Alexian Brothers Medical Center at 437-5500 for an appointment for the May 18 and May 23 hospital drives.

Trustee Nancy Vanderweel, chairman of the blood program, may be contacted at the village hall at 439-3900 for further information.

"LITTLE LEAGUE ELBOW" is the term most pediatricians use to describe an injury that befalls some youngsters who participate in organized baseball. Despite limitations on innings that can be pitched, youngsters pitching when tired face the possibility of elbow damage which has been linked to premature arthritis.

Second of a series

Twelve-year-old Johnny peered down to get the sign from his catcher, needing to get only one more batter out to win the game.

With six innings of pitching behind him, Johnny was tired. Perhaps he shouldn't have played catch with his brother yesterday and maybe he didn't have to warm up so much before the game.

During a sandlot game, Johnny would most likely have quit and gone home several innings ago. But this was different. The team was depending on him. He couldn't just walk out and quit with all those people watching in the stands.

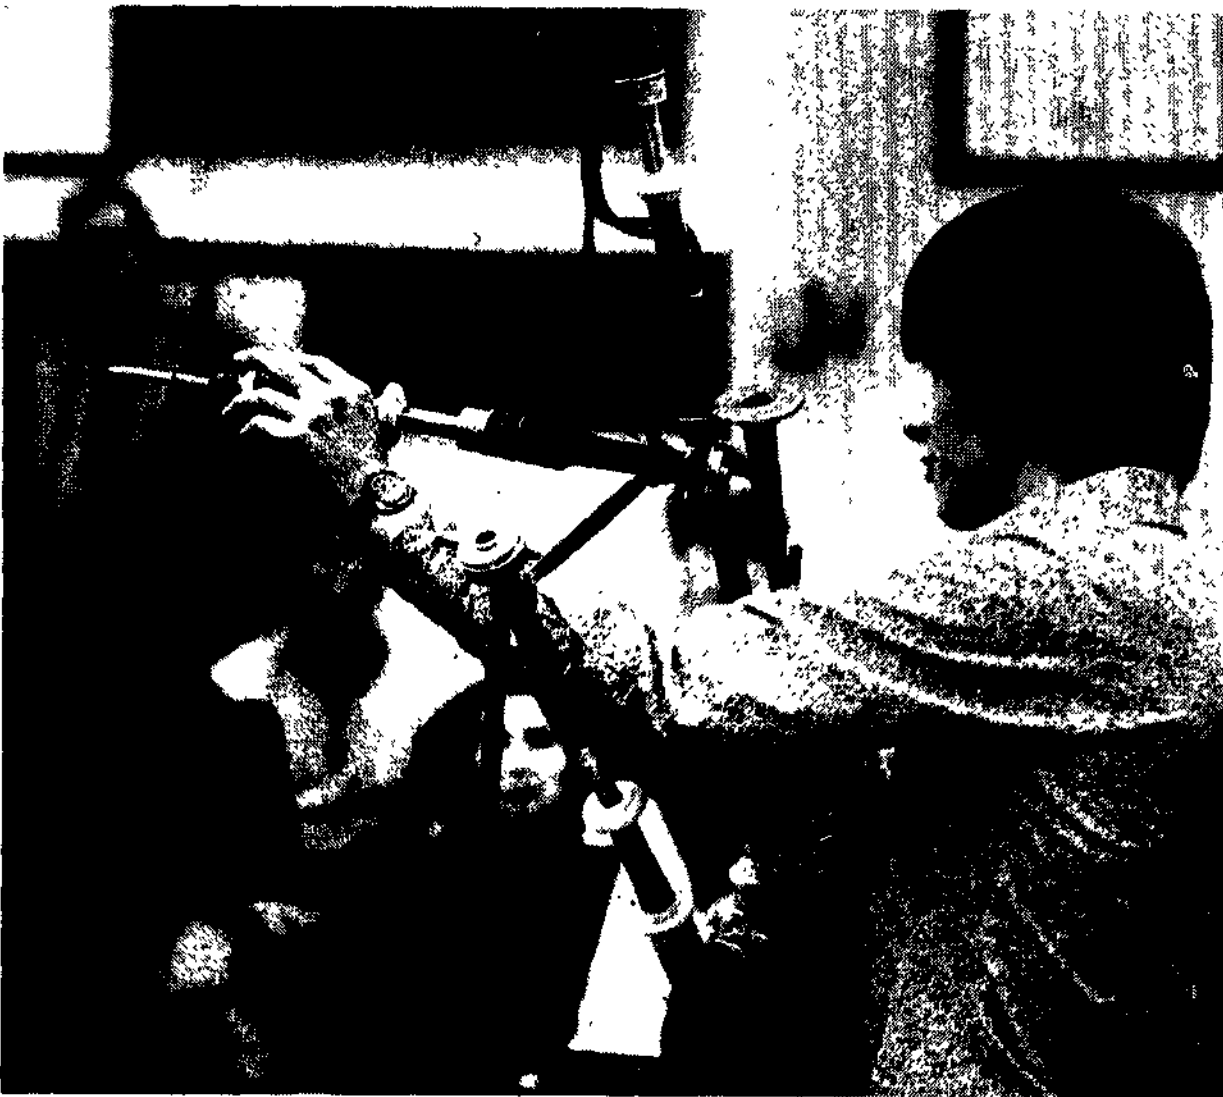

Reaching back for all the strength he could muster, Johnny would up and throw a strike to end the game.

He hardly noticed the pain in his elbow as he rejoiced over the victory with his teammates. The next day, it was virtually gone — but the damage was done.

JOHNNY WAS THE victim of what many pediatricians term "Little League Elbow," one of the most common injuries young ball players suffer. Tired muscles, pushed far past their limit, offer little protection for fragile joints, opening up the possibility of injury.

An orthopedic surgeon on the staff at Alexian Brothers Medical Center, Dr. Emanuel Semerod, said he treated about 10 such cases from the Northwest suburbs last summer alone. Two were serious cases where the bones had been torn loose at the elbow. All of the cases were Little League pitchers, according Discipline panel to submit report to high school board

After three public meetings, members of the High School Dist. 211 discipline committee have concluded their review of the district's discipline policy and will present their report to the board of education in writing May 24.

About 15 persons attended the final committee meeting Friday. Among them was Dist. 211 board member Jean Fisler who repeated her objection to expelling students from school for truancy and class cutting.

According to district policy and state law a student can only be expelled from school for "gross disobedience" which Dist. 211 defines as a substantial disruption of school activities. The present discipline policy includes truancy in the list of expellable offenses along with insubordination, theft, possession of a dangerous weapon, drug possession and fighting.

"It's very hard for me to see how there could be a substantial disruption if the student isn't in school at all," said Mrs. Fisler. She said the district should find other remedies for truancy rather than expulsion.

GERALD CHAPMAN, assistant principal at Hoffman Estates High School, disagreed with the board member. "Students being truant have a tendency to influence other students being truant," he said. "It seems to me that it does interfere with school activities."

Expelling students for truancy has been the main argument of all three meetings of the discipline committee. Committee members, who are assistant and associate principals in the district's five high schools, have supported the present policy and several members of the audience, including students, teachers, parents and board members have objected to expulsion for truancy.

The discipline committee will weigh the objections and recommend changes in the discipline policy in its report to the board May 24. The board is expected to act on the recommendations during one of its regular meetings in June.

Many businesses to face much higher license fees

Some businesses in Elk Grove Village face stiff hikes in license fees during the licensing period beginning the end of May.

Village officials extended the licensing deadline to May 31 while the judiciary, planning and zoning committee finished revisions to the licensing ordinance it had been reviewing for several months.

Board members are expected to act tonight on the revised ordinance that lists new businesses requiring licensing and increased fees for some licenses.

Trustee Ed Kenna, chairman of the committee, said businessmen attended many of the committee meetings and contributed information.

"SEVERAL BUSINESSES will be paying much higher fees than before, in some cases two to three times as much, but in line with what neighboring communities have been charging for several years," said Kenna.

Liquor license holders face a $500 per license increase in all categories if the ordinance passes. This includes private clubs such as Amvets, Elks or other organizations that hold a special "D" license. The proposed new club fee is $750; the old was $250.

Restaurants now pay $25 with the proposed fee set at $75.

Scavenger services are now licensed at $800 but would be required to pay $1,000 plus $50 per vehicle used in the village.

Bowling and billiards establishments will be charged $10 an alley or table in contrast to the old $25 total fee.

New businesses not covered under the old licensing ordinance that will now be required to hold a village license are: ambulance services, day care centers, auctioneers, animal hospitals, bagatelle table (similar to pool or billiards) car wash, dancing school, self service dry cleaning shops, florists, food processors, health clubs and laundromats.

to Semerod. Although Semerod said most of the damage in the 9 to 12-year-old can heal if treated properly, it's been determined that the injury causes premature arthritis, according to Semerod.

"Too many of the younger kids keep pitching after developing elbow soreness because of the pressure on them to compete in certain situations," said Semerod. "The soreness is nature's own way of warning them of trouble."

Continued use despite soreness opens up the possibility of bone fragments forming in the elbow, according to Semerod. The bone fragments have to be surgically removed.

IN THE VILLAGE'S Major League, pitchers are limited by rule to pitching six innings per calendar week. If the pitcher throws more than four innings, he must have at least three days of rest before pitching again.

Pony Leaguers can pitch 10 innings per calendar week. If they pitch more than four innings in a game, Pony pitchers must have two days of rest before returning to the mound.

While Semerod agreed with the rule limiting young pitchers' time on the mound, he warned that there was just as much danger possible if the youngster warmed up with the equivalent of four innings of pitches before the game and pitched batting practice during the week.

Semerod placed the responsibility for watching the progress of the young pitchers on the parents.

"Parents and coaches have to realize when a child has the signs of elbow strain and look for the symptoms," said Semerod. The most obvious sign is soreness, stiffness, or both, according to Semerod.

LITTLE LEAGUE pitchers, while stars now, may be hurting their chances at playing ball professionally, according to Dr. Ronald Boduch, chairman of the pediatric department at Alexian Brothers.

The harm comes by throwing a pitch seen in the Major League and as regular fare in the upper levels of Pony and Babe Ruth Leagues — the curve ball.

The pitch, which breaks sharply due to a tremendous amount of spin on the ball, is probably the largest cause of arm injury in youngsters, according to Boduch.

To get the required spin, the pitcher throws the ball with a great deal of elbow twisting combined with a sharp break of the wrist, putting even additional strain on the elbow.

According to Boduch, the pitch should never be thrown by anyone under 13, and after that only sparingly until full physical maturity is reached around 17.

"Kids with a potentially strong arm are only hurting their potential by throwing a curve ball," said Boduch who explained that the motion required to throw such a pitch hyperextends the elbow. "Although the motion hurts any arm, it's especially dangerous to a young arm which hasn't been fully shaped and is still growing," said Boduch.

WHILE MANY LITTLE League coaches teach the curve ball, Elk Grove High School baseball coach, Larry Peddy, emphasized its importance to players in his program. Peddy agrees wholeheartedly with doctors who say curve balls should be limited in youth baseball programs.

Instead of producing a pitcher among his freshmen and sophomores, who knows how to throw a sharp breaking curve, Peddy has his staff concentrate on another aspect.

"I'd rather have my underclass coaches produce a pitcher who can throw the ball over the plate consistently," said Peddy.

"Whitey Ford, (former New York Yankee pitching great) didn't throw curves until he was out of high school," said Peddy. "I don't see any need for curve balls in Little League. There's a fear factor in anything besides a fastball," he added.

Peddy said he keeps an eye on Little League statistics to get an idea of what will be coming into his high school program and has noticed some interesting facts.

"I mostly watch the box scores and see who's pitching," said Peddy. "It's the same names all the time."

All the men agree that a solution to the problem and prevention of possible injuries lies with the adults who supervise the boys, but don't expect major changes in the Little League system.

AS BODUCH PUT IT, "neither the kids nor the parents will stand for it at this point."

While the responsible adults make up the majority of supervisors in youth athletics, there will always be the few who lose sight of the age level of the boys they're dealing with, according to Boduch, such as one father who brought his son to see Semerod.

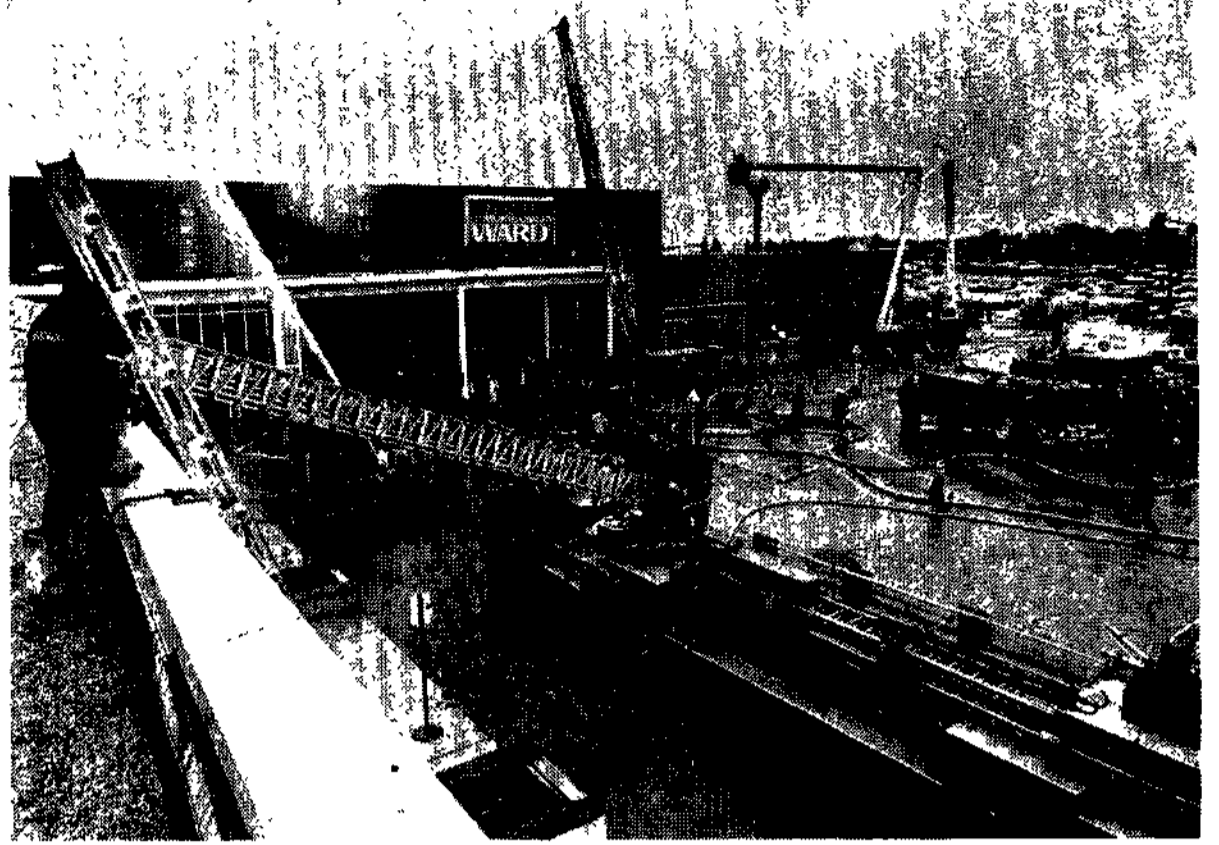

The boy, who had been playing organized boys' football, had been complaining of a "tingling going up and down his leg," said Semerod. "He'd had the problem almost all season, but he wasn't brought in until there was only one game left in the season."

As it turned out, the tingling was due to a spinal injury. Nerves were being irritated when he tackled someone, said Semerod.

The doctor remembers the father's comment well.

"He said it would be all right if his son played the last game, since he'd been playing with injury all year anyway."

Water fights, a simulated bus accident, a fake department store fire and a simulated two-car accident brought Fire Recognition Week to a close Saturday at Mount Prospect's Randhurst Shopping Center.

Some 35 fire departments from the north, northwest and westsuburban areas participated in the fourth annual Outdoor Thrill and Skill Show, which ran for two hours Saturday afternoon.

The Bloomingdale Fire Department won the water fight trophy.

In addition to the skill show, visitors to the shopping center were able to view 40 of the newest pieces of firefighting equipment.

The Mount Prospect volunteer firemen had their annual ball Saturday night in the shopping center mall. Throughout the preceding week various fire safety presentations were given inside the shopping center.

Unit district backers want everyone informed on plan

The committee circulating petitions for a unit district in Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 does not want "to railroad this thing through," said James Blankenship, committee chairman.

The unit district would include Schaumburg and those parts of Elk Grove Village, Hanover Park, Roselle and Rolling Meadows now in Dist. 54. Hoffman Estates would not be included.

"We want everyone to be informed about what we intend to do," Blankenship said Monday.

The committee was formed to petition for unit district boundaries recommended in a feasibility study conducted by a team of Northern Illinois University professors. Both the committee and the recommendations met with opposition from citizens when the study was presented to the public Friday by Ralph Belnap, director of the study.

The study includes an analysis of Dist. 54, Palatine Township Dist. 15 and High School Dist. 211, which serves both townships.

The study recommended unit districts for this area and offered alternatives for setting them up. Unit districts combine elementary and high schools under a single administration and school board.

A THREE-DISTRICT plan was most favored by the study. Under the plan, Palatine and Inverness would form one unit district, Hoffman Estates and Rolling Meadows would form a second, and Schaumburg and portions of Hanover Park and Elk Grove Village that lie in Dist. 54 would form a third unit district.

Keller Junior High School and Churchill and Eisenhower schools would be included in the Hoffman Estates-Rolling Meadows district. However, residents in the Churchill development in Schaumburg would be included in the Schaumburg district.

According to the study, the Palatine-

Inverness district would have 12,162 students and an assessed valuation more than $249 million. Hoffman Estates-Rolling Meadows would have 13,166 students and $172 million assessed valuation with the Schaumburg district having 13,023 students and an assessed valuation of $170 million.

The study indicates Hoffman Estates would pay about 40 per cent and the Schaumburg district about 60 per cent of the indebtedness now held by Dist. 54. Although the study states "the division of high school assets and liabilities will be quite easy to effect," it notes the percentage of liability to be paid will be difficult to determine.

The Cook County superintendent's office would determine the bonding and liability redistribution if the districts reorganize.

AN ALTERNATE THREE district plan also was included in the study with Palatine, Inverness and Rolling Meadows forming one district, Hoffman Estates forming the second district and the Schaumburg district remaining the same.

Another plan incorporated the areas into two unit districts with the area currently in Dist. 54 forming one district and Palatine, Inverness and the portion of Rolling Meadows in Dist. 15 forming a second district.

A single unit district also was an option suggested in the study. Under this plan either Rolling Meadows High School would have to be detached from High School Dist. 214 or those schools in Dist. 15 located in Rolling Meadows must be annexed to Dist. 25.

The study notes the current school districts "are doing a commendable job in educating youngsters," but that "possibilities for improvement appear on the horizon as changes in organizational patterns are considered." Few transportation, staffing or financial changes would result from reorganization, it said. THE STUDY SAID unit districts improve administration by having one overall school board and a uniform educational policy from kindergarten through high school. Improved learning centers, transportation, lunch programs and health services also would result, it said.

An additional $1.3 million in state aid also could be gained by the area if it incorporates into unit districts. However, this advantage will decrease over the next four years as the state's Resource Equalizer formula takes effect.

In unit districts, elementary and high school teachers also would be on the same salary schedule.

Belnap recognized this was "the least strong recommendation" he has made for a unit district and that he has always recommended a unit district. A unit district would "improve community identity" for the suburban communities, he added.

The study also investigates community growth, school enrollments, school sites and development perspectives, education programs and building programs.

It also includes the method for petitioning for a unit district.

SIGNATURES FROM 200 citizens within the proposed unit district area are required to petition for redistricting the community. The petitions are sent to the Cook County superintendent who must hold public hearings before determining whether a referendum should be held on the issue.

If he decides in favor of the proposal, the petitions are sent to the state superintendent who also must hold hearings. The state superintendent may then approve the petition and require the county superintendent to call a referendum.

Citizens within the area proposed for redistricting must pass the referendum for reorganization.

LWV questions legality

Township auditors' annual meeting faces challenge

Palatine Township auditors will have a replay of April's annual town meeting after Township Atty. Richard Cowen received complaints that the first meeting may not have been legal.

Representatives of the Palatine League of Women Voters were prepared to challenge the legality of the annual meeting during Monday night's meeting. The surprise move by Cowen and the board in effect will mean a repeat of resolutions which were passed at the April 9 meeting. The action was necessary of "a question raised as to the efficacy of the notice of the regular town meeting," Cowen said.

THE SPECIAL TOWN meeting will be June 5 at 8 p.m. at the Palatine Hills Junior High School, 1100 N. Smith St. At the April meeting, town voters gave broad taxing powers in the area of mental health over the objections of the League of Women Voters.

The move for mental health taxing powers is an effort to assure funding for a number of local social service agencies, currently being supported by the township's revenue sharing allocation.

Federal revenue sharing is on a four-year trial basis and the program will be reviewed and possibly discontinued by Congress at the end of that time.

League members opposed the mental health resolution because it strengthens township government and broadens township taxing powers without a voter referendum. Several years ago, a four-township mental health referendum was rejected by voters in those townships.

TOWNSHIP auditors have been unaware of the problem with the legal notice until Cowen proposed a second meeting Monday night. State law requires publication of a legal notice in an area newspaper at least ten days before the annual meeting. No such notice was actually ordered by the township, although Cowen has contended that the meeting date is set by state statute, and the time is announced at the previous yearly meeting.

Cowen believes that procedure could constitute proper legal notice. Virtually every item approved at the April town meeting will be voted on again at the special meeting, including township takeover of a small cemetery at Kirchhoff and Plum Grove roads.

Brokers to be banned from plan, zoning panels

An ordinance banning real estate brokers in Palatine from serving on the plan commission and zoning board of appeals is being considered by the Palatine Village Board.

Despite strong objections from several residents, the board voted unanimously to direct the village attorney to draft an ordinance making licensed real estate brokers who derive any portion of their income from real estate transactions within the village, ineligible to serve on the two appointed bodies.

The proposed ordinance is aimed at eliminating potential conflicts of interests. Persons holding real estate licenses but no longer in the real estate business would still be eligible to serve on the boards.

THE PROPOSED ordinance, if adopted, would affect John Nelson, and Thomas La Dore, two brokers currently serving on the zoning board. Nelson has served on the panel since 1957 and his current term expires May 1, 1975. LaDore's term on the zoning board expired May 1, but he has continued to serve since there has been no new appointment.

Lewis Richter, a zoning board member and licensed broker, but no longer in the real estate business, would not be affected by the proposed ordinance.

There are no brokers serving on the nine-member plan commission at the present time.

"I think we need more realtors on the board — people who know something about land value. You couldn't get a more knowledgeable person than a realtor on the board," said LaDore, announcing he will resign if the ordinance is adopted.

"We are just an advisory board. You're the gentlemen who make the decisions," he continued, challenging the board's position that a conflict existed even though the real estate broker abstained from voting.

Village Pres. Wendell E. Jones said the Illinois Atty. Gen. opinion stated a conflict would exist even if brokers would abstain from votes where they had an interest.

Several persons challenged the proposed ordinance as going too far to eliminate potential conflicts at the expense of losing necessary expertise.

Ground being cleared for new library

Workmen began clearing ground Monday for the new Palatine Public Library at the southwest corner of Benton Street and Northwest Highway.

Two houses on the 1.67-acre property are being demolished during the first phase of the operation. Excavation for the building's foundation will begin during this week.

Completion of the two-story structure is expected to take one year. Palatine voters approved the construction of the new library in a $1.3 million referendum last November.

Palatine library facilities have been located in a remodeled brick house at 149 N. Brockway St. for the past 16 years.

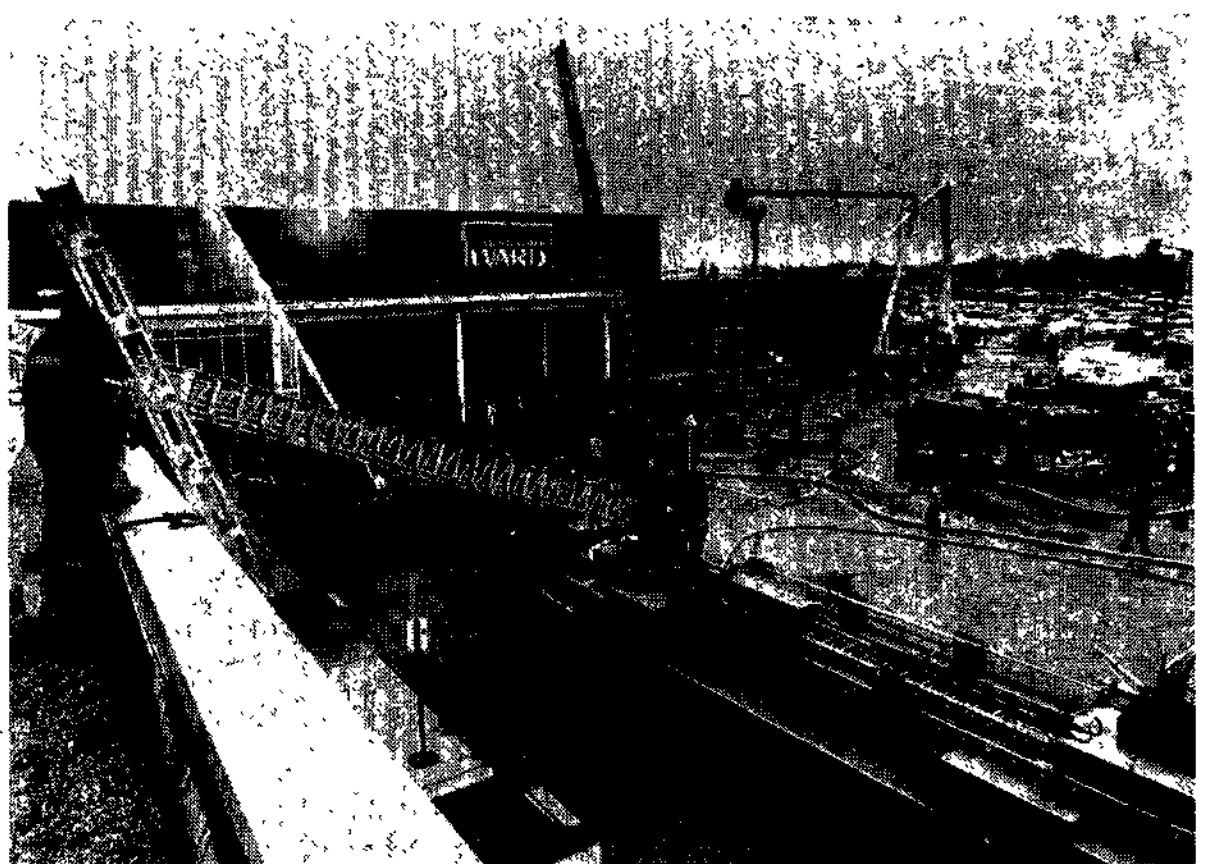

Permits for houses under consideration

Engineering plans have been submitted to the Palatine Building Department for setting two nonconforming houses into foundations.

The plans are now being reviewed to see if they meet the village's codes prior to issuance of a permit.

The homes at 1004 Fosket Dr. and 911 E. Glencoe St. have been sitting on blocks since last fall when they were moved from the vicinity of Palatine Road and Winston Drive to make way for the widening of Palatine Road.

John Waters, owner of the homes, was given 15 days at the end of April to rectify the nonconforming condition of the houses which were labeled "dangerous buildings."

There was no real fire, but this is how one would have been put out.

Library to be closed Sundays this summer

The Palatine Public Library will close on Sundays this summer, June 16 through Aug. 25.

Library officials recently approved the recommendation made by Administrative Librarian Andrea Balcken. The suggestion was made "mainly because the use of the library in the summer is very low," Miss Balcken said, adding that the change "is just for this summer."

The library, at 149 N. Brockway St., will remain open its regular summer hours during the rest of the week.

Panel to report to school board

Parks officials seeking funds for purchase of land

Palatine Rural Park District officials are seeking funds for park land from a new state program set up this year for acquisition of open space.

The rural district, which currently does not have any parks, is seeking up to 75 per cent state aid in buying four park sites. Three of the locations are on the northern side of the district, near the unincorporated subdivisions of Pepper Tree, Heatherlea and English Valley. A fourth larger site of 15½ acres is on Quentin Road east of Harper College in the southern part of the district.

"I think the rural district has a good chance of receiving the funds," said Atty. Roger Bjorvik, representing the rural park district. Local funds will be available without a public referendum, coming from $350,000 in recreation bonds and from the district's corporate budget.

NOTIFICATION OF the state aid is expected sometime in August, then the rural park officials will proceed with purchasing the land.

Tentative plans for the parks include a recreation complex, swimming pool and tennis courts, according to Comr. Eugene Dorsch.

The district became active one year ago, after 20 years as a tax shelter for unincorporated residents who did not want to pay the taxes of a regular district. Residents of recently constructed northern subdivisions took control of the board in a write-in victory in April, 1973, and approved a budget to buy park land.

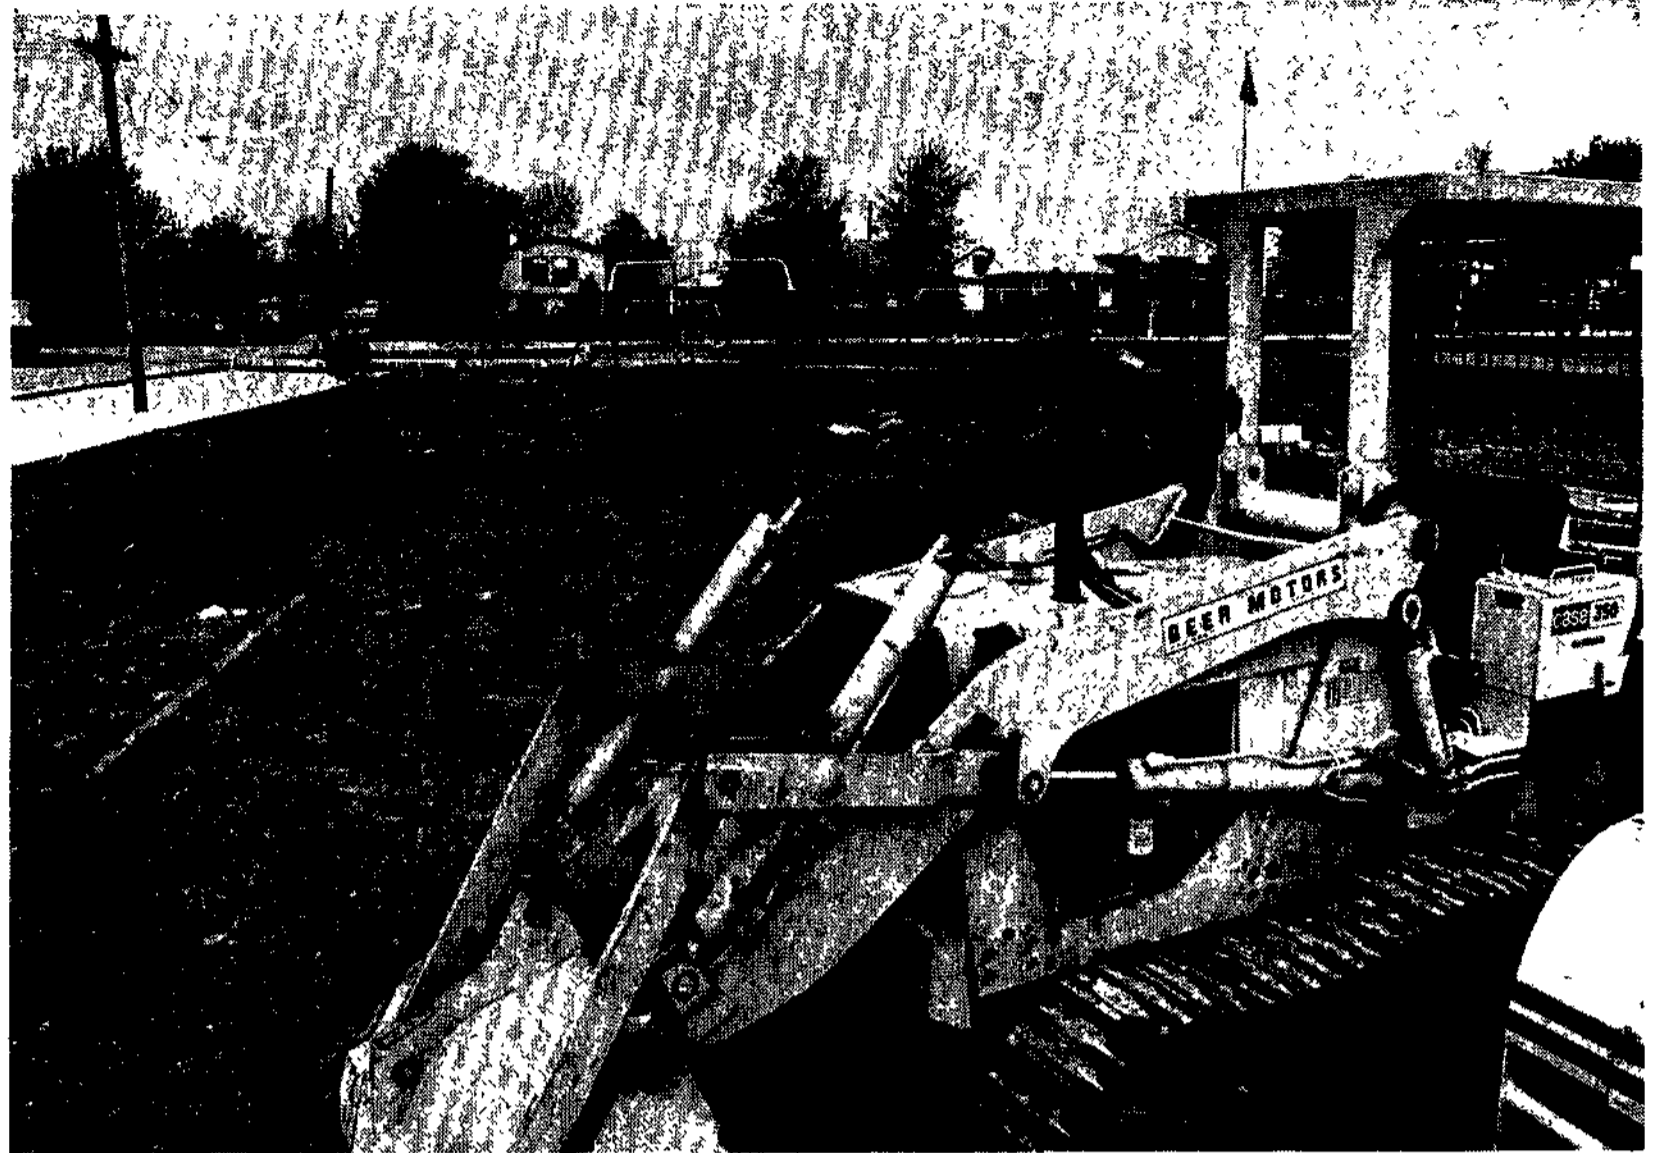

Park commissioners are meeting Monday at 7 p.m. in the Prince of Peace Lutheran Church, 1190 N. Hicks Rd., to discuss recreation plans.

Garage sale aids diabetic boy, 7

Carol and Thomas Russo, 1165 Old Mill Dr., Palatine are planning a garage sale Saturday and Sunday with proceeds going to the Bobby Hunn fund.

Bobby Hunn is a 7-year-old diabetic who needs new kidneys after being hospitalized for most of two years. Men and women's clothing, accessories and household appliances will be available. New clothing will be offered by the Russos, who own two clothing stores in Chicago.

The garage sale runs from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. on both days. The Bobby Hunn fund is set up at the Schaumburg State Bank.

WHEN THE TRACTOR IS gone and the dirt put back in place, South Park will have new tennis courts and playground equipment. The park, located at Euclid Avenue and Rohlwing Road, is one of three in the Salt Creek Park District undergoing improvements that will total $90,000.

Summer park district brochures mailed out

Summer brochures for the Palatine Park District will be delivered to homes and apartments Wednesday and Thursday.

A change in the mailing procedure will drop the specific name and address listing, and instead will simply have delivery to each address in the district.

Residents who do not receive the brochure this week may contact the park office, 359-0333, or pick up a copy of the program at the administration building, 262 E. Palatine Rd., Palatine.

Registration for park programs begins May 28 for residents and the following week for nonresidents.

Unit district backers urge full information

The committee circulating petitions for a unit district in Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 does not want "to railroad this thing through," said James Blankenship, committee chairman.

The unit district would include Schaumburg and those parts of Elk Grove Village, Hanover Park, Roselle and Rolling Meadows now in Dist. 54. Hoffman Estates would not be included.

"We want everyone to be informed about what we intend to do," Blankenship said Monday.

The committee was formed to petition for unit district boundaries recommended in a feasibility study conducted by a team of Northern Illinois University professors. Both the committee and the recommendations met with opposition from citizens when the study was presented to the public Friday by Ralph Belnap, director of the study.

The study includes an analysis of Dist. 54, Palatine Township Dist. 15 and High School Dist. 211, which serves both townships.

The study recommended unit districts for this area and offered alternatives for setting them up. Unit districts combine elementary and high schools under a single administration and school board.

A THREE-DISTRICT plan was most favored by the study. Under the plan, Palatine and Inverness would form one unit district, Hoffman Estates and Rolling Meadows would form a second, and Schaumburg and portions of Hanover Park and Elk Grove Village that lie in Dist. 54 would form a third unit district.

Keller Junior High School and Churchill and Eisenhower schools would be included in the Hoffman Estates-Rolling Meadows district. However, residents in

School officials skeptical over unit district study

by JUDY JOBBITT

School officials reacted skeptically Monday to the feasibility study for unit districts in Schaumburg and Palatine townships.

The study also is being reviewed by the school reorganization division of the state superintendent's office. According to Leo Athas, legal adviser to Michael Bakalis, the state has been supporting the recent movement toward unit districts.

The study conducted by a team of Northern Illinois University education professors, was presented Friday by Ralph Belnap, director of the study.

"There is nothing in the study that tells me the education will be improved for any unit district," said Gordon Thoren, Dist. 54 board president. "I don't understand the need or benefit for community identification. School identity is the greatest thing going. We'll have that whatever the organization."

Another plan incorporated the areas into two unit districts with the area currently in Dist. 54 forming one district and Palatine, Inverness and the portion of Rolling Meadows in Dist. 15 forming a second district.

A single unit district also was an option suggested in the study. Under this plan either Rolling Meadows High School would have to be detached from High School Dist. 214 or those schools in Dist. 15 located in Rolling Meadows must be annexed to Dist. 25.

The study notes the current school districts "are doing a commendable job in educating youngsters," but that "possibilities for improvement appear on the horizon as changes in organizational patterns are considered." Few transportation, staffing or financial changes would result from reorganization, it said.

THE STUDY SAID unit districts improve administration by having one over-

Community identity was stated in the study as the most significant result from forming unit districts.

HE SAID THE STUDY contained inconsistencies and contradictions. "It makes statements that challenge the entire curriculum and school board without backup," he said.

"I frankly was disappointed," said Margaret Pageler, Dist. 54 board member. "It wasn't a feasibility study. We haven't begun to face the specifics."

She said she is not close-minded to unit districts but is waiting to see a "real feasibility study" conducted.

"It has to be a drain on the education kids are getting when the central office is in a turmoil," she said.

"I spent the weekend going over the report," said Robert Seger, High School Dist. 211 board member from Schaumburg. "I'm amazed at the number of contradictions and inaccuracies in the report."

HE ALSO "WAS SHOCKED and appalled" by the actions of the committee petitioning for a unit district in Schaumburg and portions of Elk Grove Village, Hanover Park, Roselle and Rolling Meadows currently in Dist. 54.

"One area is starting the move without any community reaction from the rest of them," he said.

"In my opinion the only reason to go for a unit district is an overwhelming benefit to going for a unit district," he said. "I can't see any reason to go for a unit district."

"I don't think it would improve our programs and I think that is a paramount consideration," said Richard Kolze, Dist. 211 superintendent. "I don't think community identity would have that much effect on the child in the classroom."

Frank Whiteley, Dist. 15 superintendent, said community identification is not a problem in that district.

ty" for the suburban communities, he added.

It also includes the method for petitioning for a unit district.

SIGNATURES FROM 200 citizens within the proposed unit district area are required to petition for redistricting the community. The petitions are sent to the Cook County superintendent who must hold public hearings before determining whether a referendum should be held on the issue.

If he decides in favor of the proposal, the petitions are sent to the state superintendent who also must hold hearings. The state superintendent may then approve the petition and require the county superintendent to call a referendum.

Citizens within the area proposed for redistricting must pass the referendum for reorganization.

Parks approve new purchases

Up to $11,000 for the purchase of new playground equipment was authorized last week by the Salt Creek Park District Board of Commissioners.

The money will be used to buy new playground equipment for South Park, Euclid Avenue and Rohlwing Road, and for Rose Park, 530 S. Williams St. The equipment will be installed as part of the district's improvement program now underway.

Parks and Recreation Supt. James DeVos said if additional money is left in the district budget at the end of the year, up to $2,000 in playground equipment may also be purchased for Winston Park, Palatine Road and Joyce Street.

DeVos said the equipment is being purchased for South and Rose Park because equipment there is older than in Winston Park.

LWV questions legality

Township auditors' annual meeting faces challenge

Palatine Township auditors will have a replay of April's annual town meeting after Township Atty. Richard Cowen received complaints that the first meeting may not have been legal.

Representatives of the Palatine League of Women Voters were prepared to challenge the legality of the annual meeting during Monday night's meeting. The surprise move by Cowen and the board in effect will mean a repeat of resolutions which were passed at the April 9 meeting. The action was necessary of "a question raised as to the efficacy of the notice of the regular town meeting," Cowen said.

THE SPECIAL TOWN meeting will be June 5 at 8 p.m. at the Palatine Hills Junior High School, 1100 N. Smith St. At the April meeting, town voters gave broad taxing powers in the area of mental health over the objections of the League of Women Voters.

The move for mental health taxing powers is an effort to assure funding for a number of local social service agencies, currently being supported by the township's revenue sharing allocation.

Federal revenue sharing is on a four-year trial basis and the program will be reviewed and possibly discontinued by Congress at the end of that time.

League members opposed the mental health resolution because it strengthens township government and broadens township taxing powers without a voter referendum. Several years ago, a four-township mental health referendum was rejected by voters in those townships.

TOWNSHIP auditors have been unaware of the problem with the legal notice until Cowen proposed a second meeting Monday night. State law requires publication of a legal notice in an area newspaper at least ten days before the annual meeting. No such notice was actually ordered by the township, although Cowen has contended that the meeting date is set by state statute, and the time is announced at the previous yearly meeting.

Cowen believes that procedure could constitute proper legal notice. Virtually every item approved at the April town meeting will be voted on again at the special meeting, including township takeover of a small cemetery at Kirchoff and Plum Grove roads.

Chipper to collect twigs, branches

Today is the beginning of the two-week period in which the city chipper will start collection of twigs and branches in the western portion of Rolling Meadows.

The chipper will serve until May 26 the area generally bounded by Kirchoff Road, Salt Creek, Algonquin Road, E. Frontage Road and the Creekside subdivision.

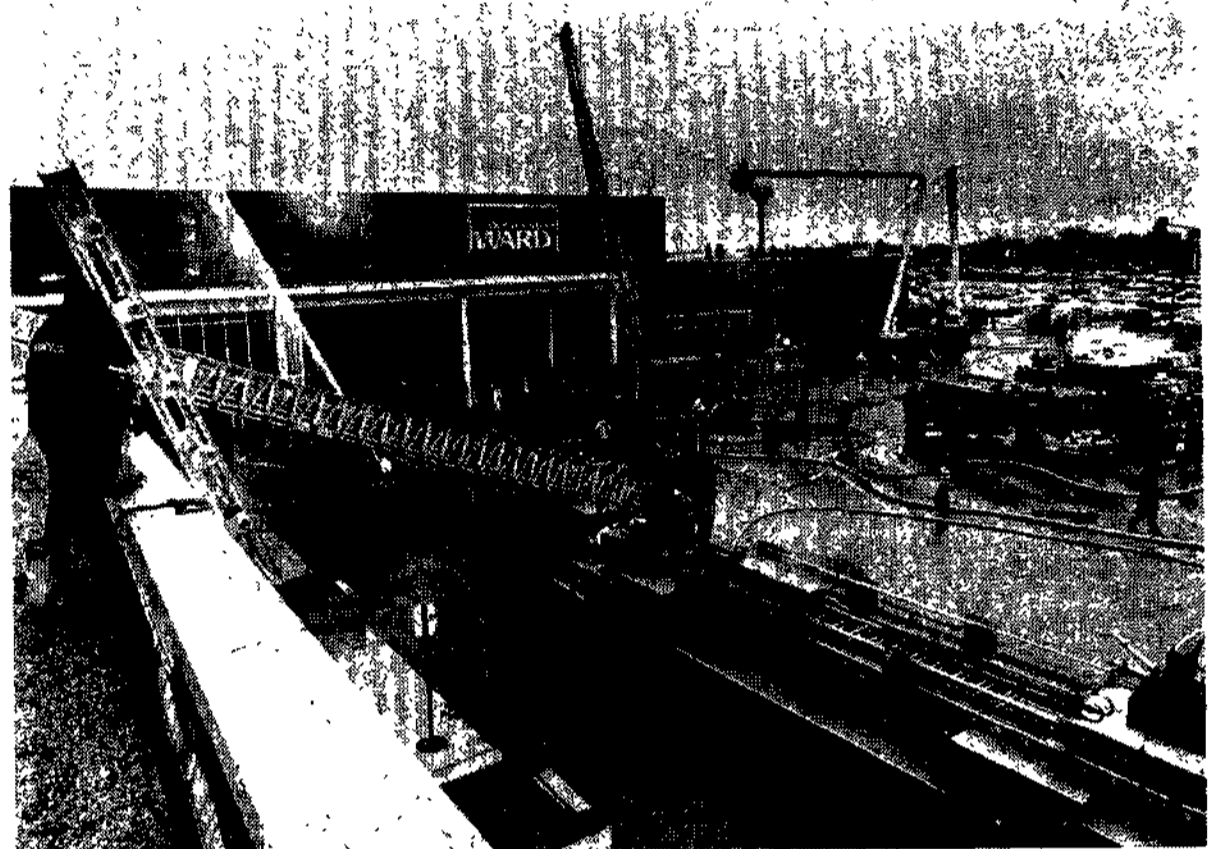

Branches and twigs to be disposed of may be left on the parkway for the chipper. The chipper will not be in the area again until July 9, but persons who miss the current chipping session may bring branches to the public works building, 3200 Central Rd., for disposal.

Park board applicant still being sought

The Plum Grove Countryside Park District still is looking for a qualified applicant to replace former board member Kenneth Soderberg, who resigned late last month.

Soderberg, a five-year veteran on the park board, resigned because of the "press of business," said Board Pres. Ernest Martin. He is the third board member to resign in the past year.

Anyone interested in the position, which comes up for election in April, 1975, is asked to send a brief resume to Ernest Martin, 4571 Hoover St., Rolling Meadows. The applicant must be a registered voter residing in the park district.

Water fights, a simulated bus accident, a fake department store fire and a simulated two-car accident brought Fire Recognition Week to a close Saturday at Mount Prospect's Randhurst Shopping Center.

Some 35 fire departments from the north, northwest and west suburban areas participated in the fourth annual Outdoor Thrill and Skill Show, which ran for two hours Saturday afternoon.

The Bloomingdale Fire Department won the water fight trophy.

In addition to the skill show, visitors to the shopping center were able to view 40 of the newest pieces of firefighting equipment.

The Mount Prospect volunteer firemen had their annual ball Saturday night in the shopping center mall. Throughout the preceding week various fire safety presentations were given inside the shopping center.

Committee urges more information

The committee circulating petitions for a unit district in Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 does not want "to railroad this thing through," said James Blankenship, committee chairman.

The unit district would include Schaumburg and those parts of Elk Grove Village, Hanover Park, Roselle and Rolling Meadows now in Dist. 54. Hoffman Estates would not be included.

"We want everyone to be informed about what we intend to do," Blankenship said Monday.

The committee was formed to petition for unit district boundaries recommended in a feasibility study conducted by a team of Northern Illinois University professors. Both the committee and the recommendations met with opposition from citizens when the study was presented to the public Friday by Ralph Belnap, director of the study.

The study includes an analysis of Dist. 54, Palatine Township Dist. 15 and High School Dist. 211, which serves both townships.

The study recommended unit districts for this area and offered alternatives for setting them up. Unit districts combine elementary and high schools under a single administration and school board.

A THREE-DISTRICT plan was most favored by the study. Under the plan, Palatine and Inverness would form one unit district, Hoffman Estates and Rolling Meadows would form a second, and Schaumburg and portions of Hanover Park and Elk Grove Village that lie in Dist. 54 would form a third unit district.

Keller Junior High School and Churchill and Eisenhower schools would be included in the Hoffman Estates-Rolling Meadows district. However, residents in the Churchill development in Schaumburg would be included in the Schaumburg district.

According to the study, the Palatine-Inverness district would have 12,162 students and an assessed valuation more than $240 million. Hoffman Estates-Rolling Meadows would have 13,166 students and $172 million assessed valuation with the Schaumburg district having 13,023 students and an assessed valuation of $170 million.

The study indicates Hoffman Estates would pay about 40 per cent and the Schaumburg district about 60 per cent of the indebtedness now held by Dist. 54. Although the study states "the division of high school assets and liabilities will be quite easy to effect," it notes the percentage of liability to be paid will be difficult to determine.

The Cook County superintendent's office would determine the bonding and liability redistribution if the districts reorganize.

AN ALTERNATE THREE district plan also was included in the study with Palatine, Inverness and Rolling Meadows forming one district, Hoffman Estates forming the second district and the Schaumburg district remaining the same.

Another plan incorporated the areas into two unit districts with the area currently in Dist. 54 forming one district and Palatine, Inverness and the portion of Rolling Meadows in Dist. 15 forming a second district.

Meadow Trails improvements

Rolling Meadows Park Board members have agreed to make improvements on the Meadow Trails Park, located on Dawngate Lane in the Dawngate subdivision.

Representatives of the Dawngate Homeowners Assn. Thursday night asked the park board to put in additional grass seed or sod in the park and to put up bushes, separating the park from the property of two adjacent homeowners.

"We've looked at it and I definitely know something has to be done," said board president Raymond Neuckranz. He said the matter will be taken up at the next building and grounds committee meeting, scheduled for 8 p.m. May 28 in the park district administration office, 1 Park Meadow Pl.

Under consideration will be rejuvenating the grassy area of the park and putting in bushes or a split rail fence. Under city ordinances, bushes can be only 30 inches high. To put in a split rail fence, the park district would need a zoning variation.

The seed or sod would bring the park property up to the standards of surrounding lots, Neuckranz said. The bushes would prevent youngsters from taking short cuts across the lawns of neighboring property owners.

Neuckranz said it was hard to visit a woods in the middle of a city, but Meadow Trails is "one park where you can do it," he added.

Meadow Trails is the only park presently in the Creekside Dawngate area.

Annexation voted

The Rolling Meadows Park Board Thursday night voted to annex a triangular shaped piece of property in the south-eastern section of Rolling Meadows.

The property, located between Golf Road, Elk Grove Road, Algonquin Road and the tollway, consists of approximately 10 single family dwellings and industrial property.

Dump truck purchased

The board agreed to purchase a one-ton dump truck from Pollard Motors of Elmhurst for a total of $5,390. The price includes a $604 trade in on the district's old truck. Pollard was the low bidder who met park district specifications, according to Steve Person, superintendent of parks and recreation.

The district's old pickup truck, which was no longer in operating condition, officially was scrapped. "They wouldn't take a trade in," Person said. "They wouldn't even take it."

A copy machine was sold to Woodfield Racquet Club for $25.11. The club was the only bidder for the old machine, which the district recently replaced.

Back to old accountant

The Rolling Meadows Park Board voted to return to the former accounting service provided by McMinn and Troutman Accounting and Tax Service, Rolling Meadows, which will save the district about $150 a year.

The park district had used the services of the local accounting firm for eight years, until 1973, when they decided to go to a computerized system. Since McMinn and Troutman did not offer a computerized service at that time, the park district hired Lloyd's of Gloucestershire, Bensenville.

McMinn and Troutman recently changed to a similar computerized system. They appeared before the park board and board members agreed to return to the local service effective May 1, at a cost of $250 a month.

The fee is the same as charged by Lloyd's, according to Person. However, Lloyd's charges extra for a year end statement and McMinn and Troutman will not, he added. The year end statement costs about $150, Person said.

Resignation accepted

The resignation of David Foremba, recreation supervisor, was accepted at Thursday night's park board meeting.

Foremba is leaving the park district to accept a job as assistant to the director of the Canton YMCA in Canton.

He has been with the park district since April of 1973. "It's better position," Person said. "A position that I think he's been looking for. He's done a great job."

Neuckranz reelected

Raymond Neuckranz was elected Rolling Meadows Park board president for a second year at Thursday night's board meeting.

Serving their first terms as board officers are Gene Placek, vice president and Jerry Holdmair, treasurer. Person was again named board secretary.

High school discipline

Panel to report to school board

After three public meetings, members of the High School Dist. 211 discipline committee have concluded their review of the district's discipline policy and will present their report to the board of education in writing May 24.

About 15 persons attended the final committee meeting Friday. Among them was Dist. 211 board member Jean Fiesler who repeated her objection to expelling students from school for truancy and class cutting.

According to district policy and state law a student can only be expelled from school for "gross disobedience" which Dist. 211 defines as a substantial disruption of school activities. The present discipline policy includes truancy in the list of expellable offenses along with insubordination, theft, possession of a dangerous weapon, drug possession and fighting.

"It's very hard for me to see how there could be a substantial disruption if the student isn't in school at all," said Mrs. Fiesler. She said the district should find other remedies for truancy rather than expulsion.

GERALD CHAPMAN, assistant principal at Hoffman Estates High School, disagreed with the board member. "Students being truant have a tendency to influence other students being truant," he said. "It seems to me that it does interfere with school activities."

Expelling students for truancy has been the main argument of all three meetings of the discipline committee. Committee members, who are assistant and associate principals in the district's five high schools, have supported the present policy and several members of the audience, including students, teachers, parents and board members have objected to expulsion for truancy.

The discipline committee will weigh the objections and recommend changes in the discipline policy in its report to the board May 24. The board is expected to act on the recommendations during one of its regular meetings in June.

tion suggested in the study. Under this plan either Rolling Meadows High School would have to be detached from High School Dist. 214 or those schools in Dist. 15 located in Rolling Meadows must be annexed to Dist. 25.

The study notes the current school districts "are doing a commendable job in educating youngsters," but that "possibilities for improvement appear on the horizon as changes in organizational patterns are considered." Few transportation, staffing or financial changes would result from reorganization, it said.

THE STUDY SAID unit districts improve administration by having one over-all school board and a uniform educational policy from kindergarten through high school. Improved learning centers, transportation, lunch programs and health services also would result, it said.

An additional $1.3 million in state aid also could be gained by the area if it incorporates into unit districts. However, this advantage will decrease over the next four years as the state's Resource Equalizer formula takes effect.

In unit districts, elementary and high school teachers also would be on the same salary schedule.

Belnap recognized this was "the least strong recommendation" he has made for a unit district and that he has always recommended a unit district. A unit district would "improve community identity" the study also investigates community growth, school enrollments, school sites and development perspectives, education programs and building programs.

It also includes the method for petitioning for a unit district.

SIGNATURES FROM 200 citizens within the proposed unit district area are required to petition for redistricting the community. The petitions are sent to the Cook County superintendent who must hold public hearings before determining whether a referendum should be held on the issue.

Civic groups to provide tot lot

Local civic organizations are preparing a special play area to be donated to the Community Child Care Center of Palatine Township, a day-care center for children from mixed-income families.

The Palatine Kiwanis Club is donating a tot lot next to the day-care center at the Presbyterian Church of Palatine, at Palatine and Rohlwing roads. Members of the Kiwanis Club also are buying and installing two pieces of play equipment for the preschoolers in the program.

Sand and sandboxes are being given to Palatine Jaycees and Jaycee Wives for summer play by the youngsters. This summer is the first for the center, which opened in September with partial funding from revenue sharing money distributed by Palatine Township.

On Wednesday, members of the Palatine Woman's Club are presenting center officials with $900 for purchase of a dishwasher. Youngsters attend the day care center five days a week year-round. Tuition fees for low-income children are supplemented by the township revenue sharing.

Parks appoint recreation head

Mary Simonis of Des Plaines has been named recreation supervisor of the Rolling Meadows Park District. She is the first woman to hold that post in the district's 18-year history.

Mrs. Simonis, 24, is replacing David Foremba, who is leaving to accept a job as assistant to the director of the Canton YMCA in Canton. She starts work May 21. Foremba, whose resignation is effective June 1, begins a two-week vacation the end of this week.

"She seemed to be the most enthusiastic and have the best credentials," said Rudy Nelson, facility coordinator. He said that Mrs. Simonis would add a needed woman's touch to the park programming, which has been lacking in past years.

"We interviewed about 60 applicants," Nelson said. These were cut down to 20, then to three women. Mrs. Simonis was chosen late last week.

Mrs. Simonis is a 1973 graduate of Southern Illinois University with a Bachelor's degree in community recreation and courses in psychology, journalism, art and dramatics. The Rolling Meadows job will be her first full-time position, Nelson said.

Mrs. Simonis has worked part time as a preschool teacher in the Forest Park Park District and as a recreation leader at the Dundee Township Park District.

State officials weigh report

School officials skeptical over unit-district study

by JUDY JOBBITT

School officials reacted skeptically Monday to the feasibility study for unit districts in Schaumburg and Palatine townships.

The study also is being reviewed by the school reorganization division of the state superintendent's office. According to Leo Athas, legal adviser to Michael Bakalis, the state has been supporting the recent movement toward unit districts.

The study conducted by a team of Northern Illinois University education professors, was presented Friday by Ralph Beinap, director of the study.

"There is nothing in the study that tells me the education will be improved for any unit district," said Gordon Thoren, Dist. 54 board president. "I don't understand the need or benefit for community identification. School identity is the greatest thing going. We'll have that whatever the organization."

Community identity was stated in the study as the most significant result from forming unit districts.

HE SAID THE STUDY contained inconsistencies and contradictions. "It makes statements that challenge the entire curriculum and school board without backup," he said.

"I frankly was disappointed," said Margaret Pageler, Dist. 54 board member. "It wasn't a feasibility study. We haven't begun to face the specifics."

She said she is not close-minded to unit districts but is waiting to see a "real feasibility study" conducted.

"It has to be a drain on the education kids are getting when the central office is in a turmoil," she said.

"I spent the weekend going over the report," said Robert Seger, High School

Unit backers want everyone informed

The committee circulating petitions for a unit district in Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 does not want "to railroad this thing through," said James Blankenship, committee chairman.

The unit district would include Schaumburg and those parts of Elk Grove Village, Hanover Park, Roselle and Rolling Meadows now in Dist. 54. Hoffman Estates would not be included.

"We want everyone to be informed about what we intend to do," Blankenship said Monday.

The committee was formed to petition for unit district boundaries recommended in a feasibility study conducted by a team of Northern Illinois University professors. Both the committee and the recommendations met with opposition from citizens when the study was presented to the public Friday by Ralph Beinap, director of the study.

The study includes an analysis of Dist. 54, Palatine Township Dist. 15 and High School Dist. 211, which serves both townships.

The study recommended unit districts for this area and offered alternatives for setting them up. Unit districts combine elementary and high schools under a single administration and school board.

A THREE-DISTRICT plan was most favored by the study. Under the plan, Palatine and Inverness would form one unit district, Hoffman Estates and Rolling Meadows would form a second, and Schaumburg and portions of Hanover Park and Elk Grove Village that lie in Dist. 54 would form a third unit district.

Keller Junior High School and Churchill and Eisenhower schools would be included in the Hoffman Estates-Rolling Meadows district. However, residents in the Churchill development in Schaumburg would be included in the Schaumburg district.

According to the study, the Palatine-Inverness district would have 12,162 students and an assessed valuation more than $249 million. Hoffman Estates-Rolling Meadows would have 13,166 students and $172 million assessed valuation with the Schaumburg district having 13,023 students and an assessed valuation of $170 million.

The study indicates Hoffman Estates would pay about 40 per cent and the Schaumburg district about 60 per cent of the indebtedness now held by Dist. 54. Although the study states "the division of high school assets and liabilities will be quite easy to effect," it notes the percentage of liability to be paid will be difficult to determine.

The Cook County superintendent's office would determine the bonding and liability redistribution if the districts reorganize.

AN ALTERNATE THREE district plan also was included in the study with Palatine, Inverness and Rolling Meadows forming one district, Hoffman Estates forming the second district and the Schaumburg district remaining the same.

Another plan incorporated the areas into two unit districts with the area currently in Dist. 54 forming one district and Palatine, Inverness and the portion of Rolling Meadows in Dist. 15 forming a second district.

A single unit district also was an option suggested in the study. Under this plan either Rolling Meadows High School would have to be detached from High School Dist. 214 or those schools in Dist. 15 located in Rolling Meadows must be annexed to Dist. 25.

The study notes the current school districts "are doing a commendable job in educating youngsters," but that "possibilities for improvement appear on the horizon as changes in organizational patterns are considered." Few transportation, staffing or financial changes would result from reorganization, it said.

THE STUDY SAID unit districts improve administration by having one overall school board and a uniform educational policy from kindergarten through high school. Improved learning centers, transportation, lunch programs and health services also would result, it said.

An additional $1.3 million in state aid also could be gained by the area if it incorporates into unit districts. However, this advantage will decrease over the next four years as the state's Resource Equalizer formula takes effect.

In unit districts, elementary and high school teachers also would be on the same salary schedule.

Beinap recognized this was "the least strong recommendation" he has made for a unit district and that he has always recommended a unit district. A unit district would "improve community identity."

The study also investigates community growth, school enrollments, school sites and development perspectives, education programs and building programs.

ty" for the suburban communities, he added.

It also includes the method for petitioning for a unit district.

SIGNATURES FROM 200 citizens within the proposed unit district area are required to petition for redistricting the community. The petitions are sent to the Cook County superintendent who must hold public hearings before determining whether a referendum should be held on the issue.

If he decides in favor of the proposal, the petitions are sent to the state superintendent who also must hold hearings. The state superintendent may then approve the petition and require the county superintendent to call a referendum.

Citizens within the area proposed for redistricting must pass the referendum for reorganization.

Correction

The unit district proposed Friday includes the village of Schaumburg and those portions of Roselle, Hanover Park, Rolling Meadows and Elk Grove Village currently in Schaumburg Township Dist. 54. The Herald erroneously reported that the entire villages of Hanover Park and Elk Grove Village would be included in the unit district.

Dist. 211 board member from Schaumburg. "I'm amazed at the number of contradictions and inaccuracies in the report."

HE ALSO "WAS SHOCKED and appalled" by the actions of the committee petitioning for a unit district in Schaumburg and portions of Elk Grove Village, Hanover Park, Roselle and Rolling Meadows currently in Dist. 54.

"One area is starting the move without any community reaction from the rest of them," he said.

"In my opinion the only reason to go for a unit district is an overwhelming benefit to going for a unit district," he said. "I can't see any reason to go for a unit district."

"I don't think it would improve our programs and I think that is a paramount consideration," said Richard Kolze, Dist. 211 superintendent. "I don't think community identity would have that much effect on the child in the classroom."

Frank Whiteley, Dist. 15 superintendent, said community identification is not a problem in that district.

Schaumburg teen charged with burglary

Elk Grove Village Police Monday arrested a Schaumburg man accused of stealing $1,050 worth of stereo and sound equipment from the Elk Grove Village professional building at 116 Turner Ave.

Carl Robert Old, 17, of 1609 Waxwing St., Schaumburg, was arrested by police after being implicated in a weekend burglary from attorney Lee Garr's offices in the building.

According to police, Garr discovered the theft early Saturday morning. Missing are a stereo, speaker, recorder, sound receiver and other equipment.

Old is free on bond but must appear in the Elk Grove Village branch of circuit court June 12 to answer the burglary charge.

Police said there were no signs of forced entry to Garr's offices. Old allegedly had keys to the attorney's office and had done some work for Garr.

'Project Help' cleanup Saturday

This year's version of Project Help, an annual community cleanup, will be held in Hoffman Estates Saturday.

Volunteers are to meet at the municipal building, 1200 N. Gannon Dr., at 8:30 a.m. to step off on the cleanup at about 9

Boots, gloves and old clothing are the recommended attire. Volunteers are urged to bring their own rakes. The village will supply plastic bags. The project will be restricted to cleaning up street areas where dead leaves, litter and debris collected during winter.

"We will probably concentrate on Golf Road and Higgins Road first, and then move on from there," said Mark Karney, chairman.

The project is expected to end at about noon. In case of rain, the event will be held June 1.

Further information is available from Karney, 862-9215.

A UNIT DISTRICT for Schaumburg and those portions of Hanover Park, Elk Grove Village, Roselle and Rolling Meadows currently in Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 was included in a feasibility study on unit districts for Schaumburg and Palatine townships. Petitions are being circulated as the first step to form a district.

Trustee hopeful to apply

The second application for appointment to the vacant village trustee seat in Hoffman Estates is expected to be delivered to village clerk Helen Wozniak today.

William Palmer, 333 Baxter Ln., was the only applicant until this morning. Palmer has been a member of the Village Plans Commission since Aug. 27, 1973.

However, Robert Valentino, 146 Cambridge, chairman and five-year member of the zoning board of appeals, last night obtained an application and said he would submit it today.

Thursday is the deadline set by village board resolution for any Hoffman Estates resident to apply for the appointment to the 11-months remaining in the term of former trustee Diane Jensen. The board has agreed to name its appointee by June 3.

EDWARD HENNESSY, 110 Aztec, who previously held a four-year trustee term, said last night he still does not know whether he will apply. "I don't know whether I should or I shouldn't," said Hennessy. He said whoever is appointed should think in terms of running for election for a full four-year term next April, and noted, "I'm talking in terms of a five-year commitment."

Palmer is a sales representative for Lyon Metal Products and served last year on the village's Fourth of July and Octoberfest committees. He also is a precinct captain and area chairman on the Republican Organization of Schaumburg Township.

Valentino is credited by village officials for major revisions last year in the village's zoning ordinances. He worked on a committee with Hennessy and plan commission chairman Richard Regan on the revisions.

Mrs. Swimley faces judge today

Pretrial motions are expected this morning in Cook County Circuit Court when Marlene Swimley of Schaumburg appears on a charge of solicitation to commit murder.

Asst. State's Atty. Charles Siklarsky said he will file a motion for discovery of evidence in the case in which Mrs. Swimley is charged with attempting to lure a gunman to murder her husband, Duane. She was arrested Jan. 24.

She is to appear at the Civic Center before Judge Marvin Aspen.

School break-in nets burglars $180 in cash

A break-in reported Monday at Lakeview School, Hoffman Estates, netted burglars about $180 in cash.

Minor vandalism to two classrooms was reported at the school, 280 Lakeview Ln. One water fountain was left running and water dripped onto the floor in one classroom. In the other room litter was strewn about. The money was taken from a teacher's desk.

Police found a five-inch knife which they theorize was used to force a lock on an outside door at the school.

In an unrelated incident, two broken door windows were reported Monday at Nathan Hale School, 1300 W. Wise Rd., Schaumburg. Damage was estimated at $150.

'Essentially same' as last year's

$1.4 million budget OK'd for '74-'75 parks program

A $1,442,647 budget for 1974-'75 was adopted last night by the Mount Prospect Park District.

Park director Thomas W. Cooper described the document as "pretty much the same" as the 1973-'74 budget, and said he expects the park district's tax rate to remain "close to what we had this year" — $40.40 per $10,000 equalized assessed valuation.

"It's a realistic budget," he said. "It's not inflationary." The new budget, which retroactively goes into effect May 1, represents an 8.1 per cent boost over the past year's budget of $1,334,991.

Park district employees will receive an average 5.5 per cent pay boost, with Cooper's salary set at $23,500. He has been director since 1957.

A BREAKDOWN OF the anticipated expenses: Corporate, $633,050; recreation, $269,900; Illinois Municipal Retirement Fund, $45,000; bond and interest, $473,187; liability insurance, $20,000; and audit, $1,500.

Included in the new budget are funds for:

- A full-scale recreation program at Friendship Park.

- Playground and tennis equipment at Clearwater Park.

- A new entrance to the Kopp swimming pool at Dempster Junior High School.

- Play equipment at Devonshire, Brentwood and High Ridge Knolls parks in the Des Plaines section of the park district.

- Remodeling of the Mount Prospect Country Club.

- Installation of walkways at Clearwater Park.

SHORTLY AFTER approving the budget, park district commissioners briefly discussed the relative merits of improving park facilities versus beautification of parks.

Commissioner Roland C. Becker endorsed greater attention to the appearance of the parks. "We've extended ourselves putting in baseball diamonds and backstops," he said. "That's all right, but we can go too far. Our efforts should be toward beautifying the environment. Parks are not only for recreation. They are something to look at, something to please the eye."

Commission William Selep countered that he does not believe the park district "is in a position to put too much money into beautification. I would hate like heck to let something else go to put flowers in."

BOARD PRESIDENT Robert T. Jackson noted that "what we do in the parks does not affect recreation. They are separate budgets."

Jackson last night was reelected president of the park board, a position he has held since 1967. Also unanimously reelected without opposition: Becker, vice president; Elmer Blasco, secretary; Albert Jackson, treasurer; and elected William Selep, assistant treasurer. William Ward has been retained for another year as park board attorney.

Committee chairmanships were assigned as follows: finance, Blasco; golf, Becker; building and grounds, Selep; and recreation, Robert Jackson.

Citizens panel formed to study building needs

A citizens' committee has been organized in Dist. 26 to review Supt. John Fridlund's report on building facilities and make further recommendations to the school board.

In his report, issued in March, Fridlund said current facilities at many district schools have not been able to keep up with expanded programs.

"As the programs of the district have expanded, the need for housing such programs or functions has taken, for lack of a better description, a 'jerry-built' approach," Fridlund said in his report.

A 13-member committee has been invited to discuss the report and ways of improving current space usage to better accommodate school programs.

The committee will meet next Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. at the administration office, 1900 E. Kensington, Mount Prospect.

COMMITTEE MEMBERS include the following Mount Prospect residents: Idyl Nipper, 1216 North Meadow Ln.; Nick Giannini, 800 Mulberry Ln.; Linda Maran, 1812 Basswood Ln.; Carl Pope, 801 E. Highland; Karen Zuck, 1763 Carib Ln.; Joy Daskel, 1806 Apache Ln.; Michele Muno, 1706 Basswood Ln.; Nancy Sherman, 1818 Hopi Ln.; Karen Eldrup, 1810 Basswood Ln.; Mike Promen, 1815 Boulder Dr.; Marsha Lupton, 1317 Peartree Ln.; and Mrs. Joel J. Reznick, 1818 Apache Ln.

Representing Des Plaines on the committee will be Ann Pittman, 773 Madelin Dr.

Among items cited in the report are Fridlund's observations that faculty lounges at some schools are inadequate, learning centers at some schools need to be further developed, learning disabilities classrooms need improvement, and need exists in many schools for more storage space.

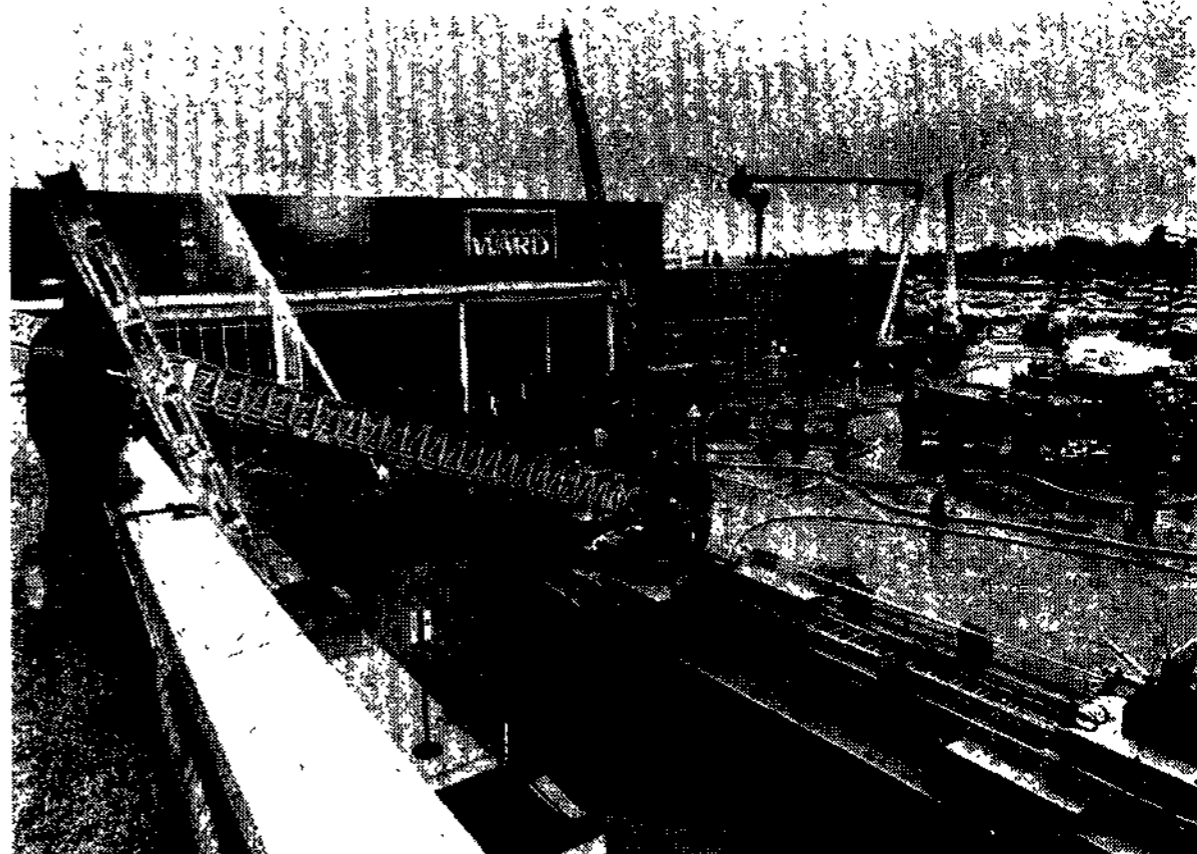

Fridlund's report offered no solutions to the problems but the superintendent said he had "high hopes" for constructive changes within the next few years. The committee is expected to meet several times before making any recommendations to the board.

Eppey to name chief today

Mount Prospect's new police chief is to be named at an 11 a.m. news conference today by Village Mgr. Robert J. Eppey.

Five members of the police department have applied for the chief's job, which is being vacated Friday for health reasons by Bert Giddens. The five are lieutenants John Savage and John Homola, and sergeants Ralph Doney, Patrick Kallihan, and Joseph Bopp.

Each man has undergone extensive testing, including a polygraph (lie detector) test. Eppey received the test results Monday and was studying them before announcing his choice.

There was no real fire, but this is how one would have been put out.

'Victims' of overturned bus await rescue.

Glad it wasn't real...

Water fights, a simulated bus accident, a fake department store fire and a simulated two-car accident brought Fire Recognition Week to a close Saturday at Mount Prospect's Randhurst Shopping Center.

Some 35 fire departments from the north, northwest and westsuburban areas participated in the fourth annual Outdoor Thrill and Skill Show, which ran for two hours Saturday afternoon.

The Bloomingdale Fire Department won the water fight trophy.

In addition to the skill show, visitors to the shopping center were able to view 40 of the newest pieces of firefighting equipment.

The Mount Prospect volunteer firemen had their annual ball Saturday night in the shopping center mall. Throughout the preceding week various fire safety presentations were given inside the shopping center.

Crowd expected tonight for meeting on Rob Roy

A large crowd is expected tonight as the Mount Prospect Village Board reviews the controversial request to develop the Rob Roy Golf Course.

Residents of both Mount Prospect and Prospect Heights filled the village board chambers three times earlier this year when the zoning board of appeals considered Kenroy Inc.'s request to build 4,500 apartment and condominium units on the golf course.

Tonight's special board meeting — the first official discussion of the plans by village trustees — will begin at 8 p.m. in the village hall, 112 E. Northwest Hwy. Also on the agenda is an ordinance raising building permit fees by about 25 per cent, and, in executive session, discussion of a successor to Village Trustee Patrick J. Link, who announced his resignation last week, effective June 1.

No board action is expected on the Kenroy request to annex the 180-acre golf course and adjoining 20-acre driving range, and to rezone it for multi-family use. The course is east of Wheeling Road between Camp McDonald Road and Euclid Avenue in unincorporated Wheeling Township.

Roy Gottlieb, chairman of the Skokie firm's board of directors, is expected to outline plans for a scaled-down version of the development, calling for at most 3,500 units plus open space around the perimeter of the property. The new plan is expected to be referred to the zoning board of appeals for a public hearing.

A 13-year-old Mount Prospect boy was arrested for criminal damage to property after he allegedly fired a shotgun at two neighbors' houses, sending .22 caliber bullets through the bedrooms.

About 9 p.m. Sunday, police said bullets entered the Wesley G. Brown residence, 1103 Greenwood Dr., and the Don Morgan residence, 1005 Hemlock Ln. Police said no one was injured although the bullets caused damage to windows, walls and doors. It is believed no more than two bullets were fired at each house.

Police discovered the youth by tracing the path of the bullets backward. At the time of the arrest, police said the youth had an additional 96 bullets with the gun. The youth, who was also charged with unlawful use of a weapon, was released to his parents' custody.

School board approves

New computers at Sunset Park

New computers will replace old computers at Sunset Park School next year as a result of Dist. 57 school board approval of a lease-rental agreement with Westinghouse Learning Corp.

The new computers, belonging to Westinghouse, will be housed in two rooms at Sunset Park which have been occupied for the last few years by computers from the Northwest Educational Cooperative.

The one-year lease agreement with Westinghouse will allow the company to rent two classrooms at Sunset Park at a cost of $6,500 per year. The lease is scheduled to take effect July 1.

High School Dist. 214 has contracted with Westinghouse for data processing services next year. Although Dist. 57 has not yet hired an outside data processing service for next year, officials say it is likely Westinghouse will be considered since the computers will be located within the district.

Contracting with an outside computer service was made necessary for member-districts of the NEC computer cooperative because the NEC computer network has been disbanded.

The board's unanimous vote to approve the lease-rental agreement came at a special meeting Thursday. Approval of the agreement was recommended by the board's building and sites committee.

Teen charged with battery

A 19-year-old Prospect Heights man was charged with battery and disorderly conduct after an alleged altercation early Sunday at George's Place, 521 S. Milwaukee Ave., Wheeling.

Police said Robert T. Gustafson, 103 Elaine Cir., was arrested at 12:50 a.m. Sunday. According to police, Gustafson, who was with some minors, tried to buy beer but was refused by the owner, George Therios. Gustafson then left and returned alone and bought some beer, police said.

Therios told police he noticed Gustafson with his friends and told Gustafson to return the beer for a refund. At this point, police said, Gustafson began arguing loudly. He allegedly struck Mrs. Edward Schlangen, 313 E. Walnut St., Wheeling, on the arm as she was trying to calm him down.

Police said that when they arrived Gustafson continued to be loud and had to be "subdued over a table."

Gustafson is to appear June 4 in the Arlington Heights branch of Cook County Circuit Court. He was released to Mount Prospect police, who had a warrant for his arrest for traffic violations.

Minibike stolen

A $300 Yamaha Andura minibike was stolen last week from a garage at 711 N. Willie St., Mount Prospect police said. The minibike, which was stolen between 4 p.m. Friday and 1:30 p.m. Saturday, was owned by Joseph Braun.

Burglars frightened away at two houses

Loot totals $300 in two home burglaries

More than $300 worth of items were stolen in two apparently unrelated burglaries in Mount Prospect last weekend, but burglars at two other residences were scared away by the owners.

The first burglary occurred late Friday at the Edmund Spletzer residence, 718 See-Gwun Ave. Police said the rear screen door had been cut and the patio door window had been broken to provide entry. The home was ransacked, but it is unknown if anything was stolen.

A neighbor told police just after his wife noticed a light on in the house, he saw a white Chevrolet Nova going east-bound on Lonnquist Boulevard at a high rate of speed. It was this neighbor who discovered the burglary as he and his wife knew the house was unoccupied that night.

The first of the two unsuccessful burglaries occurred at 12:30 a.m. Saturday at the Irv B. Joffe residence, 500 S. Elmhurst Rd. Police believe the burglars were scared away when Joffe, having heard a noise, turned on the first floor lights.

EVIDENCE OF the attempted burglary was discovered later, about 9:30 a.m., when Joffe found one of the kitchen windows broken. Damage was estimated at $30.

The second unsuccessful burglary occurred within a half hour after the attempt at the Joffe's. James Kappas, 201 W. Hiawatha Tr., told police he was in the living room when he heard noises at the front door.

Opening the living room drapes, Kappas saw two men at the door and another one or two in a waiting car some two houses away. He told police the pair at the door fled to the waiting car, which then drove off. On the way to the car, one of the men struck Kappas' car window, shattering it. Damage was estimated at $220.

The other successful burglary occurred at the Alan M. Lawson residence, 512 S. William St., where $25 cash, an unknown amount of jewelry and $300 worth of cameras, radios and binoculars were stolen. The burglary occurred between 1 and 11 p.m. Saturday.

Police said burnt matches and mud prints were found throughout the house. Entry was gained when a rear door window was broken.

Ice cream, talent today

The Feehenville PTA will sponsor a Gay Nineties ice cream social and talent program today at 7 p.m. at the school, 1400 E. Kensington Rd., Mount Prospect.

Theme of the program is "Kid Power."

Food store liquor license rejected

A request to sell package beer and wine at the Convenient Food Mart, 1760 W. Algonquin Rd., Mount Prospect, has been turned down by the village board.

The board last week concurred with its finance committee, which voted 3 to 0 to recommend the request for a liquor license be denied.

Store managers said the availability of beer and wine would be a convenience to their customers, but village officials feared issuance of a license would set a precedent among other food stores.

$30,000 subsidy for bus system gets mixed reaction

A proposal to extend Metron Systems' Arlington Heights bus service for three months drew a sharply mixed reaction Monday night from five members of the village board.

Trustees James T. Ryan, Frank Palmatier and Alice Harms supported a three-month subsidy of Metron that would cost the village about $30,000, and permit the start up of dial-a-bus service on a five-day-a-week basis.

However, Village Pres. Jack Walsh and Trustee Richard J. Durava strongly criticized the subsidy proposal on the basis of Metron's low ridership figures for its first eight months of operation.

A FINAL DECISION on whether the three-month subsidy will be approved was delayed until the next regular village board meeting on May 20 in order to give four other trustees absent from last night's meeting the opportunity to vote on the issue.

Walsh attacked as "preposterous" a motion made by Ryan to provide a three-month subsidy in order to keep Metron's three commuter routes functioning and permit the start up of dial-a-bus, when only 200 passengers a day (100 round trip) use the commuter service.

Without a village subsidy, Metron Pres. Claude Lusada has said the company's Arlington Heights transit division will go out of business at the end of this month, even with an anticipated $17,000 emergency state grant.

"We're not serving the community. We're serving a couple hundred people a day and it's that simple," Walsh said.

"We'd like to find a reasonable minority in the community, but I'm not sure that 200 riders, in terms of the kind of tax dollars we're talking about, is a reasonable minority."

Ryan said he was proposing subsidizing the bus operation for three more months in the interest of giving it a fair trial in the village.

"We all went into this knowing that it was not going to turn a profit. I just feel that the trial period has been too short, and that at least after three months we'll have an answer," he said.

RYAN SUGGESTED that the village administration, which has recommended an end to economic support of Metron, consider five points — the estimated $30,000 subsidy and how it would be spent, a renegotiation of the agreement with Metron, bus routes, dial-a-bus service and a marketing campaign.

Walsh termed the suggestion "the vaguest kind of motion I've heard of in my experience with village government." He said that terminating support of Metron was a matter of "just biting the bullet."

Four persons, including two commuters who ride the bus, a marketing expert and the manager of a commuter bus company in Downers Grove, spoke in favor of Metron's continuation.

"I think it would be very short sided to shut off a bus system. I think it is the coming thing and that we're involved in a pioneer effort that's essential to the long-range growth of our area," said Owen West, 103 W. Berkeley Dr., who identified himself as a charter rider of the commuter bus service.

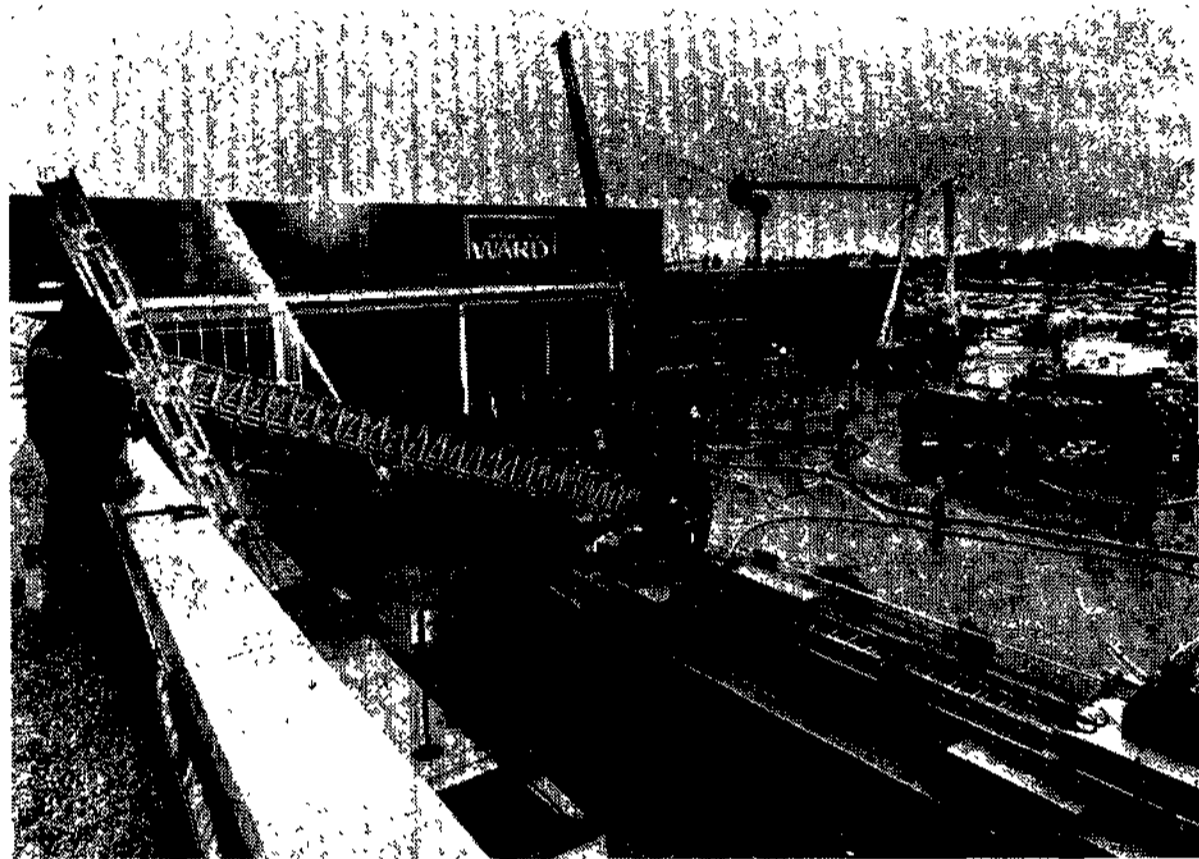

Wilson Wadsworth, president of Community Services Marketing Co., 700 W. Rand Rd., told the trustees that $1,000 to $1,500 investment in marketing could substantially reduce Metron's financial deficit forecast.

Trustee Harris, who unsuccessfully proposed subsidizing Metron through the end of the year, also called for more marketing of the bus service.

MRS. HARMS said she did not consider a subsidy of $30,000 to $30,000 — the amount needed to keep Metron in operation through the end of the year — to be very much money in terms of the village's total budget.

But Trustee Durava disagreed, suggesting that for the cost of the subsidy, "we could buy each rider a Honda and let him ride to the station."

Durava also questioned whether Lusada should be retained as operator of the bus company if, in fact, the village is going to be paying all the cost of the service.

There was no real fire, but this is how one would have been put out.

MEG agents nab trucker in alleged drug sale

Agents from the Metropolitan Enforcement Group arrested a Minnesota truck driver Monday in Arlington Heights for allegedly selling amphetamines.

Arrested was Dwayne Patrick Pelowski, 22, of Rochester, Minn. He is being held in lieu of $2,000 bond in the Cook County jail.

According to a MEG spokesman, Pelowski was arrested when he sold 200 "mini-white" amphetamine tablets to the undercover agents. The spokesman placed a street value of $400 on the drugs.

According to MEG, the arrest took place in the parking lot of a department store.

High school students were reportedly some of his major customers, according to MEG.

Pelowski was arrested after a single "buy," the spokesman said. Pelowski is scheduled to appear in the Skokie branch of Cook County Circuit Court on June 3.

Walsh promises to answer critics

Arlington Heights Village Pres. Jack Walsh Monday night promised an answer to recent charges that the village has unfairly distributed land donations it has received from builders.

Walsh and Arlington Heights Park Board Pres. Charles Cronin agreed to a future meeting to discuss the issue which exploded two weeks ago when Park Comr. Kay Muller charged Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson with a deliberate attempt to misrepresent the land distributions.

"Unfortunately, we've now got the responsibility of responding to clarify the record, one way or the other," Walsh said.

MEMBERS OF THE village administration have been working overtime since Mrs. Muller's accusation, presumably on a defense of the village's position.

Mrs. Muller contends that only 68.2 acres of land have been given to the park district, not the 106.45 acres claimed by Hanson.

"The discrepancies in the figures are really unimportant. What's done is done. We're not going to get any more land," Cronin said.

In the future, however, he said the park district would like to share in the cash that builders are required to donate in lieu of land for park sites, school sites or other public purposes.

Water fights, a simulated bus accident, a fake department store fire and a simulated two-car accident brought Fire Recognition Week to a close Saturday at Mount Prospect's Randhurst Shopping Center.

Some 35 fire departments from the north, northwest and west suburban areas participated in the fourth annual Outdoor Thrill and Skill Show, which ran for two hours Saturday afternoon.

The Bloomingdale Fire Department won the water fight trophy.

In addition to the skill show, visitors to the shopping center were able to view 40 of the newest pieces of firefighting equipment.

The Mount Prospect volunteer firemen had their annual ball Saturday night in the shopping center mall. Throughout the preceding week various fire safety presentations were given inside the shopping center.

Local man faces drag race charges in Wheeling

A 29-year-old Arlington Heights man was charged with drag racing early Sunday by Wheeling police.

Police said Eugene C. Cokenower, 2620 N. Windsor Dr., allegedly raced from a stop sign on Hintz Road in order to apparently cut in front of a second vehicle before both cars reached the intersection of Hintz and Elmhurst roads. Cokenower also was charged with transporting open liquor in a vehicle, having illegal mufflers (loud) and failure to notify the Secretary of State's office of an address change.

Also charged with transporting open liquor and failure to notify the Secretary of State's office of an address change was Cary K. Van derMeulen, 19, also of 2620 N. Windsor Dr., Arlington Heights. Van derMeulen, apparently a neighbor of Cokenower's, was the driver of the second vehicle. He was not charged with drag racing, according to police.

A passenger in Van derMeulen's vehicle, Mark W. Carver, 17, of 1219 Anthony Rd., Wheeling, also was charged with transporting open liquor. Police said they found open cans of beer in both cars. All three will appear May 28 in the Arlington Heights branch of Cook County Circuit Court.

Council of PTAs meeting

The Arlington Heights Council of PTAs will hold its annual meeting Wednesday at Patton School, 1616 N. Patton. The meeting begins at 9:30 a.m. and an executive workshop will be held at 1:30 p.m.

The morning portion of the annual meeting will include scholarship presentations, skits by retiring PTA presidents and the installation of new officers for the council.

Steve Scheibel, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Scheibel and Joan Parish, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Parish will each receive $500 scholarships from the PTA council. This is the first year the council has awarded scholarships financed by PTAs in School Dist. 25.

Presidents retiring from local PTA boards will present "PTA in Action," a program of five skits.

OFFICERS TO BE installed include Mrs. Albert Kraybill, 1110 N. Chestnut, president; Mrs. Ralph Wirebaugh, 310 S. Evergreen, first vice president; Mrs. Donald Sanders, 1810 N. Highland, second vice president; Mrs. James Coyne, 201 S. Yale, secretary, and Mrs. Richard Averill, 1208 N. Hickory, treasurer.

Mrs. Michael Vincenzo, 2014 E. Fremont Ct., is retiring after serving two years as president of the council.

Dist. 25 school principals and incoming PTA presidents and vice presidents will meet for an executive workshop session in the afternoon.

Robert Spinks, principal at Thomas Junior High School, will moderate a panel discussion on the roles of principals and the PTA. Panelists include John Bennett, principal at North School; Mrs. Kathryn McElroy, principal at Kensington School and Robert Parsons, principal at Wilson School.

The administrative staff of the district will be introduced and question-and-answer period will follow the discussion.

Officials to visit museum

Employees and elected officials of the village and their families, are invited to the Arlington Heights Historical Society and Museum, 500 N. Vail, from 1 to 5 p.m. Sunday.

They will be the first guests to visit the recently renovated second story of the coach house adjacent to the museum. Antique farm and garden equipment, a collection of German emigrant trunks, a logging sled and dioramas created by the late Otto Boite will be on display for the first time.

Teri Shaver wins grant

Teri Shaver, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Larry Shaver of 1526 S. Fernandez in Arlington Heights, was recently awarded the Nordan Fine Arts Scholarship.

Miss Shaver, a senior at Rolling Meadows High School, won the scholarship by submitting her art samples and will use the scholarship at Texas Christian University at Fort Worth, Tex.

Youths plan 'road show'

The youth groups of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints congregations in the area will present a play of skits this week called the "Road Show."

The groups, including the one from the Arlington Heights congregation, will present the program Tuesday at the Magnus Farm home for the elderly in Arlington Heights and on Wednesday at the Addolorata Villa Home for Aged Women in Wheeling.

The public is invited to a performance on Saturday at the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, 2035 N. Windsor in Arlington Heights. The program will begin at 7:30 p.m.

Band concert Thursday

The spring annual band concert called "A Salute to America" will be presented Thursday at St. Peter Lutheran School, 111 W. Olive, Arlington Heights.

The presentation of patriotic tunes will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the school gym.

Students of all ages at St. Peter will be participating in the concert band, select band, cadet band, bell choir and recorder and recorder and rhythm band.

Tickets are available from any band member or may be purchased at the door. Tickets are $1.50 each for adults, 75 cents for high school students and 25 cents for grade school students. The public is invited.

Parks taking 'Summer Club' registrations

Registration is open for "Summer Clubbers," sponsored by the Arlington Heights Park District.

The program, new this year, offers children from 6 to 13 years old 10 specialized activities, three hours a day for two weeks. The 6 to 10-year-olds meet from 10 a.m. until 1 p.m. The 10 to 13-year-olds meet from 2 p.m. until 5 p.m.

The programs to be offered are: Archery, dance, cheerleading, golf, boys' and girls' track, baton, crafts, girls' forum and basketball.

The Summer Clubber schedule is: Camelot Park, June 24 to July 5; Heritage Park, July 8 to July 19; Frontier Park, July 22 to Aug. 2; Recreation Park, Aug. 5 to Aug. 16 and Pioneer Park, Aug. 19 to Aug. 30.

The fee is $15 for the two-week session and registration is being accepted at all local parks.

Openings for teens in Ecology Corps

There are still openings for boys and girls, 14 and 15 years old, in the Ecology Corps.

The corps does maintenance and care work for parks, schools and public grounds. The project is funded through the village, the Arlington Heights Park District and School Dist. 25.

Youths work from 8 a.m. until noon for five weeks. Corps members receive 90 cents an hour, special recreation activities and a free summer swim pass at the park district.

There are three five-week programs with 40 youths in each session.

Those eligible and interested should contact their local park center or Olympic Park, 660 N. Ridge Ave.

THE WEATHER is recorded daily at St. Peter's Lutheran School in Arlington Heights. Eric Bosley is one of 35 seventh-grade students participating in a student-operated weather station as part of the science curriculum.

These kids know why we're having lousy weather

by BETTY LEE

Rain or shine, they make sure they understand why and how weather happens.

They are students at St. Peter's Lutheran School in Arlington Heights who have their own special weather bureau and take turns in determining the weather conditions for the day.

On one segment of the wall in Gerald Seevers' science classroom, a window case protects gleaming steel-encased instruments which are used to predict the weather. A recording barometer goes so slow that its small drum makes only one rotation a day. A mercury thermometer-hydrometer to measure humidity and other instruments are used by the students.

"At the beginning of the year, Mr. Seevers gives us guidelines for weather," said Paul Thomas, a seventh grader.

Students entering the seventh grade and who are interested in working on the weather station are taught the basics by eighth graders who worked on the project the year before. Seevers gives a quiz to see if the prospective weathermen qualify.

THIS YEAR ABOUT 35 students volunteered to work on the weather station. A team of two students make daily records for a school week period and after 2 p.m. each day they call WMAQ-TV, Channel 5 and relay the high and low temperatures.

Charts tacked over the wall are used to help the youngsters. Outside, another portion of the weather station is located in the school's courtyard. A small weather box which resembles a bird house contains instruments used by the youngsters. A weather vane and wind speed indicator sits atop the school building.

"About one quarter of the science curriculum is devoted to weather," Seevers said. "This station fits in so well." Seevers added that some of the students who worked on the weather station made their own after they graduated from class.

School officials skeptical over unit-school study

by JUDY JOBBITT

School officials reacted skeptically Monday to the feasibility study for unit districts in Schaumburg and Palatine townships.

The study also is being reviewed by the school reorganization division of the state superintendent's office. According to Leo Athas, legal adviser to Michael Bakalis, the state has been supporting the recent movement toward unit districts.

The study conducted by a team of Northern Illinois University education professors, was presented Friday by Ralph Beinap, director of the study.

"There is nothing in the study that tells me the education will be improved for any unit district," said Gordon Thoren, Dist. 54 board president. "I don't understand the need or benefit for community identification. School identity is the greatest thing going. We'll have that whatever the organization."

Community identity was stated in the study as the most significant result from forming unit districts.

HE SAID THE STUDY contained inconsistencies and contradictions. "It makes statements that challenge the entire curriculum and school board without backup," he said.

"I frankly was disappointed," said Margaret Pageler, Dist. 54 board member. "It wasn't a feasibility study. We haven't begun to face the specifics."

She said she is not close-minded to unit districts but is waiting to see a "real feasibility study" conducted.

"It has to be a drain on the education kids are getting when the central office is in a turmoil," she said.

"I spent the weekend going over the report," said Robert Seger, High School Dist. 211 board member from Schaumburg. "I'm amazed at the number of contradictions and inaccuracies in the report."

HE ALSO "WAS SHOCKED" and appalled by the actions of the committee petitioning for a unit district in Schaumburg and portions of Elk Grove Village, Hanover Park, Roselle and Rolling Meadows currently in Dist. 54.

"One area is starting the move without any community reaction from the rest of them," he said.

"In my opinion the only reason to go for a unit district is an overwhelming benefit to going for a unit district," he said. "I can't see any reason to go for a unit district."

"I don't think it would improve our programs and I think that is a paramount consideration," said Richard Kolze, Dist. 211 superintendent. "I don't think community identity would have that much effect on the child in the classroom."

Frank Whiteley, Dist. 15 superintendent, said community identification is not a problem in that district.

Secretary of State starts probe of Imperial

Investigators for Illinois Secretary of State Michael Howlett have begun a probe into the operation of a company incorporated as a possible front for the scandal-ridden Imperial Investors International Inc. of Des Plaines.

The probe, which was sparked by Herald disclosures last month, centers around the incorporation of Midwest Innovations, which contends it does business at 912 W. Touhy Ave., Park Ridge.

In April, The Herald disclosed that the Touhy Avenue address contained a pet shop and an answering service. Employees at the answering service indicated that Midwest Innovations did not maintain offices there and that all mail and telephone calls for the company were forwarded to the offices of Imperial at 2250 E. Devon Ave., Des Plaines.

Imperial, M.I. and another apparent front company, Product Development Services, have been the topics of a continuing Herald investigation since late 1972. All three companies claim to offer marketing and development advice to investors. Five present and former Imperial officials have been indicted on federal mail fraud charges and charged by Illinois Atty. Gen. William J. Scott with violation of the state consumer fraud act.

INVESTIGATORS ARE NOW attempting to determine the legitimacy of MI's articles of incorporation. The state requires that the company name a registered agent as its representative and that the articles of incorporation include the agent's name and address.

Documents filed by MI with the secretary of state indicate that "J. Jones" is the registered agent for the company and the Park Ridge address as its office.

Repeated calls by the Herald to the answering service and pet shop at the address revealed there was no "J. Jones" there.

Imperial officials have repeatedly refused to comment on the relationship between Imperial, MI and PDS. Sources close to the operation of the company indicated that employees work simultaneously for all three companies.

Under state law, if a corporation fails to correctly report the name and address of its registered agent, the secretary of state can request the Illinois attorney general to involuntarily dissolve the corporation.

DOZENS OF BUYERS spent a total of $1,110.50 on the village's annual spring sale. Prices on the unclaimed bikes and other equipment auctioned off Saturday at bikes averaged about $15 to $20, officials reported.
